Campaign Spending Not Reflective of Past Years

Student Government Candidates Spends Less Money for Elections

By Janaye L. Miller
Chief Copy Editor

2001 has made its mark as being one of the most controversial campaigns in Howard history.

With one week remaining until nominations for 2001's Student Government Association, the University has spent the most money at $1,900. Bell received 1,000 from an anonymous donor, a $100 donation from his friend and a $500 donation from Johnson.

The University has spent $1,500, $1,000 and $2,000 which Smith has received for their campaigns. To date, Lau­der/Williams has made its $2,000 budgeted.

W e are in week one remaining until elections. General Elections Chair Tori Smith scheduled the first Speak Out of 2001 for today in the black box. Smith was able to get some students to attend the kick off.

The campus has been quiet for the past week. According to Student Voice of Howard University, in a poll of 190 students, 19 percent of students are planning to vote in the Student Government elections.

Two students have been fined for violating the Student Voice of Howard University. A third student was fined for using racist language.

A "AA" pronunciation and mispronunciation are discussed and illustrated. A "AA" pronunciation is something that makes Howard University appear more accessible. Howard University is a prominent institution, and its students are more likely to use this pronunciation. This is a unique characteristic of the university, and its students are proud of it. This pronunciation is also used by the students to express their identity and their connection to the university.

"Tough" English Professor Favorite Among Students

By NORMA BROWN

Tough English Professor

Dr. Lawrence Jackson's teaching style has drawn the admiration of many students. His lectures are very informative about English literature, and because I wanted to teach African American students, he said. "I really enjoy teaching students who come here and teach Howard students." Dr. Jackson inspired me to be a writer and my writing improved because of his influence on me.

University of Mississippi scientists are working on developing a self-complementary pill form.

Melinda Arroyo, a chemistry student, said Professor Joseph, a professor of chemistry and medicinal chemistry, and Thomas Johnson, a visiting professor of chemistry, are working on a new pill form. The pill would contain a compound capable of killing sperm without affecting other parts of the body.

"We're finally developing a compound that is active as inhibitors," Johnson said. "We know that they are not selective. So instead of being able to inhibit lactate dehydrogenase, which is active in the testes and tissue in the urine, we think it would only act systemically and not affect the testes and tissue.

Johnson is attempting to develop a compound that has essential predictability for use in pregnancy. Johnson hopes to design one compound that would stop "to design these compounds we've been trying compounds with different biologic and pharmacologic properties," Johnson said. "But at the same time we don't want to stop other hormones including the hormones that are involved in the process of being reversible."
FAMU President to Retire After 16 Years

By Chris Osborn

Marking the end of his 16-year tenure as President of Florida A&M University, in which he has emphasized increased enrollment and academic quality, President Frederick Humphries said he will step down June 30.

When Humphries became president in June 1985, Florida A & M University's enrollment was 5,000 and decreasing. The school now has more than 12,200 students, making it the nation's largest single-campus historically black university.

Florida A & M has also made strides in academics. Humphries said that more black students earn bachelor's degrees at the school than any other university in the country.

"I'm 65 years old. It's time for some young, vigorous leader who will help the institution further its success," Humphries said in an interview with Blackvoices.com.

Orphyx Stirrs Crowd With Jazz-based Hip-Hop

By Joyce Brown

Hilltop Staff Writer

"I can't wait for this, man!" Malik, a Junior at Georgetown, was excited to see Orphyx live. "They're considered the best, you know. It's the best." So the two, along with a group of about fifty others, settled into corners of Bond's Books and the back of the MLK Library.

Malik removed his backpack and settled down on his Orphyx t-shirt. He didn't walk into the door, however, but rather walked through a crowd of people who were trying to get in. Malik never once looked back, but continued walking through the crowd.

As the performance progressed, it seemed like the best moments of the group were still to come. Malik and the others walked around the room, their feet tapping to the beat. The performance was more than fame and notoriety. The performance was more than the people who were performing. It was more than the music. The performance was more than the Orphyx t-shirts.

Back in the Day: A Dance Celebration of the Heart and Soul

By Aminah Al-Amin

Shire Place, in association with MacDonald's Productions, presented a celebration of the African American experience. The dance has been nominated for a host of awards in New York City. The dance celebrates the rich history and culture of the African American experience. The dance was held at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The performance was well enough to get a good mood, but it was never enough to get a good deal. The performance was more than the people who were performing. It was more than the music. The performance was more than the Orphyx t-shirts.

"Back in the Day" highlighted the emotions of African Americans by taking step into the past, present, and future while exploring the diverse range of life. Each movement was on top of another. It seemed as if the performers were able to create a high-energy, high-flying tradition of dance, movement, and music which conveyed the heart and strength of a winning performance.

Although the audience had a rich cultural experience, everyone seemed to valour the show. The show showed "The Queen of Soul," which displayed one of the most popular moments for the audience. The audience seemed to be enjoying the show throughout the performance.

The "Queen of Soul" performed a song that expressed the growth of spirit and culture. The final piece, "Grandmother's Song," which was the conclusion to the performance, was as if it were a dance of the day.

The McNair family, Viola, the spinfire mother of the three Price children, and the Price family with problems that is in the focus, have one of the most famous names of the United States. However, the family has one of the most diverse groups of people to work with. The McNair family's involvement in the community helps them to get to know people.

Ronke Luke-Boone is a designer, author, and writer. She is the founder and president of the Royal Creations Inc., a fashion and design company. She has been a part of the industry for a long time, but has only been in the business for a short while.

The book is not only a celebration of dance and culture, but it is also a celebration of the McNair family. The McNair family is a loving family.

Bison Men Have Ten Victories

By CAMILLE L. MCHART

SPORTS EDITOR

Coping through the clutch is the main area of the offense for Tswana.

The team was held in check by the defense, the main key to this was Abdulrahman Hassan, who led the game in scoring with 24 points, in the second half. Hassan was able to get the ball on the offensive end, and he was able to make a basket to extend the lead to 59-43.

The game was won on the free throw line by Ali Abdullah, who sank 6-6 in the second half.

Howard University scored 40 points in the first half, but Morgan State was able to keep it close, scoring 28 points. The Lady Bison outscored the Bears in the second half, 20-15.

Morgan State was led by Shakira Smith's 19 points, while Howard had four players in double figures.

The Lady Bison along with South Carolina State was able to extend their win streak to 10 two.

The Lady Bison did not fold. Down 50-43, they came back to win the game. They led by 55-52, and they were able to hold on for a win. Shakira Smith had 7 points during that span. Then the Lady Bison would attempt to put the game away.

The Lady Bison had a 14-4 run to put the game away. Essence Coogins' three-pointer made it 46-44 early in the second half. Howard did not fold. Down 50-43, Morgan State went on a 12-2 run to take a 55-52 lead. Shakira Smith had 7 points during that time.

Charles Washington Gets His Due, Proves He’s More Than Just an Athlete

By James Hamiton, Hilltop Staff Writer

Many athletes receive recognition here at Howard University, but not everyone receives the recognition that they or others may deserve. Charles Washington is a fine example of a humble athlete and a truly player who has been overlooked and underappreciated by the university community.

Charles Washington, a 20-year-old music performance major, has been a member of the Howard University swimming team since his freshman year. Although he has just been swimming at Howard for three years, he is still the same person he was when he was nationally ranked as one of the fastest swimmers in the country.

In addition to his accomplishments as a swimmer, Charles has begun a successful career off the pool. Some of his most recent swimming awards include holding records for having the fastest time in both the 500 and 1000 yard races. Washington was also recognized as the most outstanding freshman swimmer by his coach, Roy Lewis.

In the future, Charles, also known as “Chuck” by his friends and family, hopes to create a name for himself in swimming. “I might consider playing for another college after graduation,” Charles stated.

When asked about his future plans, Charles never imagined that he would be able to play at Howard University. “I was just stuck with me.”

Charles received recognition of his achievements, but that is up in the air for now.”

Freshman Waits For Her Turn to Shine

By JOEL ALEXANDER

Ralph Smith Jr.

For some freshman, playing their first collegiate game is sometimes a very big deal to swim. However, senior, Simone Agee, doesn’t think that it is necessary to cheer her teammates on from the sidelines. Standing at 5’8, Simone Agee is no stranger to success. Agee has been swimming since she was five years old, and has won numerous awards throughout her career. Although she hasn’t been able to participate in the community or her school, Charles Washington, a trumpet player in the Howard University swimming team since his freshman year, has a 101 of dreams for the women’s basketball team. “I hope that on or off the court they always come to me for advice. As everybody contributes to the team, Simone believes that everybody contributes and plays their roles on the court. “Everybody knows their role on the team and it is very important that you play your part.”

Wrestling Team Falls to Duquesne

By JOEL ALEXANDER

The Howard University Wrestling Team gave a very valiant effort, but came up short against Duquesne on Wednesday, Feb. 1.

With an attendance of 225, the final score was 27-7. These were 9 matches and Howard Wrestling Assistant Coach Albert dos Santos led the way, with all 9 matches won.

Despite their loss, Howard Wrestling Coach Ed Hill, the SID here at Howard, “When you run up against a team like Tennessee, it is very tough to overcome.”

However, for freshman guard Simone Agee, “I also feel like I play defense very seriously, Charles still drives time to time on his other hobbies. Washing­ton, a trumpet player in the Howard University jazz band, began approaching music when he was in elem­ents school. Charles explains, “When I was in elem­ents school, everyone wanted to play an instru­ment. I fail if I don’t have a rhythm, then I just stick with music.”

Charles never imagined that he would continue to play the trumpet throughout his univer­sity career. He also never thought that he would have the opportunity to play with famous jazz musicians, such as Wynton Marsalis, Grover Washington, and Clark Terry.

Charles Washington has worked hard to achieve all that he has done, but money has allowed many of these accomplishments to go unrec­ognized. Although this is true, Charles can surely say that with all of these awards, friends and family can be their way to encourage him.

“I’ve been playing basketball the last 5 years and in the last magazine will be featured in the high school.”

Winning by the rules, Agee feels she is no stranger to success. “I also play defense very seri­ously for 1he Bison is Seye Aluko. She also had a season high of 6 rebounds on Janu­ary 13, 2001 against Florida A&M and in January 18, 2001 against University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Standing at 6’1, Aluko who ended the game with 18 points, 12 rebounds, 5 steals by a forward, may nuss the free throw line. Aluko, a guard, has been playing just as much as she can.

As a guard, Seye has always played hard and smart. It is her responsibility to help the point guard out and play to see if that those plays are not coming in for a good. Because she always plays hard and smart, it is her responsibility to help the point guard out and play to see if that those plays are not coming in for a good.

“Simone has been here this season,” Armour said.

“Simone is a leader off of the court. She has a season high of 6 rebounds on January 13, 2001 against Florida A&M and in January 18, 2001 against University of Maryland Eastern Shore. As the season comes to an end, the Howard Wrestlers have two more home matches. The Howard University Wrestling Team will face Slippery Rock at the Eastern Shore on Friday, March 5-6 in Richmond, VA. Malcolm X, MLK, and Cowboys

MICHAEL WINFIELD

When I was a child, I remember the newspaper in my hands, the way the pages felt between my fingers, and the stories I would read. I would spend hours in the library, pouring over the pages, searching for answers to the questions that were always on my mind. I was curious about the world around me, and the stories I read helped me to understand it in ways I never thought possible.

I remember reading about Malcolm X and MLK, two figures who were integral to the Civil Rights Movement. I was fascinated by their lives and their struggles, and I was moved by their dedication to fighting for justice and equality.

But there is one story that has always stood out to me. It is the story of the Race for the Future, a race that took place in 1963. It was a race that would determine the future of the Civil Rights Movement.

The race began in Selma, Alabama, and it was a race that would test the resolve of the participants. It was a race that would bring together people from all walks of life, and it was a race that would change the course of history.

I remember the excitement of the day, the energy in the air, and the determination on the faces of the participants. It was a race that was unlike any other, and it was a race that would leave a lasting impact on the world.

Today, I think about that race and all that it represents. I think about the courage and the sacrifice of the participants, and I am inspired by their dedication to fighting for justice and equality.

I am grateful for the stories that I read as a child, and I am grateful for the stories that continue to be written today. These stories have helped me to understand the world around me, and they have inspired me to be a better person.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I just wanted to comment on the statements you made in your recent column on Black History Month. I think it's important to reflect on the achievements and struggles of our ancestors, but we also need to focus on the present and the future.

Historians have written that Black History Month was created in 1976 by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, but its origins can be traced back to the 1920s. The purpose of the month is to recognize the contributions of African Americans to the history of the United States.

It's true that we should celebrate the achievements of African Americans, but we also need to focus on the present and the future. We need to recognize the challenges that African Americans face today, and we need to work towards a more just and equitable society.

I think it's important to have a month dedicated to Black History Month, but we also need to be mindful of the fact that this is not a one-time event. We need to be committed to fighting for justice and equality throughout the year, and we need to work towards a society where all people are treated with respect and dignity.

Thank you for your column, and I look forward to seeing more stories about the contributions of African Americans.

Sincerely,
