Capital Teacher Supplies Glossary

Dr. Anna J. Cooper, former principal, now teacher of Latin at the Dunbar High school, last week received from the University of Paris copies of an edition of "Le Pelerinage de Charlemagne," for which she supplied the English glossary. The edition contains an introduction by Abbe Felix Klein, professor at the Catholic Institute of Paris.

The book was published first in London, with English glossary, in 1836, by Francis Michel. All trace of the edition was lost in 1879, although several editions appeared in Germany up to 1913. The English glossary supplied by Dr. Cooper follows closely the German glossary. The edition contains the ancient text and modern text with notes by Koschwitz.

G. U. Alumni Day Extensively Observed

Alumni day was celebrated yesterday at Georgetown university by a buffet luncheon in the Ryan gymnasium before the Georgetown-Lehigh football game.

Following the game, students, alumni and friends attended the alumni prom at the Wardman Park hotel, where the football team members were the guests of honor. The committee in charge of the affair was headed by William Cooney, Paul Reynolds and Carberry O'Shea, officers of the Athletic association, representing the first graduation of all the data bearing on the issues. Mr. Bonet was awarded the degree of doctor of philosophy in foreign service. The board, which passed on his dissertation was headed by Dr. James Brown Scott, famous international authority. The remaining members of the examining board were President Charles W. Lyons, S. J., of Georgetown university; Vice President Edmund A. Walsh, S. J.; Dean William F. Notz and Assistant Dean Thomas H. Healy of the Foreign Service school, and Dr. William Penn Cresson, former member of the United States diplomatic corps.

Lectures on Dante.

Dr. Leonardo Dipetti, secretary of the Italian embassy addressed the class of European literature at the Hilltop last Wednesday on the influence of the poet Dante.

The distinguished visitor was introduced to the class by its professor, Edward McT. Donnelly, S. J. At the conclusion of the lecture President Lyons thanked Dr. Dipetti for his interesting and illuminating portrayal of the great Italian poet.

The junior class of the medical school was taken on a tour of inspection in connection with the course in pathology and hygiene last Monday by Dr. Eugene R. Whitmore. The class inspected the Washington filtration plant. As one of the filters was open and being cleaned, the students were given the opportunity of going down in the sand beds and viewing at first hand the work of cleansing. Illustrated charts and maps were utilized to make clear the method whereby the water is taken from the Potomac, stored in reservoirs, and finally filtered. Mr. Curtis, superintendent of the plant and Dr. C. J. Lauter, chemist and bacteriologist, personally conducted the tour.

Debate on Coal Strike.

President Lyons will address the collegiate student body Tuesday morning in Gaston hall, the occasion being the reading of the marks at the end of the first semester. Certificates will be awarded by Dean Louis J. Gallagher, S. J., to the honor students.

The Butler law congress, comprising the members of the Butler Law club, went on record as opposed to government intervention in the anthracite coal strike, the subject of last Tuesday's weekly debate. Vincent Downey was recognized by Chancellor Leo J. Rafferty as the leader of the negative, while J. Spinatto was leader for the affirmative. In the debate that followed, the affirmative speakers contended that the government owed a duty to the public to intervene in view of the national calamity that threatens the failure of the miners and operators to reach an agreement on the questions involved.

The speakers for the affirmative were Mr. Spinatto, William Doherty and R. Cushwa; for the negative, Mr. Downey, Arron Ezersky and H. Padelbsky. The decision was awarded the negative by a vote from the floor.

Those recommended for membership in the club were Miley Sandusky, Thomas Frank Shebell, William Glenn, Harold Eaton, Joseph Kramer, Jack Sylvester, George J. Williams, Fred W. Wakefield, Mr. Timpone, Francis Nitch, Claude D. Shaffer, Mr. Belman, Mr. Shraeder, Mr. Warman, Phillip Wagshal, John
