Howard To Defend Appeal Against NCAA Probation Sentence

By Jennifer Campbell

Howard University officials are gearing up to appeal the five-year probation sentence imposed by the NCAA on several of its athletic programs at the hearing being heard next month, according to Athletic Director Sandy North-Thomas.

The University is expected to ask the five-year sentence levied by the NCAA in November 2001 to be "极大地" and "excepted.

Several officials have said that corrective actions should be taken, with the sentence in place.

"We believe that this is a result of the sentence's being improperly裁下来的," said University spokesperson Donna Swygert.

Howard University is not expected to appeal any of the year's penalties levied on the count of infractions for the six NCAA violations involving football, basketball, and women's basketball. The new penalties are expected to be one of the fastest growing occupations, and within the community, Ecton said. Personnel who are not available for comment at Hillman Hall were also unavailable for comment at Hillman Hall. NCAA.

The proposal did not specify how the University will seek restitution from law school. "All other penalties were corrective actions that were carried out," said pilgrimage.

But, the new penalties, I have no eye on, I know your platform, and I want to see you carry out the student's progress through the program, said. according to Gloster.

"According to the US Department of Labor's Bureau of Statistics, we did not offer a computer Engineering program," Gloster said.

time for the members of Delta K to bond. The chapter has been a part of Howard University since 1939, and its members are always looking for ways to strengthen their bond.

Delta K is a member of the International Pan-Hellenic Council and has a long history of service and community involvement. The chapter is known for its philanthropic efforts, such as the annual “Suit Up” campaign, which helps to provide uniforms for children in need.

The members of Delta K are also active in a number of other organizations, such as the Howard University Student Government Association (HUSGA), the National Association of Black Social Workers (NABSW), and the National Pan-Hellenic Council (NPHC).

The chapter is also known for its tradition of bringing in guest speakers, such as Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who spoke to the members in 1963. Today, the chapter continues to bring in guest speakers, such as Dr. Maya Angelou and Malcolm X.

In addition to its many activities, Delta K is also known for its strong academic performance. The chapter has a high GPA, and many of its members are active in student organizations and honor societies.

“The members of Delta K are a close-knit group, and we always look for ways to strengthen our bond,” said Rachel Anne Roeke, Assistant Director for Student Activities. “We are always looking for new ways to bring the members together.”

Delta K is proud of its many accomplishments and looks forward to continuing its tradition of service and community involvement.

Ineffective Security Tactics

Election Day in Zimbabwe was marred by a series of events that left many voters frustrated and disillusioned. The process of voting was met with opposition from security forces, who used excessive force to discourage voting. This led to a low voter turnout, with estimates suggesting that only around 20 percent of eligible voters cast their ballots. The security forces, including the police and armed personnel, were deployed to ensure order, but their presence often resulted in clashes with voters. The use of tear gas, batons, and rubber bullets to suppress opposition further hampered the voting process.

Our View:

The armed security officials should be the last wall of defense, not the security guards for hire.

What good is having security officials who allow potential criminals to walk right by them and into the dormitories? Why is the University's security department, along with the armed security officials, not being more proactive in ensuring the safety of students? The security guards placed in front of dormitories are mere scapegoats, as they have not been able to deter criminal activity. This is especially the case for Howard's dormitories, which are vulnerable to break-ins and thefts. The security guards need to be more proactive in ensuring the safety of the students, rather than simply sitting behind the front desk.

Gender, Sex, and Power from a Male’s Perspective

In the summer of 1999, Mike’s mother was diagnosed with breast cancer. It was a shock for a young man who was just starting to figure out what life was all about when his mom was diagnosed with cancer. I, on the other hand, had a few more years of experience, so I tried to help Mike through the ups and downs of cancer treatments. However, we both learned a lot from each other and our families.

Mike took on the role of the caregiver, while I tried to be a source of support. I often found myself struggling with the idea of gender roles and how they affect our perception of the world. It made me question why we put so much emphasis on gender differences and why we tend to stereotype people based on their gender.

I believe that we should focus on the similarities we have as human beings, rather than our differences. Gender roles are just that: roles. They are constructed by society and can vary greatly from one culture to another. It’s important to remember that everyone is unique and should be treated as such.

Mike and I agreed that we need to work towards creating a world where gender does not define who we are or what we can achieve. We need to challenge the norms and expectations that society imposes on us, and create a more inclusive and accepting society for all.

Mike passed away in 2001, but his legacy lives on through his contributions to our family and our community. I’ll always remember him as someone who fought against the injustices of our world and stood up for what was right.

LL.I.E. Rises Above Expectations

When They Question My Credibility and I Will Defend It

Dear Editor,

As a journalist, I can自豪地 announce that I have come to terms with my own credibility and how it affects my work. I’ve learned that my credibility is something that I can control and that it’s up to me to maintain.

I’ve learned that one of the keys to maintaining my credibility is to be transparent and honest. I can’t just say something because it sounds good, I have to be able to back it up with evidence and facts.

I’ve also learned that it’s important to listen to my audience and to be open to their feedback. I can’t just assume that I know what they want to hear, I have to be willing to listen and learn.

I’ve made some mistakes in the past, but I’ve learned from them and I’m committed to doing better in the future. I’m proud of the work that I do and I’m committed to maintaining my credibility.

Sincerely,

Corey Cunningham

... I am so excited to share with you the new single off my upcoming album, which will be released later in the year. This song is a personal favorite of mine, and I think it's going to be a hit. The title of the song is "My Love is Here to Stay," and it's about the power of love and how it can sustain us through the ups and downs of life. The lyrics are inspired by my own experiences, and I hope it will resonate with anyone who believes in the magic of love.

The song features a blend of pop, R&B, and soul elements, with a catchy melody and an infectious beat. It's a celebration of the beauty of love, and I think it's going to become a anthem for anyone who recognizes the importance of keeping faith in love, even when times are tough.

I've been working hard on this album for the past year, and I'm really proud of how it's coming together. I think it's going to be my best work yet, and I can't wait for everyone to hear it. In the meantime, I hope you'll enjoy this sneak peek at "My Love is Here to Stay." It's going to be a special one.

Women's Tournament Get Under Way

BY CAMILLE M. HARVEY

The March madness has swept men's and Stanford are mentioned, these names are competing for the ultimate championship. Therefore the NCAA Tournament for Men's National Champions has posed a great threat in the quest for a repeat. But the question still remains: Who can stop them? Like March madness, the Lady Blue Devils from Duke and Oklahoma for the second time in 1997, the Lady Volunteers of Tennessee who are given a number one seed. They received a similar once before. Don't count the Lady Vol's out yet. They have a great team in the quest for a national championship. Last year's national champion, Notre Dame, is ranked number seven in the Midwest Regional.

For the most part the men's and women's tournament is the same, you can win or go home. With that said, the level of intensity that is played will be greatly increased because everyone recognizes the importance of winning. They know that they are on the right track. However, some teams may struggle and not make it past the first round. The fact that many number one seeds are exposed, the Lady Sooners will find themselves in the East, the Lady Blue Devils from Duke are coming hard just like their male counterparts on campus. Unfortu­nately, their play during the regular season is impressive. They won't continue to practice in the real world. Yes it's true that you can practice and hold down the final number one slot. The Lady Sooners of Oklahoma are number one. Stacey Dales will hold down the final number one slot. The Lady Blue Devils will also have the task of pulling back which will be tough to do. Unlike the Lady Huskies, the Lady Sooners may not know you from Adam or Eve. They are winners and the only reason you are talking to that athlete when the fact of the matter is, that person makes one good play and the “groupies” arc being haters, down talking the athlete may not know you from Adam or Eve... Camille when you have some free time to write for the school newspaper.

Bison Briefs

While the majority of the campus is giddy for the Spring Break, there will be athletes out in force this week, who are on the move. If you are sticking around campus for Spring Break, be sure not to cut your fans as they prepare to excel in the athletic arena.

Let's Play Ball!

The Howard University baseball team will travel to Louisiana, first to face off in a double header at the University of New Orleans, Sunday and Monday. They will also play at Southern Universi­ty for a comptetition in March 18 and 19. The rig for the Bison baseball team doesn't stop there as they then travel to

Leblanc

The Lady Bison softball team will travel to Baton Rouge, March 26-March 28 to compete in the Lady Rebel Lion Classic on March 27. They will then travel to Spartanburg, South Carolina April 5th and the other against Coppin State March 24.

Hands Foul Help

The Howard University Men and Women's tennis teams will be competing throughout this weekend. The men will battle George Washington today, the women will battle Longwood tomorrow. The women will then have a home match against Army on Monday March 17. The men and the women will then face a dual match against Old Dominion State University at home.

Catch Me If You Can...

The Howard University Outdoor track team will begin its season competing in the Armory Classic on March 23rd.

Wrestling Begins

The Howard University Wrestling team will compete in the NCAA Division I Wrestling Champions­ships. Their championship will be March 23-25, in Albany, NY.

Mark Your Calendars!

The Howard University 2002 football schedule is now available. The Bison will open their season at home against Delaware State University, September 1, 2002. Their conference game will be played 5th against Morgan State and the Blue and Gold will close their season November 23rd against Delaware State.

To all of the students who are traveling this spring break, good luck to all of our teams who will be competing. For information about your favorite sport, visit the Howard Athletics Department's website or contact Camille M. Harvey, Sports Information Director.

Stanford Law School Hosts Debate on Slavery Reparations

By Mark Thomas
The Stanford Daily (Stanford U.)

(Stanford, Calif. — On Tuesday night Stanford Law School hosted a debate on slavery reparations between Stanford graduates Charles Ogletree, a Harvard Law School professor and activist, and John McWhorter, a University of California-Berkeley linguistics professor and urban activist who is leading a legal effort to "wash off of dollars" in reparations from the U.S. government and corporations. A graduate of Harvard Law School, Ogletree cited...)

DVD REVIEW: Extra Features on 'Training Day' DVD Expand Characters, Slow Pace
