WHO'S WHO IN OUR FACULTY

C. CARNOT EVANS, D.D.S.

C. CARNOT EVANS: The name is indicative of a common dictate in the College of Dentistry, because it is euphonious with "See Carnot." Our Superintendent of Clinics is our official "trouble shooter."

Born in Annapolis, Maryland, Dr. Evans' early years were spent in Washington, D. C., where he received his academic and professional training. He entered the College of Dentistry at Howard University in 1919 and varied his scholastic routine by spending the summer of 1922 as an undergraduate interne at Forsyth Dental Infirmary for Children, in Boston, Mass. He was graduated from Howard in the Class of 1923, and entered private practice in Washington, in 1924.

DR. C. CARNOT EVANS

Dr. Evans has served as a clinician in the dental clinics of the District of Columbia Public Schools (1926-29), and has attended a post graduate course in Prosthetic Dentistry at the University of Toronto (1927). He was appointed Superintendent of Clinics and Instructor in Dentistry at Howard in 1929 and, in this capacity, is serving arduously and well.

Placid of expression and of a retiring nature Dr. Evans is capable, at rare intervals, of an explosive wit which usually leaves his audience greatly non-plussed. Due to a happy marriage to Mary Dulany of Washington and the blessings of Providence, in the form of his young son, Carnot, Jr., he finds the acme of happiness in his home. He is a member of the Robert T. Freeman Dental Society of Washington, D. C., and of the National Dental Association.

EMMETT J. SCOTT, B.S., D.M.D.

DR. EMMETT J. SCOTT first saw the light of day at Tuskegee, Alabama, and, at a very early age, was brought by his parents to Richmond, Va. He received his elementary and high school training in the Richmond Public Schools and at Wayland Academy; and was graduated with the B.S. degree from Virginia Union in 1922. Dr. Scott was graduated with the D.M.D. degree (Cum Laude) from Harvard University Dental School in 1925, standing second in a class of thirty-five. Since graduation he has had the following professional connections: Assistant in Prosthetic Dentistry at Harvard (1925-26); private practice in Boston, Mass. (1925-29); Internship, Forsyth Dental Infirmary for Children; Orthodontic Technician, Forsyth Dental Infirm, and Instructor in Dentistry, Howard University (1929 to the present time).

There are few men in the dental profession in whom scholarship, artistic sense, and technical skill are so happily combined as in Dr. Scott. Add to this trinity his suavity of manner, and you have a personality which bears the earmarks of a real academician.

Dr. Scott joined the dental faculty at a very fortunate time, during the reorganization of the clinic and staff, when his varied talents were freely drawn upon. Before the expansion of the staff to its present proportions, he was called upon to assume duties that would tax the resources of more than one ordinary man. At present he is occupied with Oral Anatomy and Orthodontia. In the latter, he has done pioneer work at Howard in placing the clinical aspect of the subject on a working basis.

Dr. Scott has written a treatise, "Prevention of Malocclusion," which has been published in Dental Items of Interest and in THE DENTOSCOPE, and, has given clinics before the National Dental Association and the Robert T. Freeman Dental Society. He is a member of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Omicron Kappa Upsilon, the National Dental Association, the Robert T. Freeman Dental Society, and the Old Dominion Dental Society (honorary). He is happily married to Loretta E. Barlow of Boston, Massachusetts.
