Bustill-Bowser-Asbury Collection
Collection 127-1 to 127-11

Prepared & Revised by:
W. Paul Coates
December 1980

MANUSCRIPT DIVISION

Scope Note

The Bustill-Bowser-Asbury Collection spans the time period of 1732-1941. The bulk of the material in this collection, however, spans the years 1840-1926. The collection measures approximately 3½ linear feet.

The collection contains genealogical, biographical, legal, and commemorative items, as well as photographs and memorabilia, belonging to Bustill, Bowser, and Asbury family members. The collection has a number of documents which are of unique historical value.

The collection contains a biographical sketch of Cyrus Bustill, one of the founders of the African Free Society (1787). The Society had as its purpose the self improvement and advancement of Black Americans. The Society had among its founding members Richard Allen and Absalom, Jones. Members of the Society in 1794 organized themselves into The St. Thomas Free African Church. This was the first Black Church incorporated in the U.S. Cyrus Bustill was the first member of the Society to transfer his accrued money from the Society to the church. Cyrus was the grandfather of Sarah Mapps Douglass, a noted Philadelphia educator and Abolitionist, and Robert Mapps Douglass, an early Afro-American artist. Cyrus was also the great- great- grandfather of Paul Robeson.

A large amount of the material in this collection concerns David Bustill Bowser, grandson of Cyrus. The activities of David, a noted pre and post civil war artist are documented in this collection by his business correspondence, newsclippings, his art: work, awards, and legal papers.

Another significant mount of material contained in this collection concerns the life and Agent of John C. Asbury.

Asbury was married to Ida Elizabeth Bowser Asbury, daughter of David Bustill Bowser. John Asbury was a noted civil rights activist, community leader and advocate for the aged and infirm. Materials concerning Asbury include speeches, certificates, newsclippings about him and printed material concerning, his organizational affiliations.

Included in this collection are Photographs of flags designed and painted by David B. Bowser, individual members, and a group picture taken on the White House lawn. This photograph taken sometime during the Hoover administration, shows the President- surrounded by a group of prominent and nationally known Blacks. The group includes Mary Church Terrell, George Murphy, Jr and Adam Clayton Powell , Jr.
