MANUSCRIPT DIVISION

Scope Note

This collection of scrapbooks compiled by Thomas H.R. Clarke clearly discusses the social and economic aspects of the Negro in America, with particular interest in the citizens of Washington, D.C. and the Deep South. The collection spans the period 1904-1947, totals 1 « linear feet.

The strong emphasis of the collection is the clippings of the columns written by Thomas H.R. Clarke in The Guardian, Boston, MA. These clippings are on race relations prominent Negroes and their organizations.

The information contained in the Scrapbook #2 attempts to depict, through political cartons and caricatures, the foreign policies of China, Japan and Russia evolving into the Russo-Japanese War of 1904. Also contained intermittently throughout the other four scrapbooks is an infinitesimal amount of biographical information about Thomas H.R. Clarke.

A federal government employment card supplies some vital statistics, letters and isolated newspaper clippings offer additional data concerning Clarke's work in the federal government and in various organizations throughout Washington, D.C.

The final item of interest is the manuscript of Virginia's contribution to the Republic written by Clarke. The manuscript briefly gives an account of the history of Virginia and its contributions to the building of the republic. This manuscript discloses a variety of subjects on which Clarke wrote.
