Students Watch As Vote Recount Drama Unfolds in Florida

By BRADYTON BOOKE
Hilltop Staff Writer

The heated battle between Vice President Al Gore and Texas Governor George W. Bush over who will be the 41st president of the United States reached a climax last week in Florida. The state, home to some of the nation’s largest black student populations, was the battleground in what many are calling the closest election in 40 years.

As of Thursday, there was still no winner in the state. Florida’s vote was not decided until the night of the election. The networks projected Gore was the winner, but still stood a chance at losing the state.

Questions Remain After Lee Visit

By JENNIFER CAMPOS
Hilltop Staff Writer

Questions surrounding the Federal Bureau of Investigation’s (FBI) recent visit to the Howard University campus remain unanswered. Clarence Thomas, a former advisor to the FBI, visited Howard last Friday to address a question-and-answer session.

While no definite date has been set for the investigation, Lee said, “I have no interest in delaying this case by even one hour.”

After months and months of uncertainty, the FBI’s recent visit was welcomed by some students as a sign that the investigation was “about to begin.” Lee, however, did not specify what the investigation could entail.

“While no definite date has been set for the investigation, Lee said, ‘I have no interest in delaying this case by even one hour.’”

As a result of the FBI’s recent visit, Lee said, “I am optimistic that this matter has finally moved forward.”

Students should call their state attorney general’s office to write their questions anonymously. Students should call the FBI at 1-800-225-5300.

Lyricists ‘Rap’ Controversy Into Competition

By CHANDRA NEL Brown Street Staff Writer

The emcees are the second musical unit of Phi Beta Kappa’s annual rap battle, set for tonight in the Blackboard Ballroom against more than 20 groups from across the country, vying to gain the judges’ seal of approval and advance to the final round.

“Open mic nights gained support in the college community, especially amongst Phi Bartenders,” junior John Smith said.

"The conversations were porn-based on issues of performance and the gain participation of the ‘see feels’ or ‘see feels’ boyfriends to better their image.”

Chapel Rumors Prove False

By Janie E. Spiller

lthough the rumors that the Chapel Rummor Service has been receiving from its student members has been dismissed by the Chaplain, the matters involved are still a topic of conversation amongst students.

The chapel has been part of the Howard University community for a long time. The Southern Baptist tradition played a role in the city's very existence and for this reason, the chapel's history is significant. The service is open to the public, and it is a place where people can come together to reflect on their faith.

The rumors involve aspects such as the sense of community and the feeling of belonging that the chapel provides. Students often feel connected to the chapel during difficult times and it serves as a sanctuary for their feelings.

The chapel is not just a place of worship, but also a community center where events are held. The chapel hosts concerts, lecture series, and other cultural events, making it a hub of activity and a space for reflection.

For many students, the chapel is a place of comfort and solace. It provides a space to connect with others and to engage in spiritual practices. The rumors might be a reflection of the people's longing for these connections amidst the challenges they face in their daily lives.

The chapel, therefore, remains an essential part of the Howard University community, serving as a place of refuge and a source of inspiration for many students.

NIGHT Fights for District Statehood

The thousands of Nader supporters at Sunday's "Air and Space Expo" were rallying behind a man who would lose the presidential race. People who are only supported by Nader's many messages, are then being his last support for DC statehood. Nader's campaign has always been about his influential campaign for DC statehood. Nader's themes are: "Let's Get Von to the Ground" and "The US political system can't do anything."

The Court System/FK the D.C. statehood party and the National Council for DC statehood are working on a list of issues that Nader's followers want to see happen in the 10th District. Nader's theme is that DC residents pay billions of dollars in federal taxes, but carry the burden of living in a city that DC is the only one in the world that doesn't have an elected mayor. "Our system is broken. DC statehood and the US are not required to have an official coordinator for the contest; however, your competition is encouraged to participate in legal, educational, and professional societies repeatedly violate the civil rights of citizens."

Demystifying Politics: The role of lobbyists

By Jean nominees

UW-Madison Madison Barrage

Gentlemen thronging the lobbying industry in Washington, voting and politicians to address serious issues of public safety.

The Center for Responsive Politics, expenditure on federal lobbying, says the lobbyist is a key player in the political process.

"These are people who understand the complex issues involved and are able to draft legislation that is both effective and popular," said the lobbyist. "Without them, legislation might not get written, much less passed. They are the voice of their clients in the halls of Congress and state houses where policy decisions are made."

According to him, the hope of establishing such a collective security system was the primary motivating force for forming the League of Nations after the First World War. He further argues that the dominant purpose of the League of Nations was to prevent any power in possession of armed forces from making or carrying on any war under any pretense. He notes that Article 2 of the Treaty of Versailles, which established the League of Nations, clearly stated that war "shall not be the object of international policy" and that the League of Nations was to act as an "international court of arbitration" to settle disputes and prevent war. He also argues that the League of Nations was not simply a mechanism for arbitration but also had the power to prevent war through the use of economic sanctions and other measures. However, he acknowledges that the League of Nations was ultimately unable to prevent the outbreak of World War II, which he attributes to the League's inability to enforce its decisions and the failure of the world community to support the League's efforts.

Dear Mr. Editor:

As the 2000 Howard University Homecoming Chairman I was offended and appalled at the analysis “Poor Planning Gives Way to Average Week” and the editorials that appeared in the Friday, November 3, 2000 edition of the Hillop. The grade of “C” given to the Homecoming Steering Committee was unfair and did not speak to what really occurred during the 2000 Homecoming festivities. Mr. Editor let me take this opportunity to set a few things straight. For the last few years the Hillop and its editorial staff have placed themselves in the questionable positions of evaluators of student leadership on campus, yet you fail to hold yourselves to the same standards. If I as a student leader held you and your editorial staff to the same unfair standard that you hold the rest of the student leadership, I would render you deficient for your unfounded reports and irresponsible journalism. The first half of your analysis, focused on security concerns, which are not within the scope of the Homecoming Steering Committee’s responsibilities. The analysis goes further to say that the majority of the Homecoming activities that were produced by the Steering Committee were, in fact, well organized, and as the Hillop put it, “winners.” However, you give Homecoming 2000 a grade of “C.” You soon us for not advertising in, what you consider to be, an adequate amount of time. Mr. Editor if you and your staff were responsible reporters of the news and attempted to really find out what planning the Steering Committee was doing then you would have known that we cannot advertise an event until every aspect of that event is confirmed. We worked hard from March 2000 to October 2000(not the few days that you reported) to confirm everything in an adequate amount of time despite major unforeseen obstacles. You can just look on your floor or bulletin board to see how nice those advertisements were. I am sure that you still have plenty. I “dropped” them off to you. We had to produce what we believed were solid events. Mr. Editor, contrary to your report, it was the Homecoming Steering Committee and the work of the Yardfest CoordinatorMr. Claiborne, Chairman that made the appearance of Jay-Z possible. It is unfortunate that even in our time of achievement you, the Hillop attempt to cut us off at the knees. Hillop I charge you with posing as a viable source of information for the Howard student, when you are really operating as a tabloid, bashing many of your stories on hearsay and the unwanted, unneeded opinions of your editorial staff. It is one thing to have an editorial page, but when your paper is saturated with the opinions of a group of editors, who obviously live in a vacuum, you have crossed the line from objectivity to bias. If there is a question as to whether or not the Homecoming Chairman is upset, the answer is unquestionably, YES! Why? It is irrational to me that Homecoming 2000 could receive the same grade as its predecessor. Retrospect when many of their shortcomings and faults were landslide achievements for Homecoming 2000. Hillop, what is your criteria for grading Homecoming and the rest of Howard’s student leaders? Whatever your criteria is it is obviously inconsistent. Hillop you have thrown stones in a glass house that now is shattering all around you. I now take the liberty as Chairman to request, that if you refer to the Steering Committee again in your paper, call us by our new name: THE “A” TEAM. In the spirit of Genesis 2000 Howard University Homecoming Steering Committee I leave you with this: “Judge not that ye be not judged. For what judgment ye judge you shall be judged.” And with what measure ye met it shall be measured to you again.

Missing Absentee Ballots Keep Some Students From Voting

From ABSENTIAL, Al

Election Day is one of the most critical and exciting days of the year. I believe that every vote counts and that every vote should be counted. However, I feel that some students may have misunderstood or failed to vote on Election Day due to the confusion surrounding the process. I would like to address this issue and provide some guidance to help ensure that all students have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote.

The first step in ensuring that students can vote is to understand the process of absentee voting. Absentee voting is available to students who are unable to vote in person on Election Day due to various reasons, such as being out of town or being deployed in the military. Students can request an absentee ballot by contacting their local election office or by using the absentee ballot request form provided by the NAACP, HUSA, and the Office of Student Affairs.

Several students reported receiving absentee ballot request forms, but I am not aware of any students who have not received their ballots. The NAACP, HUSA, and the Office of Student Affairs have requested absentee ballots through Operation Vote Bison, and their office did not receive any complaints about students not receiving their ballots. Students who have not received their ballots should vote by absentee ballot, and students who have received their ballots but have not voted should do so.

I encourage all students to exercise their right to vote. The importance of participation in the democratic process cannot be overstated. It is through our collective action that we can ensure that our voices are heard and that our values are represented.

Pilots and workers were killed in a crash that raised questions about the future of airlines and the airline industry.

The FBI and the National Transportation Safety Board said they were investigating the crash, which occurred shortly after takeoff from Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport.

The crash killed 10 people, including three pilots and two co-pilots. The airline said the plane was en route to New York City when it crashed.

The NTSB said the plane was a Boeing 747-400 that was operated by Delta Air Lines.

The crash occurred at about 11 a.m. EST, and the plane was carrying 200 passengers and crew members on board.

The crash site is located near Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport.

Delta Air Lines said it does not comment on the status of ongoing investigations.

The NTSB said it would release a preliminary report on the crash within 30 days.

The FBI said it is investigating the crash to determine if it was caused by terrorism or Other factors.

The crash was the first large commercial aircraft crash in the United States since 2008.

The FBI said it has received no information indicating that terrorism was involved.

The NTSB said it is investigating the crash to determine if it was caused by mechanical failure or other factors.

Foul Play in Florida

here is something fishy about this whole election. At one point, in Florida Vice President Al Gore was winning by 27,000 votes, then political pundits took the 25 electoral votes from northwestern Florida, placed the state back in the undecided column. Shortly after 8 a.m., news organizations were calling the race over and proclaiming George W. Bush the next president of the United States.

About one hour later, Florida was back in the undecided box. That is why this is fishy. How was there that bad data collected? Does this have anything to do with the fact that Jeb Bush, George Bush’s brother is the governor of Florida?

One thing is sure the voters in Florida will be the determining factor in deciding who will be the next president.

Foul Play on Power Hall

On Election Day, a small percentage of the US population voted for a third-party candidate, a fact that works for a third-party candidate was a wasted one.

May be the independent vote took away from the vote for Gore; they may not see anything.

Many of the people who do not vote for third-party candidates say that they have no time to write a letter to the editor or support their issue on bulletin boards of “Power hall.”

In the election, the independent vote was not only childlike, but more importantly, it is a flier-flinging fop that is substandard grade: “F-,” a flier-flinging fop.

Though unknown to him at the time, Clai­dine is sure the voters in Florida will be the determining factor in deciding who will be the next president.

On the Issue of Absentee Ballots

Dear Hilltop,

First and foremost, I would like to respond to your apologies to those students who felt discriminated against or who were not treated with respect. As we have seen, that is not the case. However, I would like to clarify some issues and understand the reason why many people have turned to the Howard University NAACP Chapter.

The voting process, for all those who are unfamiliar with it, was a very arduous and expensive task that we decided to undertake. In addition, there was the task of faxes and to take up this task. We simply wanted to make the voting process easier for the students. However, I would like to clarify some facts.

One aspect of the political process is the absentee ballot, which is given a large amount of money for postage. We believe that those who are unfamiliar with the student body at Howard University should be made aware of how much is spent on these ballots and the expensive process that goes into making them available.

I believe this was the case in our case. However, I think that the political process is too complex for our students, and therefore we cannot ignore the importance of the process.

We simply wanted to make the voting process easier for the students.

I hope this response will help you to understand the issues and to appreciate the hard work that goes into making the voting process easier for the students.

I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Wildcats Descend on Greene Stadium

Bethune-Cookman College is planning to take on Howard University in its homecoming game on Saturday, November 10. The Bison, led by quarterback Antonio Stanley (27 receptions, 430 yards, 3 touchdowns), are looking to capitalize on the teams' inexperience. Stanley is one of the best kick returners in the conference, according to Coach Ken Crow (43 tackle, 255 yards, 1 TD), and an automatic bid to the I-AA playoffs.

The Bison have demonstrated their offensive prowess, with 480 yards in their game against Howard. They will face a stiff challenge from the Bulldogs, who have averaged 230 yards passing offensively. Howard also boasts a strong defense, led by starters Jermaine Hawthorne (10 tackles, 7 assists, 1 interception) and Vontrae Long (60 tackles, 3 Interceptions, 5 pass deflections).

Spice Life's films are like multi-shaped aspects that are notford to come to an absolute conclusion. Sometimes the pieces get, posing something senseful enough (i.e. She's Got One To Have. Do The Right Thing). Mo Better Blues, Malcolm.Ye. He Got Game, and when the pieces don't quite fit together, leaving the viewer dazed and somewhat disoriented.

Attorney may charge Oklahoma State U. student in MP3 case

By JUSTIN JACOBIUS
Daily Collegian (Oklahoma State U.)

(UWIRE) STILLWATER, Okla. — A 19-year-old Oklahoma State University student who had his computer seized by university police in September of this year, after allegedly distributing copyrighted songs must now play the waiting game as the Payne County District Attorney's office decides whether to file criminal charges against him.

Scott Wickberg, graphics design freshman, had been keeping a file-sharing Web site that allowed users to log in and download most of the 18,000 MP3 songs in his collection.

As an MP, Wickberg had shared illegal files, allowing others to take unwanted songs from him, and might have confided copies of the music to as many as 100 friends — a gross violation of Oklahoma computer law in its most harsh form.

After receiving a tip concerning Wickberg's activities, the Recording Industry Association of America officials, OSU police obtained a search warrant from a Payne County judge, and arrested him. It was Wickberg's Wilkson residence and seized his computer containing thousands of songscopyright infringement.

"On the surface, he appears to have violated copyrights," said Joey Twenty, OSU public relations director. "What he did by helping thousands of people to download songs from the market value of the songs and is a violation of someone's intellectual property.

"We're looking at an open-source mass communication law course or OSU," said Professor Ten from Wickberg's Williams residence as the situation that it was one of the more recent computer crimes.

"It was really unexpected when they came in," said Wickberg, graphics design freshman, had Scou Wickberg seen in Wickberg's room when the police arrived a tip from Recording Industry Association of America officials. "I don't really want to say much more — we want to write for Life & Style. Call Tori Mason@ 202.806.6866.

THE WARPED TOUR: "I'll never put that case on the DA's desk and we're going to have more. We want to go to court on this one.

Showcasing the Fine Taste in Art of Howard's Donors

By THERESA TAYLOR

Hilpap Staff Writer

The School of Fine Arts is proud to present the exhibit "Donors of African Art," a collection of artworks that were donated to the School of Fine Arts. It is designed to showcase the African art forms and artwork that were donations to the School of Fine Arts from 1990 to 2000.

EXHIBITION REVIEW

Patricia L. Williams

"It is a remarkable challenge that demanıed of the Donors of African Art exhibit. The exhibition showed that African art has evolved over time and has been an important part of the cultural tapestry of the world."

THEATER REVIEW

Jonathan L. Brown

"The play was a delightful and entertaining experience that kept the audience engaged and interested throughout. The acting was superb and the play was well-received by the audience."

The Mirror of Sweet Pain

Sugary streets that speak words of tenderness
And amity
The sky smiling down thinking confessed thoughts
And when rains, sins are cleansed and bitter memories are washed away...
So great in God's time we'll see the day...
But until that time...
We have filtered the water of adversity to drink
Shallow, insipid words of apathy we speak
Bitter relations of love awant our hearts
And there's no place like home
Isn't that where it starts?

Even at two, first color I knew was blue
Remember mama wore it well...
