Afghanistan Earthquake Leaves Country in Shock, Disorder

By ANNE MALKINSON

Last Tuesday in Afghanistan, aftermaths erupted from the thousands of injured and wounded, their numbers only slowly rising, to reports of new threats from the Taliban and their allies.

According to the U.S. Geological Survey in California, the first shock was centered in Afghanistan at 7:30 p.m. local time on Monday, the twenty-sixth, and readings continued up through the next few hours. The second shock, at 2:15 a.m. local time Tuesday, the twenty-seventh, again struck on the local scale at 5.0 on the Richter scale. It was felt in Islamabad, the Pak­ istani capital, and in Isfahan, Iran, which lies sixty miles north of the market town Nahrin.

Water, a scarce resource in the densely populated and isolated regions of the country, is crucial to the well-being of the population. The earthquake caused widespread damage, leaving the cities of Kabul and Kandahar in ruins. The official death toll was set at 1,648, but estimates ranged as high as 3,000.

The damage was so severe that aid agencies were unable to respond quickly enough. The Red Cross estimated that 15,000 people were stranded in the rubble and 30,000 displaced. It is beyond the interim government's means to deal with the crisis on its own.

RAMALLAH, West Bank - Backed by tanks and armored personnel carriers, Israeli soldiers stormed homes and seized Palestinian leaders around this four­ garrison town and rounded up hundreds of Palatine­ ans, many of them long-time residents, on Wednesday.

Some 1,500 Israeli troops entered the compound in the east Jerusalem neighborhood of Silwan in the early morning hours, according to a Palestinian official. The troops entered through a massive explosion that ripped through the neighborhood, leaving the area in ruins.

The Israeli army said the raid was carried out to arrest two men suspected of launching rockets into Israel. It said the operation was part of a wider campaign to prevent Palestinian attacks.

The raid comes as Israel continues its siege of the Palestinian territories, where thousands of Palestinians have been arrested since the start of the intifada (uprising) in September 2000.

Thousands of Palestinians have been arrested, detained and imprisoned without trial in Israeli jails. The UN has called for an immediate end to the siege and for the release of political prisoners.

The Israeli army said it was responding to a complaint by Palestinian officials.

The complaint alleged that Palestinian officials were planning to use the seized materials to make mortars and explosives.

The Israeli army said it had found an arsenal of weapons and explosives in the compound, including rocket launchers, mortars and other weapons.

The Israeli army said it had also found other materials, including solar panels, batteries and other equipment.

Stanford Officials to Stand Trial

After a sexual harassment lawsuit brought in 1996, Zylbert attended a medical conference program at Stanford University in California. She was expelled instead, it said, because she completed her medical program at Stanford University Valley Medical Center.

This story stems from the darkness following her sexual harassment, the original (and probably illegal) suit, and the initial harassment against her former professor Mark Perlotz when she was a resident. She was first reluctant to file for fear it would haunt her career. But according to Zylbert, the incident was not the only one she had dealt with her demand for a sexual relationship.

The University of California at San Francisco has raised a federal appeal against Stanford University in the case of sexual harassment and retaliation from my participation in a plaintiffs group.

Zylbert denies these accusations. Zylbert is primary cardiologist at Stanford General Hospital. Zylbert's medical career has been cut short by her career as a medical professional.

In the 1980s, Zylbert moved to Los Gatos, California, where she has been an accomplished and active professional. She says that her career is on hold in the West Towers.

When it comes to the General Elections, the blame can spread across the board.

The two words are the same. Black people use the word and recognize them as the same. Although some black Americans use the word as a joke, there is a difference between using it as a term of endearment when writing about a white person. There is too much history behind the use of the term "nigger" to allow African Americans to use it in a friendly way.

Let's change the word.

The Maryland State Senate made the right decision on March 27, 2002, by passing the bill that provides voting rights to non-citizen residents of the state. This action is a positive step towards improving the community. With its decision, Maryland removed itself from the list of states that deny non-citizen residents the right to vote.

From his trial in Cleveland, Utah, President Bush has been a relentless advocate of the use of the death penalty. He has been doing more to prevent Palestinian terrorism than any other President.

The Bush Administration has taken the lead in trying to bring about peace between Israel and the Palestinians. The President has been working constructively with the Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon to achieve a lasting peace in the Middle East.

Sharecropping Wages at Howard University

H ere we are in the 21st century. and yet at the bar of the House of Representatives at Howard University. many of those who work here have found themselves being excluded by our very own political leaders.

I ask you: What is the reason for these actions? I believe that many of the students in our classes are actually quite capable, but find it difficult to get past their teachers. Even though these students may be intelligent, they are still being held back by others. As we move forward into the future, we must ensure that all students are given an equal opportunity to succeed.

In terms of the wages for the maintenance workers, I believe that they are paid much less than they deserve. This is an issue that needs to be addressed.

For those who may dissent, do you think that the pay for these workers is fair?

Many probably would go crazy if placed in a similar economic situation. In fact, if one were to analyze the work that is not being done from an administrative perspective, many administrators would likely be found to be underpaid.

I am quite sure many of the administrators will even take full advantage of such opportunities. In case you did not know it, this happens on a regular basis.

My recommendations to remedy such issues are the following: 1) increase sharecropping allowances; 2) increase the pay scale for the maintenance workers; and 3) those entities that supposedly represent the workers (union leaders) should be more involved in the decision-making process.

In conclusion, I believe that the workers here at Howard University are deserving of a fair wage. As we move forward, I hope that we will continue to fight for justice and equality for all.

yes i have found the term is coming to a close we need to be aware of our own eyes to wary of our own eyes. Again do thinking that this is not the time to be careful. Because my friend told me not to worry about it. I make this comment because I have perso nally come across a few situations that have been troubling to me.

With regards to the pay wages for the maintainance workers receive here at Howard University many of those work here for a week or two and then may work for a different employer.

Eventually these workers can be found again working for another employer. Actually, these workers can be found working for multiple employers in the same year.

This is a very interesting situation that needs to be addressed.

I believe that these workers are doing barely enough to just stay in school. The real fun is to have classes for free. that it would exceed the amount I am paid. If one in cludes the one receives welfare in many states across the country.

In fact, if one were to do a simulation of what the majority of the maintenance workers here at Howard University received for those in decision-making positions at Howard University expect for university employees to take full advantage of such opportunities when they are available on the providing the two opportunities for their families on a sharecropping salary.

Again, please do not say in phi losophy for the bud-ging graduate student. If in the future, is that the determined the pay rate for the maintethink you would come into a dirty building to work for such a salary? Many probably would go crazy if placed

General Assembly to Debate 4th Vote

Campus Continues to Vote for New HUSA Leaders, Legacy Garners Most Votes

By Keisha B. Ramsey

Hilltop Staff Writer

Genia Wright and Annie Coles of the Legacy slate won the majority of the votes in yesterday's election for the Howard University Student Association president and vice-president.

Last Wednesday, the General Assembly approved a third election for both the HUSA President and Vice-President and Executive Director and President of the College of Arts and Sciences. There were discrepancies in the number of votes cast in the run-off election between the two candidates.

The winner, Genia Wright, said the win was unexpected and that the win was decided by the Howard University Student Association's Constitution.

In this special election, the Legacy slate garnered 57 votes, which gave them a marginal victory of 53 percent.

The incumbent slate received 42 votes of the total 100.

The HUSA Policy Board met last Thursday and the slate's victory was confirmed in the board. The constitution states that the slate must receive at least 40 percent of the vote, and if they do not, it will be a re-election.

Several members of the campus have been talking about the possibility of a third election.

Student Labor Day of Action Protests Against Big Businesses

By Jamie McIlrath

UWIRE (DC BUREAU)

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UWIRE) - Students, workers, and community organizers gathered across the country today, for the third annual National Student Labor Day of Action to show their opposition to corporate greed, according to a spokesperson for the organizing group.

"The day of action is a unique opportunity for students to be part of a larger movement towards social and economic justice," the spokesperson said.

"The National Student Labor Day of Action is a way for students to show their support for workers' rights and to demand fair wages and working conditions."
This is not a raunchy advertisement for just about every flyer. I wouldn't have students up in arms. (HUSA) "Auction to Remember."ers the campus bas seen in recent weeks.

"It's a gross manipulation of the purpose of the auction [and] it's exploitive," said junior Chase Jones. Other students, like Stylia Bostick, agree with Johnson.

"It's just relentless. We were nailed on just about every flyer I wouldn't have expected Hot Ads to be the brand," said Bostick, a sophomore sociology major. Some students have expressed their concern over the images on HUSA's advertisements. Students said the credibility of HUSA has been put in question by the ads.

While some students have been shocked by the promotional advertisements, others have been focusing on a few more. Some women said there was not enough of the male image presented in the advertisement.

HUSA is aware of the controversy surrounding the auction flyers and has opted to remain closedmouth about the project to build anticipation. HUSA staff member Jeff Williams said students did not receive compensation for the work involved.

"There were no vendors at the Yardfest because we were not able to network anything up to date," said Brown, Jr. Brown still felt the event was very successful. "It's a great way to get people to network and make connections. It's also a great event for parents to get involved in our school."

According to event coordinator Mary Lindsey, parents were the most important target for the Yardfest. Lindsey said the program is in its second year and based on the success of the first year, it was decided to expand the event and add additional vendors.

"I'm happy with the way the event turned out," said Lindsey. "We had a good turnout and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves."

Scientist Claim First Human Cloning Pregnancy

By CONNIE CUNNINGHAM
Contributing Writer

A London woman is eight weeks pregnant after undergoing a human cloning treatment, according to New Scientist magazine's web site.

According to the treatment, Done had been in the study for three years. The process, aiming to duplicate women with a cell replica, would be done by 2003, if the project is successful.

The experiment is aimed at making more science possible with average couples, according to Dr. Tom Done. "The ultimate goal is to be able to create children who can have a normal family life," he added.

Doner, who has placed seven embryos into three different women, said the technique could be "very good for couples who are not able to have children naturally." The treatment is now in its second phase, with the first phase being done by 2000.

Dr. Done explained that the technique is not as risky as it first seemed. "There are a lot of things that we can do to improve the success rate," he said.

Dr. Done was granted approval by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority after a long debate.

"I believe that it is the right thing to do," Dr. Done said, "but I also believe that it is very important to ensure that we do not end up in a situation where we have too many children who are not wanted."

The Search Is Over
West Virginia Hires Dakich as Basketball Coach
By Collin Currie

West Virginia has hired former Bowling Green coach Bob Dakich to take over the Mountaineers.

The move comes after the team finished the season with a 16-16 record, a second-place finish in the Big Ten, and a first-round exit from the NCAA Tournament.

Dakich previously spent 21 years as a college basketball coach, including stints at Bowling Green and Western Michigan.

He replaces Mike Carey, who was fired in March after the team missed the NCAA Tournament for the fourth straight year.

Dakich is no stranger to West Virginia, having served as an assistant coach at the school from 1982 to 1987 under Bob Knight.

He has a career record of 89-57 and has taken two teams to the NCAA Tournament, including a trip to the Elite Eight in 2005.

Dakich is also known for his program's commitment to academic success, with a 95% graduation rate.

He is expected to bring a fresh perspective to the West Virginia program, which has been struggling in recent years.

The Mountaineers have not won a conference title since 2004 and have not reached the NCAA Tournament since 2010.

Dakich is a native of New Lexington, Ohio, and played college basketball at Bowling Green.

He has a strong background in coaching and has been involved in the game for more than four decades.

Dakich is looking forward to the challenge of turning around the West Virginia program and helping the Mountaineers return to prominence.

He is excited about the opportunity to work with the talented roster he has inherited and is confident that West Virginia can compete at a high level in the Big Ten.

West Virginia fans are excited about the hire and hope that Dakich can lead the Mountaineers to success on the court and academic success in the classroom.

From Elections, A1

To 209 votes and back island out Ben Caffel 200 to 199 Will David Grier, acting Assistant Dean in the Office of the Dean of Students, said on Friday, "I am not holier than thou myself, but if this is from back in the day. Celebrities need to start taking this pill called responsibility, that off, shirt, hell everything to the culprits. I think yesterday's election is no longer in that capacity after yesterday's election. I am no longer the Election's Co-Chair. I am graduating senior and have all my grades and other obligations to worry about before my graduation on May 11th," Witter said.

According to the HUSA Constitution, General Elections are to be held and decided before the second Wednesday in April. Without that fact that a special full election is the only practical decision for electing the 2002-2003 HUSA President and Vice President.

"It either for a new election (to be held), the General Assembly will have to approve the funds, the ballots and machinery will have to be set up, the voter will have to be qualified. An election by yesterday is not feasible. A special full election will have to be held for the other option," Witter said.

Stefanie Brown, current HUSA President, agrees that the prospect of a spring election by the deadline is slim to none.

"I would have to call an emergency General Assembly meeting to approve the budget, the representatives need at least two days notice. A special full election has to be held. Then no transition time for two until the. This person government back," Brown said.

The current HUSA administration was elected on May 11.

Polk County, Hurston's Hidden Treasure Shines on The Arena Stage

BY KERRIE ANN HAMILTON
Hilltop Staff Writer

Zora Neale Hurston's Polk County is absolutely scintillating. The energetic musical had the audience singing along with their fingers tapping to the soulful southern blues.

The production, directed by Beverly Gail Barnes Kelch, a Howard alumna, once again brought a gem to the Howard University's Howard Auditorium, giving the audience an authentic Caribbean atmosphere.

Colorful costumes, vibrant singing, and a sense of community were all part of the musical's success. The characters' journeys were filled with love, passion, and especially belonging.

The arena stage shone, adapted and directed by Kyle Donnelly, as a setting that felt like home, with its natural setting, trees, and a sawmill camp that was a cradle for the working blues. The characters' leisure time was spent delving into the blues as a means of comfort and solace to help them through their ups and downs.

The humorous dialogue enriched each scene. The audience laughed as the characters, including Mama Euralie (Ameerah Muhammad), Tonton Julian (Nicholas R. Grant), and Leafy Lee (Gwen Flowers), shared their stories.

The musical is set in the late 1800s in Polk County, Florida, where the characters are second-guessing a possible relationship in the making. The story is a bittersweet old story, even in this relatively modern world.

The struggle and tension come to the fore as Leafy Lee comes to Polk County, a white woman who is interested in the lives of the African American community.

"Polk County" is a musical with a sense of community, where the characters endure love, passion, and especially belonging.

The musical is a must-see, and I recommend it to anyone who loves the fine arts, entertainment, and self-expression.
Stolen Treasures: Howard Women Speak Out on Their Lives After Being Raped

By Alvina Cosa

I was getting a root canal without the numbing surface run deep. Most women who are survivors of rape never mention this feeling the rest of their lives. McQueen had a hard time blaming herself for his actions. Despite the amount of time that has passed since the rape occurred, the memories of the event continue haunt her in dreams. The survivor's way of life is not the only thing that has been affected — so is her self-worth. They need to report the crime and the perpetrator to the police or, at the very least, to the DC Rape Crisis Center.

I finally called my sister at Georgetown, and just broke free. "I felt like I was screaming so loud for help went unheard," McQueen said. "I felt like I was screaming so loud, but no one was listening. It was so afraid about what people would think. I just had to be strong for my family, but I didn't want to have him arrested," McQueen stated adamantly. "I want to be the best person that people know me as."

The justice system is old world, but this is a new world — a world of hope and survival. In the words of one witness, "We need to get tough on these cases. We need to get tough on these rapists."
