Winning in School of Communications

By Student Life Staff Writer

Green Whitney and running mate Ashley McFarlin won student government president and vice president elections for the School of Communications. Whitney and McFarlin garnered 87 percent of the vote.

"It's been a long election season and I'm excited to have it over with," Whitney said.

The Wright/McFarlin victory comes after a long campaign from both candidates.

"We're looking forward to working with the administration and making changes," McFarlin said.

Wright has been involved in student affairs for three years, serving as the president of the Student Life Advisory Board, the Student Senate, and the student body government. McFarlin has been involved in student affairs for four years, serving as the Student Senate president, the Student Life Advisory Board president, and the student body government vice president.

"I'm excited to continue the work that has been done and to bring new ideas to the table," Wright said.

The Wright/McFarlin victory comes after a contentious election season that included a major controversy over the School of Communications' future. The School of Communications is one of the university's oldest and most prestigious programs, but it is facing budget cuts and potential layoffs.

"We're committed to making sure that the School of Communications remains a vibrant and important part of Howard University," Wright said.

Affiliated Health To Host Fundraising Dinner For Scholarships

By Mariya Brown
Hilary Shail Wein

Invited student members from throughout the College of Allied Health Sciences were guests of the Scandrett Disabled Scholarship Fund during the 25th Anniversary Gala April 27 at the Grand Hyatt. The event was a fundraiser to support the scholarship fund at the College of Allied Health Sciences.

"This event will be the start of much needed revenue that provides financial assistance for minority students who are pursuing careers in allied health professions," said Arthur Scandrett, founder of the scholarship.

"The Scandrett Disabled Scholarship Fund was established by the late Arthur Scandrett, a Howard University alumnus who passed away in 2000. The scholarship was created to support minority students who are pursuing careers in allied health professions. The scholarship provides financial assistance for the tuition and fees of enrolled minority students."

Nancy Hobbie, a member of the Scholarship Fund, said that the Scholarship Fund has been very successful in providing financial assistance to minority students.

"The Scholarship Fund has been very successful in providing financial assistance to minority students. We have been able to support many students over the years."

Scandrett said that the Scholarship Fund has been successful in supporting minority students. He said that the Scholarship Fund is important because it provides financial assistance to minority students who are pursuing careers in allied health professions.

"We are very grateful for the support of the Scholarship Fund. We have been able to support many students over the years."

The Scholarship Fund is a 501(c)(3) organization and tax-deductible contributions are accepted.

President, and his supervising administrators, and staff persons to take the initiative to engage in a meaningful recycling program. This is not just good for our environment because it will also lead to a more sustainable and responsible university. It is our responsibility to ensure that our university continues to thrive and grow into the future, and that means taking steps to reduce our carbon footprint and prevent waste from going to landfills. We are responsible for the environment, and we need to take action now to make recycling a priority. Conclusion: Recycling is not just good for the environment; it's good for us. It's time for Howard University to take the lead in this important issue and encourage everyone to participate in a meaningful recycling program.

NCAA Title Ignites Fiery Party at Duke University

Throughout the night, an occasional clash between members of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and other students marked the course of events. Finally, members of Phi Kappa Psi, including several who had been involved in the fracas, attended a gathering to offer their support. The university之声 in the footsteps of Phi Kappa Psi when they tried to get a new position, and the university's decision has come as a shock to many students. "We are not going to stand by and watch as Phi Kappa Psi continues its harassing behavior," said university president John Skipper.
As a young woman, I often feel that I am not being taken seriously in my professional life. Now, for the sake of eliminating stereotypes, I would like to share a personal story. I was recently offered a job at a large corporation, but I turned it down because I felt that the "glass ceiling" was too high. I put in a lot of effort, and I persisted, but I was not given the opportunity to advance. It is not that I did not meet the qualifications; I am sure that I did. I think that the issue is one of perception. To simply put it, I am not seen as a person who is capable of taking on a large responsibility. I am sure that I could handle it, but I am not given the chance to prove it. I think that this is a common problem among women who are looking to advance in their careers. It is not that the women who are in these positions are not competent; it is just that they are not given the opportunity to show their abilities. I think that this is a problem that we need to address as a society. We need to create a culture where women are given the chance to prove their abilities and are not limited by stereotypes.

Howard Students Bring the F.Y.E.A.

By Tasha Alexander

Howard Hilltop Staff Writer

Despite the odds of whether a show will be first-class, physique, or whatever else you'll not the same from every fashion show, this year's F.Y.E.A. Show was a reflection of the students' and coordinators' hard work.

According to Pittman, "We wanted the show to be something special, something to be remembered by the people who attended. The students put in a lot of time and effort, and they did an excellent job.

The show featured a variety of designs, from elegant gowns to casual outfits, and everything in between. The models walked confidently down the runway, strutting their stuff and displaying their creativity.

The models were all Howard University students, and they were chosen for their unique style and talent. Some of them had previous experience walking the runway, while others were new to modeling.

The show was a tremendous success, and the students were thrilled with the outcome. "I'm really proud of what we accomplished," said Pittman. "We did everything we set out to do, and we did it well.

The show was not only a fashion event, but also a celebration of the students' hard work and dedication. It was a proud moment for Howard University, and it increased our school's visibility in the community.

The show was well-attended, with many guests showing up to support the students. The atmosphere was electric, with music playing and everyone in a festive mood.

The show concluded with a fashion and beauty bash, where guests could mingle with the models and purchase items from the collection.

In conclusion, the Howard students' F.Y.E.A. Show was a tremendous success, and it demonstrated the students' talent and hard work. The show was a great example of how a fashion show can bring together a community, and it left a lasting impression on everyone who attended.
