Abstract	John Lovell, Jr. was a scholar and professor of literature in the English department at Howard University for 45 years. The John Lovell Jr. papers document Lovell's research, teaching career, and family life.

Biographical/Historical note

John Lovell, Jr. was a scholar and professor of literature in the English department at Howard University for 45 years. At the time of his passing, Lovell served as the chair of the department. Having also served as Associate Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, Director of Freshman-Sophomore Honors program, and Director of Student Life, Lovell was a distinguished teacher and admired member of the university community. Lovell received his bachelors and master's degrees from Northwestern University, 1926 and 1927 respectively, and his Ph.D. from University of California, Berkeley in 1938. Lovell focused his research on American drama and Africana history and culture. Lovell is known for his work on the African diaspora influence in arts, literature and drama. He was a longtime contributor to the Journal of Negro History and the Journal of Negro Education. Lovell's research and writing about the spirituals culminated in the publication of Black Song: the Forge and the Flame in 1971. Divided into three sections, The Forge, The Slave Sings Free, and The Flame, Lovell argues in Black Song for the authenticity and originality of the Negro spiritual. Lovell also traveled the world teaching and researching countries in Asia, Europe and Africa. Lovell passed away in 1974.
