Controversy Surrounds Selection of New Hilltop Editor-In-Chief

The validity of the Hilltop’s Policy Board’s selection of the Editor-in-Chief for the 2002-2003 has sparked vigorous debate on campus. The Board was divided on its decision, with some members expressing concern over the lack of student input and the nepotism of having a former Editor-in-Chief’s son selected for the position. The practice of selecting the Editor-in-Chief from a single candidate has raised questions about the need for broad representation on the Board.

Editor-In-Chief Selection

The policy board’s decision has led to questions about the future of the newspaper and its mission. With the current Editor-in-Chief, there are concerns about the lack of student involvement and the need for a fresh perspective.

A Closer Look at the Candidates

Christopher Windham: Policy Board 2000-2001

Lauren Anderson: The Hilltop

Our View

The Hilltop Policy Board needs to redisclose its commitment to fairness as well as its responsibility to promoting freedom of expression.

Serving Our Intended Purpose

Since 1894, The Hilltop has served as a medium for students to express their opinions and concerns. The newspaper has been a valuable voice for the Howard University community.

The newspaper is an essential part of the student experience, providing a platform for students to discuss important issues and express their views. It is a critical component of the independent press, which is necessary for a healthy democracy.

Lack of Student Representation on Tuition Rates and Review Committee Concerns HUSA Policy Board

Malikah Anderson

The Howard University Student Association Policy Board is faced with a significant challenge in fulfilling its mission. The Board must ensure that its decisions reflect the interests and priorities of the student body. However, recent actions by the Board have raised concerns about the lack of student representation.

Exchange Programs Offers Change of Venue

By Aleks Davis

Does it sound like a foreign exchange student would be a friend of yours? Because of her friend, Howard, Whitler wasn't too thrilled with her study abroad experience. Whitler chose to attend Duke for a change of pace and it is also going against the expectations of the students she works with, according to the exchange program coordinator.

"I like to attend Duke for a change of pace and it is also going against the expectations of the students she works with, according to the exchange program coordinator."

"Yes, I just wanted to try and study in a place with a different voice."

Although Whitler was initially a bit reluctant to attend Duke, she believes it is a good overall exchange program. Whitler studied German and attended the Duke University programs in exchange agreement with the National German Exchange Program. Although Whitler was initially a bit reluctant, she stays in touch with other exchange students that have gone to Howard University and keeps in contact with her former Duke students.

The Office of International Student Managers (OIS) serves the Howard University student body, which is a total of 147 students and consists of all 50 states and other countries.

"The Civil Rights industry is perpetuating itself with annual events while negating the history that are funny and polite, and I applaud that. But I feel we need to celebrate our history."

"We must continue to do our own research and take the initiative to study their history."

"There is a lot of history that goes beyond so some sugar-coated HBO stories."

"As far as her opinion of the Black presence in the film was concerned, she stated, "I also felt that he could have been the role of the hero in the film industry."

"Understand not only the images, but what they mean."

Howard Students continued to voice their opinions about the African American movement in the film. Dawson also mentioned the there are scholars on Howard's campus who are not satisfied with the way the film was portrayed. Dawson also commented on the need for African Americans to go beyond the film. "Understand not only the images, but what they mean."

"It was a tremendous win for us as a team, and because of the fact that [we] were focused," said Bison coach Frank Allen. "It was just a great night and a great team effort and I'm really proud of each and every one of our players. This team has done a great job throughout the year because we've only lost one game, and I think that's what makes us special."

In addition to the outstanding performance of the backcourt, Thomas scored 13 points and five rebounds. Sophomore forward Zeke Alexander came off the bench and played 22 minutes, scoring five points and grabbing six rebounds.

"I think it's also a key role for the Bison to be in the fifth most politically competitive state in the country, when the elections are clear and the stakes are high."

However, some student leaders believe that the actions of these leaders are inappropriate for the Hilltop Policy Board's policies to promote freedom of expression. Advocates for the next steps in the revision process believe that the Board's decisions may infringe on candidates' rights to freedom of expression. However, the next steps in the revision process will continue to be a unified cause, one worth fighting for. If you get the hard-fought victory, you will be confident because if you think about it, you'll probably vote differently.

"We're just doing our best. We're just trying to get the best out of the game and win the ball game."

Apathy Rises Amongst Student Body as Prospective Leaders Solicit Votes

"It's not a good thing when we're playing as a team, and because of the fact that [we] were focused," said Bison coach Frank Allen. Georgetown's African American Civil War Memorial and the American Civil War Memorial will be the two new national memorials dedicated to African Americans who served in the Civil War. The first and only national memorial dedicated to the colored troops in the Civil War, the African American Civil War Memorial was unveiled at the U.S. Capitol on May 16, 1995. Designed by Kehinde Wiley, the memorial stands on the mall, facing the Lincoln Memorial. The largest and most ambitious national memorial ever erected by the National Park Service, the African American Civil War Memorial is dedicated to the colored troops who served in the Civil War.

Many hip-hop artists feel that it is not their job to parent children by only saying what is "good" for them to hear in their music.

According to Hakim Hasan, the group, co-founder, CIPHER, which "We're concerned about lyricists being culturally responsible," Hasan.

CIPHER feels that with the proper information, hip-hop artists will make better decisions as far as their lyrical content is concerned.

What We Don't Know Can Hurt Us

Since the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, numerous measures have been taken to protect our national security. Some of these measures are pragmatic, while others are fraught with issues that are irrevocable. The Bush administration's use of Middle-Eastern tactics has left New York City in a state of chaos. Currently, 30 bills are pending in Congress that are attempting to stem whatever the government perceives as a threat to the federal Freedom of Information Act of 1967. It's an off-year election year. Big Brother is here, pervasive in our society with all an all-seeing eye and tight lips.

Telephone calls are being monitored by various agencies, especially those pertinent to science and technology. It was recently disclosed that the Central Inteligence Agency (CIA) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) are keeping databases full of valuable information. Books are disappearing from libraries, entire websites are down, in fact, the National Library of Medicine is considering new data that can be obtained only through the library by using the Freedom of Information Act. The library is no longer even selling its detailed digital maps on the Internet. Big Brother is expanding all information he feels a potential terrorist may utilize to expedite a digital biological incursion into our society. This isn't mere paranoia; it's real.

Information as possible if we are to continue making advances in technology. It may cause us to do more damage to ourselves. Ignorance is not bliss. It may give birth to inchoate in various fields that we need progressive advancement. It may cause us to do more damage to ourselves than the terrorist acts.

Our View:

Amendments to the Freedom of Info. Act need to be practical enough to protect us from ourselves.

In a few weeks the U.S. government will announce the new set guidelines for what kind of information is obtainable and what types will be retained for national security purposes. It's understandable and important that during "war time," the "enemy" doesn't know our strategy and that we don't make our privileges vulnerable providing them with information that they can use against us. But there are things that the American average has a right to know. For instance, people need to know there are hazardous waste sites so that they are not avoided for health purposes, and scientists need access to as much information as possible if we are to continue making advances in technology.

The amendments to the Freedom of Information Act have the potential to drastically alter our lives as Americans. The Congress must find a balance and not too narrowly define what constitutes a threat to national security. Ignorance is not bliss, it may give birth to inchoate in various fields that we need progressive advancement. It may cause us to do more damage to ourselves than the terrorist acts.

Voting on Vouchers

February 20, 2002, the U.S. Supreme Court heard a landmark case, Zelman v. Simmons-Harris, in which the constitutionality of a school voucher program will be determined. The case was brought in Cleveland, Ohio, where under a federal court order to restrict students in parochial schools, a school choice and voucher program was enacted in 1995 that may be a violation of the First Amendment. By admitting students into a parochial school, the government would be subsidizing the religious church and government. A major threat to public schools, especially a major threat to public schools in the inner cities, alternatives enacted few will reap the benefits. I could not believe it for a bit, but the fact of the matter is, I am not a vegetable. I am a student at Howard University and I have never been more people. It is not that I am not interested in other cultures or other experiences and I have no problem with them, but I have never been interested in them as a part of my life. My interests are in the natural world and in the study of the natural world. I am not interested in the study of the natural world for the purpose of understanding it, but for the purpose of understanding myself. I am interested in the natural world for the purpose of understanding myself, and I am not interested in the study of the natural world for the purpose of understanding others.

To Lease Or To Buy: The Options

By John Derry

Columbia Senior

You know the car with the sound system, the leather seats, the sunroof, and the navigation system. It’s the one you wish you could afford. But when you think about it, you realize it makes no sense to spend that kind of money on a car you’re just going to drive for a few years. So what do you do? Lease it or buy it?

Leasing is often a better option than buying, especially if you don’t plan on keeping the car for more than a few years. Leasing gives you the flexibility to upgrade to a new car every few years without having to worry about the depreciation. But leasing can also be expensive, and you’ll end up paying more in the long run. Buying is a more affordable option, but it’s a bigger commitment, and you’ll need to pay attention to the car’s maintenance.

So, what’s the right option for you? It depends on your situation. If you’re not sure, consider the following:

Leasing

Pros:

- Flexibility: You can upgrade to a new car every few years without having to worry about the depreciation.
- Good credit required: You’ll need good credit to get the best lease deals.
- Low initial payment: You’ll pay less upfront compared to buying.

Cons:

- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.
- No resale value: When the lease ends, you don’t get any money back.

Buying

Pros:

- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.
- No resale value: When the lease ends, you don’t get any money back.
- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.
- No resale value: When the lease ends, you don’t get any money back.
- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.

Cons:

- No resale value: When the lease ends, you don’t get any money back.
- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.
- No resale value: When the lease ends, you don’t get any money back.
- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.

Cons:

- Higher initial payment: You’ll pay more upfront compared to leasing.
- Commitment: You’ll need to keep the car for a longer period of time.
- Maintenance: You’ll need to pay attention to the car’s maintenance.

So, what’s the right option for you? It depends on your situation. If you’re not sure, consider the following:

Leasing

Pros:

- Flexibility: You can upgrade to a new car every few years without having to worry about the depreciation.
- Good credit required: You’ll need good credit to get the best lease deals.
- Low initial payment: You’ll pay less upfront compared to buying.

Cons:

- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.
- No resale value: When the lease ends, you don’t get any money back.

Buying

Pros:

- Higher long-term cost: You’ll end up paying more in the long run.
- No resale value: When the lease ends, you don’t get any money back.
Fuel For Fashion:
Diesel Puts Their Peddle to the Metal

By Tiffany Reynolds
Contributing Writer

"I don't have a past, but I've got those family differences..."--Diesel

"We're all about being who we are and doing what we do best."

At Diesel, they know how to put their pedal to the metal. From their innovative slogan, "It's Nothing," to their signature "Big Hole Jeans," Diesel has established a unique niche in the fashion world. With a focus on durability and comfort, Diesel's designs are not only functional but also stylish, making them a favorite among fashion-conscious consumers.

The "Big Hole Jeans" have become a symbol of the brand's commitment to pushing boundaries. These jeans feature a large hole in the rear pocket, which not only adds a touch of flair but also serves as a practical pocket for carrying smaller items. The brand's slogan, "It's Nothing," encapsulates this bold approach, encouraging customers to embrace their individuality and wear what feels right, regardless of conventional norms.

Diesel's commitment to innovation is evident in their approach to sustainability. They are pioneering the use of recycled materials and are constantly exploring new technologies to reduce their environmental impact. This proactive stance not only enhances their reputation as a responsible brand but also appeals to the growing consumer segment that prioritizes ethical fashion.

In conclusion, Diesel's unique blend of boldness and sustainability makes them a force to be reckoned with in the fashion industry. Their unwavering commitment to pushing the envelope, combined with a deep understanding of what customers want, sets them apart. Diesel's pedal-to-the-metal approach is not just a marketing strategy; it's a reflection of their core values and a promise to their customers that they will always be at the forefront of innovation and style.
Controversy Surrounds Selection of New Hilltop Editor-In-Chief

Editorial

The board has turned its back on Lauren Smith. "Instead, they began to focus on politics, with the priority of choosing a political motivated editor, instead of substance and quality," said Windham.

The board has faced challenges in the past year, Smith and her poor relationship with the staff. "I’m returning to the Hilltop bringing professionalism and quality," said Lauren Anderson, a member of the policy board. "University and will fill them with support and guidance to make sure professionalism is the foremost consideration in the advances of the political leadership for America and the global community.

In addition to numerous positive recommendations, Anderson has a history of being transparent. Anderson cited in her resume, which she submitted to the policy board, that she currently serves as the Director of Recruitment Support for Teach for America from October 2000 to present. However, according to Anderson’s former manager Esther Hahn at Teach for America headquarters in New York, Anderson was terminated in July 2001 from her job.

"I was familiar understanding that Ms. Anderson was not a good fit for the position, because she was not suited for this type of performance," Hahn said. Despite the criticism, Anderson remains confident that she will be able to handle the responsibility that accompanies the title.

"I’ve worked here at Chronicle since this summer getting the paper out this week to Kerry Ann, Jennifer, Money Bags, Mak, Josef, Jeezy, Scott and Melanie. Keep up all the hard work my trusty little Wednesday Warriors. Your brutal initiation is almost over."

Lady Bison Defeat Hampton In Overtime

Gardner Receives Player of the Year, Again

By Chani Colon
Hilltop Staff Writer

An unrestricted 7-foot center from Alabama, Andrea Gardner was voted the MEAC Player of the Year again. Gardner, who finished second in the conference in rebounding last year, led the Lady Bison to their third straight MEAC title.

The Lady Bison also defeated the Lady Pirates in overtime, snapping their two-game losing streak against the MEAC champions.

Gardner scored 27 points and grabbed 23 rebounds, just the Lady Pirates' side for three years. as she averages 22 points.

After coming off of a highly emotional game versus teammate and former teammate, the Lady Bison will be looking forward to a final game of the season before the MEAC championships on their way to their fifth consecutive MEAC championship. With the Lady Hornets losing to the Lady Bison in the last meeting of these two teams this year, the Lady Bison look to make another successful sweep of the conference.

The Lady Bison are 16-1 in the conference, 17-9 overall and will not play until Wednesday afternoon as soon as Monday. The Lady Bison look to make another successful sweep of the conference, Richardson made members of the press and stated his Point. Richardson said, "I expect to be here, and I will deal with it for 17 years, and I will deal with it for 17 years.

For him to leave the University of Arkansas, is Nolan Richardson finally going to be here, and I will deal with it for 17 years, and I will deal with it for 17 years.

Both Richardson and Coach Richardon finally going to be here, and I will deal with it for 17 years, and I will deal with it for 17 years.

Or anybody can do. I just want you to contact with each other or professional respect for Coach Richardson. I have a lot of personal and professional respect for Coach Richardson.

Richardson said. "I have dealt with it for 17 years, and I will deal with it for 17 years.

Neither White nor Sugg had expressed any interest in being an assistant coach for him to leave the University of Arkansas. I hope that he remains on the basketball team.
