Abstract	Calvin Raullerson was an official with the Peace Corps and other international aid organizations. The Calvin Raullerson papers document Raullerson's careers in research, education, and international aid. Among the records are chronological files, correspondence, travel files, reference files, business files, as well as files relating to his work with the United Negro College Fund, the African-American Institute, and the Peace Corps.

Biographical/Historical note

Calvin Raullerson was born on December 9, 1920 in Utica, New York. Raullerson attended Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, graduating in 1943. During World War II, he served in the Army. Shortly after his appointment in the military, he relocated to Washington, D.C. to become a research analyst for the president's Fair Employment Practices Committee. Raullerson earned a master's degree from New York University in Public Administration in 1949, and would go on to do graduate work at Harvard University. From 1950 to 1952, Raullerson was associate editor and director of research for Christian E. Burckel and Associates in Yonkers and at the United Nations. From 1952 to 1957, he was assistant to the executive director and director of educational services for the United Negro College Fund. From 1961 to 1966, he was with the American Society of African Culture, serving as associate director in New York and in Lagos, Nigeria. Working with the Peace Corps from 1969-1971, he served as Chief for East and Southern Africa, Country Director for Kenya, and Regional Director for Africa. In 1973, Raullerson, relocated to Lubbock, Texas, to become an administrator of international programs at Texas Tech University. While at Texas Tech, he served as the executive director of the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies as well as special assistant to the president for international programs. Raullerson returned to Washington in 1978 to serve as an administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development. Raullerson remained in Washington, D.C. until his retirement in 2001. Raullerson died on February 8, 2008.
