Reverend Stephen Morrell Newman Formally Inducted into the Presidency of Howard University

The Academic Procession an Impressive Feature

On Friday afternoon, December 13th, Dr. Stephen Morrell Newman, graduate of Bowdoin College, was inaugurated President of Howard University, with very impressive services. The exercises in entirety were conducted with all the dignity, culture and impressiveness that such an occasion would demand.

At two-thirty the long academic procession, consisting of nearly a hundred of the foremost men in every walk of life in the country, a majority fittingly attired in academic robes, headed by the vested choir of the University, filed out of the Library and marched into Andrew Rankin Chapel while Miss Clarice Jones, assistant pianist, played the beautiful march composed by Mr. Roy W. Tibbs specially for the inauguration. The Invocation was offered by the Reverend Walter Brooks, Pastor of Nineteenth Street Baptist Church.

Chief Justice Stanton J. Peck of the Court of Claims, as President of the Board of Trustees, presided at the inauguration, and presented Dr. Newman with the Charter, Seal and Keys of the University. Following this Dr. Newman delivered his strong, forceful and masterly inaugural address. In this address, he emphasized the importance of a creative imagination in every branch of learning and endeavor and he showed that the Negro was well endowed with this imagination and manifested it even during his total subserviency, by his folk songs, that it was a great part of his life. Possessing this all important factor, the Negro, he said, is fully equipped to bear his part of the burden of the general advancement of the races and to contribute its quota to the dissemination of culture. Dr. Newman's address showed the deepest faith, the greatest sympathy, and supreme optimism for the people among whom he is to labor, and a cognizance of the inestimably useful part Howard has played and is yet to play in the development of the creative genius through the higher education of the race.

President Newman's conclusion was an advocacy of peace and brotherhood among the peoples of the earth and of cooperative labor for the triumph of God.

President Newman was followed by Senator Charles P. Johnson of Maine, who brought the greetings of Bowdoin College. His address was brief yet timely. He spoke of the glory of his Alma Mater and the honor she had enjoyed of furnishing two presidents, Gen. O. O. Howard and Dr. Newman, to Howard University.

Honorable Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, expressed in eloquent terms his belief in the higher education of the Negro and asserted that Howard University is the center from which the Negro education of those of the Western hemisphere should emanate.

Dr. H. C. King, President of Oberlin College, chose as his subject, "Reverence for Personality," and thrilled his audience with his plain though masterly analysis of the subject. Two things he claimed are necessary for real success in any line of endeavor self respect, and respect of individuality.

Dr. W. S. Scarborough, President of Wilberforce University, emphasized the great demand of the Negro race for men of higher learning and showed the high place that Howard holds in helping to fill this demand.

Letters were read from President Taft, Congressmen Fitts and Cannon and also from scores of representative sister institutions. A telegram from Ex-President W. P. Thirkield, which was not delivered in time to be read at the exercises was vociferously applauded by the student body on the following Monday. More than a hundred schools were represented at the inauguration by letters or persons.

Among Those Present

Among the representatives of colleges and universities present were:

Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, Princeton University; William B. Cox, Ohio Wesleyan University;

Again Howard University of Washington is the champion on the football gridiron. There is no contender for this supremacy.
Since the advent of “Ed” Gray on the field at Howard, a danging line of scalps have fallen to the lot of the team with which he played. The collegiate season started within a hard fought battle between Howard and Hampton as the opponents and when the final whistle blew Howard had registered a victory against the Old Dominion, but not without suffering a hitherto uncrossed goal line for four years to be rudely trampled. These two teams were the most closely matched of the big four teams.
Had Hampton elected to use the effective toe of Bender more it is likely that a different result might have been.
Howard travelled to North Carolina and in three days administered a 20 to 0 dose to Shaw University at Raleigh and rolled up 25 points against Livingstone College in the same state. Then on Thanksgiving Day it took the Howard machine fully one half to solve the riddle of Lincoln’s defense and in the second half it downs the pigskin twice behind the Quaker School’s goal line.
Hampton’s team was a corker and as a team working aggregation it was second to none. Unlike last year, the work of the Hampton team against Lincoln was clean cut and the victory earned was deserved. Considerably outweighed, the Virginia institution by dash and variety of play for three quarters, swept the heavy Lincoln defense away and during that time, counted for a touchdown and a field goal, while Wheaton of Lincoln carried the ball on successive rushes to a touchdown. Hampton met Shaw at home Thanksgiving and gave the Tar-Heelers a crushing defeat.

Lincoln nor Shaw had the men nor the team that these two have been favoured with in past years, and there is much to be improved upon in their style of play.

The work of five men stand in bold relief beside the work of the other players this season, and critics unanimously agree that these five men are stars of the first rank. They are in order, Gray, Scott, Slaughter, Warner and Brice. In his last year in collegiate football, Gray lived up to the standard of his earlier days and passes from the stellar circle as the greatest of them all, old time and bygone artists notwithstanding. No cleaner and more gentlemanly player ever wore the moleskins, nor has a more conscientious worker ever been about, which testimony the writer gives not as his own but echoes what is universally spoken.

Scott of Hampton was perhaps not so contentious as in former years when the responsibility of leadership rested upon him, but was every whit the old reliable and around his end opponents were cautious and watchful.

"Slaughter" was right this year. The tackle that could not be blocked by this plunging "Bullet" was not in the game, and the way he successfully bowled over some of his opponents in some games was a joy to behold by those versed in the science of

EDITORIAL

The Howard University Journal wishes to extend to its readers a hearty wish for a Merry, Merry Christmas.

The question that may be asked of almost every American university may be asked of Howard: is it making its influence felt in the community? The question can be answered affirmatively by none of our larger universities with possibly the exceptions of Wisconsin and Minnesota, where these schools practically dominate almost every line of activity in their respective states.

Howard is uniquely situated. It is in a large city with a negro population of about 92,000. It is here that we find problems of every nature and kind, offering wide fields for student service and for student help. It is natural to suppose that the university man living in the midst of such conditions would too readily avail himself of this opportunity to render service and at the same time gain for himself a wealth of experience. But how few thrust themselves into these fields.

Dr. Jessie D. Burks, head of Philadelphia’s Bureau of Municipal Research, says truly: “The time is coming when a man’s success in college will be judged by what he has done to help solve actual problems of life.” It is then the duty of the Universities to connect their men with outside activities that are worth while, thereby making themselves powers among those of their localities and at the same time teaching their men the practical and humanitarian value of a liberal education. It is just here that the civic clubs are useful. The works of such clubs are beginning to be felt throughout the country.

The social settlement work and numerous other causes worthy of their aid are calling the students of Howard into actual work. These calls should be answered and by no means meagerly, for every service rendered the needy by a student of Howard is a service done the institution.

A Thought for the Season

About two thousand years ago a hallowed event graced the whole world with a new, unending and divine era. Of this event, “a multitude of the heavenly host” said, “Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men.” Yes, the Child, Jesus, was born in a stable at Bethlehem, “wrapped in swaddling cloth, and laid in a manger.” He grew to manhood, lived a rich life, and reaped a destiny incalculable, everlasting and divine.

During his life, Jesus lived in conformity to the following axiom.

“Sow a thought, you reap an act.
Sow an act you reap a habit.
Sow a habit you reap a character.
Sow a character you reap a destiny.”

The purity of his thoughts prompted his acts when he helped the drunken man, healed the sick man, and ate and drank with the publicans and sinners, of which latter act he said to the scribes and Pharisees, “They that are whole need not a physician: but they that are sick.” The virtue of his acts formed in him the habit of praying, preaching, promoting good and kindness everywhere. The nobleness of his habits produced his true, exalted, and inestimable character. How justifiable and even inevitable then was his divine destiny. Unquestionably, Jesus lived in conformity to the above axiom.

As Yuletide is now upon us, and our minds are refreshed with thoughts of Jesus' hallowed birth, rich life, and worthy destiny, let us amend our lives, renew our determinations, and soar pure thoughts, virtuous acts, noble habits, and a true character: for, in this way, we too will reap a worthy destiny.

The Junior Liberal Arts Give Banner Stag

On the evening of December 12, in the club room of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity House, the Junior Liberal Arts "pulled off" a stag which stands unsurpassed by any other function of its kind in the history of the class. To say the least, the stag was a free college-like, enthusiastic, dignified affair.

The spirited Juniors, some tall, some short, all young, none old, none ugly, all handsome, with their guests, P. B. Lennox, the Senior's executive, and Clayborne George, the Sophomore's executive (the Freshmen's executive was absent on account of urgent duty) gathered gayly in groups of four around little tables, vigorously vied in wit and humor, and incessantly indulged in other little "pausing" past times, very becoming to occasions of the kind.

After this, the 'stags'' partook of a more materialistic enjoyment when all climbed in heartily and feasted at length upon a variety of food stuffs. Then came the toast-making period, presided over by Lucifer H. Brown, that master of the "flattering art." Every person present, after the manner of a Demosthenes or Oliver Goldsmith, made the hall resound with sweet eloquence upon great, small, immediate and remote subjects. Lusty cheers were given for the Seniors and Sophomores; a toast and the class yell were given to the Junior girls, and, then, came the end and climax of the toast-making when S. A. Allen "Sam" responded, prompt, to "A Toast to Our Faculty."

At an early hour (in the morning) the sleepy, stalwart collegians retired in groups to their dens and homes each having a souvenir of the banner stag and each commenting upon the enjoyable evening and upon Walter E. Tibbs, the forward president of the Juniors, who so well steered the occasion to complete success.

Boxing a tackle. The old-day cross-crown play found Slaughter just as effective as ever and many times when the opponent's end would be lost in the intricacy of a play this player would come tearing around for a gain of many yards.

Warner had no trouble in passing and blocking on the line but mainly to his credit was his work on defense when he seemed able to be in and out on any play. He was easily best in his position.

Brice proved the general of the campaign. No fault could be found with his play as quarterback, and he knew just when and how to get all that there was out of the ten men with him at all times.

Collins and Wheaton were the best workers on a team that could not get together or hold together. On the battle field at Howard the team shot their bolt too early and at Hampton it got to going too late. Collins as a kicker and receiver of punts cannot be excelled. He is an open, fearless runner, superbly conditioned, and one of the best of sportsmen. Very seldom does he haggle over technicalities, but believes in playing the game.

Wheaton was the mainstay when Lincoln was in need of a gain and could another back of equal prowess have been his team-mate to save him successive plunges he might have done even better.

Beaumon, Bell and Aiken were sturdy players on the line. They were good on defense but none showed the versatility of star linemen. Clelland is minus the frills that adorn perfect men of the line but his rugged strength and condition make him a power of resistance and offense in the position of guard.

There were many other good players who did well enough at times to deserve mention, chiefly Oliver, Merchant, Nixon, Gilmore, of Howard; Shearer, Jones, Bender, and Jameson of Hampton; Thompkins, Dunn and Barnum of Lincoln, and Brown of Shaw; but they did not work long during the season or not consistently enough to warrant a place of especial honor.

Prize Declamation Contest

Miss Olive Mae Wells the Prize Winner

The contest for the Perkins' prize in declamation was held in Ravinia Memorial Chapel, Wednesday, December 18th, under the auspices of the Department of English. The prize is ten dollars to be awarded at commencement time.

Every number on the program was excellently rendered and reflected untold credit on the participants and the efficient work of the instructor, Assistant Professor Gregory. That the renditions were almost of uniform excellence is evidenced by the fact that it took the three competent judges fully twenty minutes to decide who should bear away the palm. Their ultimatum was that the prize went to Miss Olive Mae Wells, '14, and that honorable mention belonged to Mr. Alonzo D. Smith, '15.

President Newman presided. The program was as follows:

Music: "March Winds" (Macdowell), Miss Ruth Johnson; "A Man Without a Country" (E. E. Hale), Miss Maddee Penn, '14; "A Second Trial" (S. W. Kellogg), Miss Winnie Cargill, '11; "Nominating Woodrow Wilson" (J. W. Wescott), Mr. T. McDonald, '14; "When Malindy Sings" (P. L. Dunbar), Miss OliveMa. Wells, '14; "Violin Solo, Professor Joseph H. Douglass; "Absalom" (N. P. Willis), Mr. Alonzo Smith, '15; "The Polish Boy" (J. G. Whittier), Miss Osceola McCarthy, '13; "The Soul of the Violin" (M. M. Merrill), Miss Lois Johns, '14; "The Raven" (E. A. Poe), Mr. Walter S. Hannah, '14; Music, "Barcarolle" (Graedel), Miss Eva Dykes; Music, "Prelude" (Haus), Miss Cornelia Lampton.

Mr. R. C. Bruce, Mr. M. A. Hawkins, and Mr. L. P. Hill acted as judges.
