The European Court of Human Rights has ruled that the detention of an individual in a prison for up to 18 months is inadmissable except in cases of genuine security concerns. The court also stated that any action that is intended to prevent the death of an individual must be proportionate and carried out in accordance with the law. The decision was based on the individual’s right to life and freedom from discrimination. If the court finds that the detention is not justified, it may order the individual’s release or order an interim measure to prevent the death of the individual. Haynes Speaks in Chapel

By Stephanie Crouch
Coordinating Writer

Appraiser rang, and heart felt testimonies were shouted at Reverend Fredrick L. Haynes III brought hundreds of students to their feet with his sermon on finding security within the Lord. Haynes, senior pastor of the Friendship-West Baptist Church in Dallas, Texas, held one of the largest church congregations in Dallas. He took the opportunity of speaking at the Messa to convey an important message. Haynes presentations to do anything and everywhere to fill this void, but little do they know that their Lord is the only remedy. We need your valued support.

The closing remarks from Haynes received a standing ovation from the audience. Even Dean Bernard L. Richardson found himself Trent speeching outside of Haynes's sermon. "You are exactly what go up in response to a sermon that powerful," Richardson said. "It was simply an awesome experience.

Changing the perspective, Haynes focused on insecurity on a national level. He said in light of last month's terrorist attacks, many individuals are insecure about participating in events such as flying and tending the nation.

"However, everyone needs to have faith in the Lord and remember that he is our refuge, strength and ever present help in trouble. Haynes said. "And in trusting faith in the Lord, no weapon formed against you shall prosper." Haynes added.

Haynes concluded his sermon by saying that final security is a result of trust in the Lord. This conclusion allows you to believe that you belong to someone bigger than both you and I. And in knowing this, Haynes said, you will be assured that the Lord will protect you in even the most trying times.

The closing remarks from Haynes received a standing ovation from the audience. Even Dean Bernard L. Richardson found himself Trent speeching outside of Haynes's sermon. "You are exactly what go up in response to a sermon that powerful," Richardson said. "It was simply an awesome experience.

DC POST WORKER ANTHRAX

Washington, D.C. - An unidentified DC post worker is being treated at Inova Fairfax Hospital in Falls Church, Va., airlifted to a antibiotics, saying that anthrax might be in his lungs. He is in contact with the bacteria at the post office, its part of the commutation line that he was assigned to do. Dr. Dubois was hospitalized early Friday with a flu-like illness. The global story is the first person to be diagnosed with a serious form of anthrax. Seven other people have been diagnosed with the less serious cutaneous or skin form of anthrax. The anthrax that person is suspected to have been exposed to is in the town of Fall Creek, N.Y. where there is a large of sheep. On Monday, NIAID confirmed that at least three-quarters of the cases that have been described as anthrax are in the Fall Creek area.

4-WAY DEATH PENALTY

Springfield, Ill. - The Illinois Supreme Court ordered executions of Richard Martin, Paul Green, Larry Howard and James Foster from the Illinois State Penitentiary in Charleston, Ill., to be carried out. The four men were convicted of sexually abusing girls ages 11 to 14 and were sentenced to death in 1985. The court did not set a date for the executions.

(U-WIRE COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The woman who was attacked in the U. of Maryland's Lurie Student Center last Friday told the hostel's dean that she felt threatened by people who asked her if she was gay, but she vowed she would not silence her on the issue of gay rights.

Class of 2001 Involuntary Detainees

Washington, D.C. - The Department of Justice is planning a national investigation into the detention of students in the Class of 2001. The investigation is expected to focus on the lives of students who were detained at the WTO protests in Seattle.

University Police spokesman Capt. Paul O'Leary said the university's investigation is "an ongoing process" and that the university will not comment on the case until it is completed.

Christine Dennis, a senior at the University of Maryland, said she was surprised to hear that the university had not taken any action against the person who made the comment.

Stephanie told police she was pushed to the ground and then knelt. Police said they are investigating the attack, which occurred about 7 p.m. on Wednesday in the area of the student center. The student said she was attacked by a group of people who confronted her and demanded that she leave the building.

Midnight Madness Marks the Start of The Bison Basketball Season

By SHELLY L. HILL and JON SAWYER

Hilltoppers University celebrated the beginning of the men's and women's basketball season with Midnight Madness on Saturday. The event is the first major event before the season begins, and serves as a kick-off for the team and the fans.

When Washburn opened the season, the women's team was introduced. The Washburn student body emphasized the team's positive outlook and passion for the sport. "We are looking forward to having a great season, and we are definitely looking forward to the support of the Washburn University student body as well," said Webb. "We want the students to know that we are not just going to try,

It's Time for A Change, in Attitude and Effort

You know that my whole college writing project is about the Wizards never going to be a contender in the East next year, but the Wizards' omen seems to be the worst team in the history of the NBA. They look to be the favorite to win the NBA title. The team is off for all the playoffs have great athletic affiliations, the team's depth, and the support of the team's fundraising efforts.

"Last year we had a lot more structure in our team. There were a lot of expectations for us, and we didn't deliver," said Webb. "This year, we're looking to improve the team.

Washburn's offensive game plan will be a better one, but we still have a lot to work with. The team also has a lot of depth and rebounding this season." Webb emphasized that the team's success will be a joint effort. "We have to work together to have a successful season," said Webb.

Washburn's defensive game plan will be to force turnovers and pressure the ball. The team also has a lot of depth and rebounding this season.

From Hell changes The Face of Brothers' Films

By John C. Cominotto
Staff Writer

He was fears and the darkness, the epitome of evil, atnavbarly versions of the devil. Before O.J. Simpson and Jeffrey Dahmer, there was Jack the Ripper, the flayed face of the twentieth century.

In the fall of 1888, over a span of two weeks, Jack the Ripper committed five horrendous murders in London, causing the whole city to run amuck with rumors and madness. He was never caught, nor was any trace of this arch-villain uncovered after all these years.

A classic tale of whodunit about the best of the Jack-the-Ripper crop, From Hell uses John May's Deep Six as an option tocking Scotland Yard, and is framed Athelstone and Heather Graham as Mary Kelley one of the protagonists who find herself on the Ripper's list.

Directed by Allen and Albert Hughes (Dead Presidents, Menace II Society) From Hell is a Victorian-themed London story of Whitehall.

The movie offers something new in the horror genre of today, mystery. While the horror films are usually caught up in trying to get the viewer to cover their eyes from the gore, the Hughes bro-thers attempt to make the viewing more of an effort to solve the crime. With no intro and less than a ten minute teaser, the movie is up and ready to run.

From Hell brings the legend of Jack the Ripper to the big screen. What might be the biggest surprise of all is that the film that brought two weepies on the heels of black photo life, the Brothers' Hughes have taken their horror to the next level, the film is the same magnitude as Menace II Society or Dead Presidents, only now instead of showing black people struggling with random violence, promiscuous sex, and heavy drug usage, these problems are translated into the world of white people over a hundred years ago.

Yet the most recent of From Hell's way the film processes that rare com-bination of sophisticated art and big budget mainstream. From Hell's responsibility is to bring the London's Festival white比 the same standards that would win it. Much like the murderers of the Ripper himself, the Hughes brothers have created a masterpiece that will surely carry any tourist looking for something new to see.

What Is Love?

If this isn't love, then why do I feel it in my heart, my mind, my soul, and my heart? If this isn't love, then why do I feel it in my heart, my mind, my soul, and my heart? If this isn't love, then why do I feel it in my heart, my mind, my soul, and my heart? If this isn't love, then why do I feel it in my heart, my mind, my soul, and my heart? If this isn't love, then why do I feel it in my heart, my mind, my soul, and my heart? If this isn't love, then why do I feel it in my heart, my mind, my soul, and my heart?

No, not me, you. I have never loved you as much as I do now. You are the only terrestrial version of heaven I've ever seen and you are the only terrestrial version of heaven I've ever seen and you are the only terrestrial version of heaven I've ever seen and you are the only terrestrial version of heaven I've ever seen and you are the only terrestrial version of heaven I've ever seen.

On knees I use in prayer

Brushing my face

Showing me how

I whisper my love song to you whenever I have the strength to breathe deeply and even more power to exhale

You never hear me through

If this isn't love, then why do I feel it in my heart, my mind, my soul, and my heart?

Nectar of my Worship

I use the term teacup because as it drink of the gods of the gods

You are the only terrestrial version of heaven I've ever seen and...

I worship you

On knees I use in prayer

All the while you stand, wait in front of me,

Brushing my face

Guiding my prayer

Nordic myth is baked

Even though your soul suffices my own

I whisper my love song to you whenever I have the strength to breathe deeply and even more power to exhale

You never hear me though

You are always too loud yourself

Mostly my breath is taken

You might wish through any of my soul and travel to dim recesses

You stand me up

Fix your pants

And say, 'You know we're just friends.'

But foolishly I think...

On these knees I pray again.

"Don't Sweat the Small Stuff"

Although University-sponsored events, such as tonight's Midnight Madness and other social gatherings, are supposed to provide outlets for each other's company and entertainment, too many times these events end in tragedy. Last year's Midnight Madness was just that, chaos. With students fighting in the Burr, others igniting flames in order to activate the sprinkler system in the Towers, what began as an enjoyable event turned into real midnight madness.

And with the recent murder of a visitor on campus, in front of hundreds of students, during last weekend's Homecoming festivities, we must stop and say, "Enough is enough!" As students of higher education, we should understand the implications of our collective social actions. In a country where, now, our biggest fear is fear itself, we should be able to find sanctity in our cultural institutions. Let this event end's tragedy that transpired in front of the East Towers showed that we are far from this positive end. The negative results of this violence are inevitable and long lasting. The unity that should exist does not, and, as a result, we find ourselves fighting and killing each other over things of little or no real importance. These counterproductive actions are just that. With all that plagues our direct community, violence only fuels the fire of negativity.

At too many events, whether they are concerts, annual celebrations or just Saturday nights at local clubs, tempers run unnecessarily and dangerously high. Fights that begin as small disputes escalate into street gun battles. Our actions are serious. The results can be grave. Lives are at jeopardy. When will we understand the importance of life and the trivialness of our "beef?"

In an attempt to both cope with and to recognize the tragedy that occurred, students placed flowers on the brick wall where Tayzio was shot. However, University maintenance removed the memorial, disposing of it with the rest of the trash outside. If it wasn't for the power of "word of mouth" and the couple of articles written on the incident, the University might have been able to sweep something else under its rug and forget that it happened.

Dispute Over Origins of "Fk" Continue

Dear Editor,

Foul language was a topic of discussion in the November 10, 1994 issue of THE HILLTOP in the last column, "Astonished Editor." That was a real shock. I had to read that twice to believe it.

It seems to me that "Fk" has been around for a long time. There is no need to be "astonished" about it.

Athletes Should Get No Special Treatment

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the "Athletes Need More" article in the November 17, 1994 issue of THE HILLTOP.

I think that athletes should not be given any special treatment. They should be treated just like anyone else at Howard University.

Sincerely,
