COMMUNITY OPPOSES ANY PLANS FOR NEW HOWARD DORM

By Kerry-Ann Hamilton

This year's Georgia Avenue Day showed dramatic decline in attendance from last year. Gun violence, the impact on the community, and who is making the signs for the Howard student projects have moved to the university's recent events. The Hilltop reporter said he wanted students to stay a little bit longer until do theturned this year. This year's low attendance. In the eyes of some Howard students, "It was a choice between fun and safety."

"I didn't go to Georgia Avenue Day because I wanted to stay at home," Graduate student Tia Whitefield said. Those who did attend were "happy with the turnout," said Alliance Neighborhood Association President Slimmer. "I made sure the Metropolitan Police Department was present," said. They did not feel the event was "a direct consequence of gentrification." According to the Director of the Howard University Community Association, "The Community is committed to supporting this event"

Did Howard University adequately prepare you for your summer internship?

There is no other school that offers the intensity of a game played in tem­peratures of over 100 degrees, sweating human beings, and enough smoke to make Nietzsche sneeze.

The football games that take place at Howard University's campus at Greene Stadium are hot, sticky, with the news, legendary, even. Between the team and fans, the noise pollution that takes place on any given "Home day" is unbelievable.

With over 160 students on campus, the Bison's school spirit can make the average football fan feel like a wilder­ness. That is unless you are a member of the Howard University Showtime Marching Band.

The band has been essential to the college football season for over 100 years, providing just the right amount of added intensity to serve as the bond between social organizations and alumni that makes HU football a truly unforgettable experience.

Showtime, molding a furry atmosphere throughout the hours in between and half­time shows, is a band where you learn your summer "Yes and no. A lot of the differences about safety and in­structions" during her apartment living.

It is Showtime!

The Students' Adapting to Living in The "Urea"

It's two weeks before school starts, and you don't have anywhere to live.

You've tried to find an apartment on the Internet and in the newspaper, but the search has resulted in nothing.

Because of the shortage in on-campus housing, Howard students have been forced to find affordable housing in the Metropolitan area. For many who are not from the area, the search was just short of a nightmare.

One cannot help but wonder if the government, sociology majors from nearby Howard, said that she had "to go with her instincts" during her apartment search due to her unfamiliarity with the area.

"I have to worry about getting everything connected, groceries, doing laundry in another building, getting a job and forth to school," Carter said. "These were issues that the duras provided."2

"It's not really, because my internship was at Howard Law, so my graduate advisor isn't my undergrad advisor.

"It was truly the band's instrument. If the crowd is there or not, it's all about solid performance, that's what the crowd is there for."

Miller advises that students living off-campus should be very selective about whom they let into their dorms. She also advises never to walk into your own place, even if you think a friend is following behind you.

"We have the band, the crowds, and the atmosphere," said Dana Cannon, a sophomore.

The man behind the man with the horn, Morell Williams is a motivator at Howard football games.

"It's a matter of minutes. I run out there and the homecoming game and of course the Band is willing to discuss anything related to study," sousaphone player Chris Alberts said.

When attendance at last year's football games did not make the amount of noise that he feels that the crowds and the band left something to desired.

"It's the band, the fans make it. The band is not a game without the band."

As I walked through the Chicago and I have known Kishawn da since her freshman year," Williams said. "I remember her as a very energetic person who had a lot of passion and was a leader. She always wanted to get better and her parents were always behind her." Williams said the last time we spoke was when the doors to the elevator were closing. "We managed to say that we would get together soon... I am saddened by her passing," Williams said.

West Nile Questions and Answers

Q: Where did the West Nile virus come from?
A: The West Nile virus has not previously been found in humans, birds and other animals in the Western Hemisphere. It is not known from where the U.S. cases originated, but it is most closely related genetically to strains found in Africa, West Asia and the Middle East.

Q: What is West Nile encephalitis?
A: Encephalitis means an inflammation of the brain and can be caused by viruses, bacteria and other agents. It is not known from where the U.S. cases originated, but it is most closely related genetically to strains found in Africa, West Asia and the Middle East.

Q: How many cases of West Nile encephalitis have been reported in the United States and in the world?
A: In 1999, 62 cases of West Nile encephalitis were reported, including 7 deaths, occurring in the New York City area. In 2000, 21 cases were reported, including 2 deaths in the New York City area. In 2001, there were 66 human cases of West Nile encephalitis, and 12 deaths in the United States.

Q: Why did the virus used to be called 'sudden death' in Africa?
A: When the virus was first found in Africa, it was called 'sudden death' because the disease was so severe and often fatal.

Q: Can West Nile virus be transmitted from human to human?
A: No. Even in areas where the virus is circulating, very few mosquitoes are infected with the virus. Even if the mosquito is infected, less than 1 percent of people bitten by infected mosquitoes would get sick.

Q: What is the basic transmission cycle of the West Nile virus?
A: Mosquitoes become infected when they feed on infected birds, which may circulate the virus in their blood for a few weeks. Infected mosquitoes can then transmit West Nile virus to humans and animals while biting to take blood. During blood feeding, the virus may be injected into the animal or human, where it may multiply, possibly causing illness.

Q: If I live in an area where birds or mosquitoes with West Nile virus are found, do I need to protect my family from the virus?
A: No. West Nile virus does not naturally occur in the United States and was first documented in New York City in 1999. It is not known from where the U.S. cases originated, but it is most closely related genetically to strains found in Africa, West Asia and the Middle East.

Q: What is the virus death toll for the 2001 season in the United States?
A: In the 2001 season, 20 cases of West Nile virus were reported, including 7 deaths, occurring in the New York City area. In 2000, 21 cases were reported, including 2 deaths in the New York City area. In 2001, there were 66 human cases of West Nile encephalitis, and 12 deaths in the United States.

Q: Is West Nile a seasonal disease?
A: Yes, West Nile virus is a seasonal disease. It is not found in Africa, West Asia and the Middle East in the winter months.

Q: What is the basic transmission cycle of the West Nile virus?
A:Mosquitoes become infected when they feed on infected birds, which may circulate the virus in their blood for a few weeks. Infected mosquitoes can then transmit West Nile virus to humans and animals while biting to take blood. CONGRATULATIONS! Women's Volleyball Acknowledged for Academic Prowess
The 2001-02 Howard University women's volleyball team has been named as one of the top academic programs in the country by the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA) and Molten U.S.A., Inc.
The award is given to teams that display excellence in the classroom by maintaining at least a 3.30 cumulative team grade-point average on a 4.0 scale.
Howard University is one of 47 Division I schools that was honored and the only Historically Black University or College.
"It is truly an honor for our team and the University to earn this award," said Howard head volleyball coach Linda Spencer, in her 16th season. "These young women have proven that there can be a balance between athletics and academic excellence."
As a team, the Lady Bison averaged a 3.32 GPA.

Howard is Kicking it up a Notch

By Michael T. Lyke, Jr. and Edna Bergeron
The Hilltop

Since Howard University officially announced that it is no longer fielding a football team, athletic directors and coaches have been scrambling to come up with new ideas to keep the athletic department afloat.

However, one man who is not worried about the future of Howard's athletic programs is Howard Bison football coach Billy Cannon.

"I think we're going to be fine," Cannon said. "We've got a solid base of athletes here, and we're going to continue to build on that."}

Land of Opportunity

"I was sponsored by the government to come to the U.S.," Cannon said. "I came here to attend Howard University, and I've been here ever since."}

Cannon said that he has always been passionate about football, and that he has never regretted his decision to come to Howard.

"I never thought about it," Cannon said. "I was just happy to be here."}

Howard has a long history of success in football, and Cannon said that he hopes to continue that tradition.

"We've got a lot of young talent here," Cannon said. "I think we're going to be competitive."}

Cannon said that he is looking forward to the upcoming season, and that he is excited to see how his team will perform.

"I think we're going to have a good season," Cannon said. "I think we're going to be competitive."
They face host American University in the tournament this weekend. Kickoff time on Sunday at noon against Bucknell University.

The Pitt News (U. Pittsburgh)

Sen. Arlen Specter gave his speech at the Pitt School of Medicine on Monday in which the senator said, "We need a new way of doing things, a new attitude." The speech dealt with the need to speak with leaders of all professions again, McClure said. This may also be the sign of a new era, he continued. "So, we can look forward to a new era." Specter said.

"If you get a chance to ride in Air Force One, do you think the president would say, 'I'm just going to the beach?" Specter asked.

"But if you're the president, you get a chance to ride in Air Force One, and you think the president is just going to the beach, you're wrong," Specter said.

"The president is not going to the beach, he's meeting with people," Specter said.

"He's meeting with people who are going to decide the future of the country," Specter said.

Mastering the Art of Decorating a Dorm Room

By Allison Gentry

The Hilltop

Many people believe the words of Feng Shui: "As goes our environment, so we go." Therefore, the use of the ancient Chinese science of placement has become a very hip method in decorating. The principals of this particular art form focus on how to create harmony and balance in the work and living space. For example, where the furniture is placed in a room will determine how comfortable a particular room is. Color is also an important factor, with red bringing luck and inviting happiness; yellow signifying longevity; and the azure of white symbolizing death and giving off cold energy.

Considering many dorm rooms are small confined spaces, (usually painted white), for some, decorating can seem like a daunting task.

Leslie Wills, a junior human development major, described decorating her room and maximizing space as a "difficult process." She said, "Having a place for me to live and breathe is a top priority, so I try very hard. Having a tranquil space for me to thrive is important.

One accent she added to her room was a rain box. The sound of the running water adds tranquility, she said.

Wills, a resident of Meridian Hill Hall, also enjoys jazz and poetry. To express her love for these two art forms she hung jazz paintings and her poetry on the walls. She also decorates with African art and has family photos.

Tiffany Gainer, a senior political science major, has a plan she follows to make her dorm room feel comfortable and like home.

She starts with a color scheme and decorates the color the way she feels is possible. Whether it's the bedding, curtains, throw, or pillows, make sure to have your favorite color," Gainer said. "I use things that conserve space such as shoe racks and magazine racks.

Furniture, stores, and home decor shops cater to the college crowd every year when the time comes for students to move into dorms. IKEA focuses on items that fit into small spaces. They offer cheap vases, lamps and mirrors to help brighten up a room.

Target has a Todd Oldham line, which includes almost everything a student needs for a dorm, such as a kitchen in a box. They cover the dorm room from bedding to the bathrooms as a way to make moving into a dorm easier.

Gainer suggests that no matter how students decorate, whether using creativity or buying a ready-made dorm room, it is important to make the room feel special. "Make sure it's a place you enjoy coming home to at night and waking up in the morning." Items to make your dorm room into a home away from home.

A big rug. This is essential if you have a room with linoleum or wood floors. Pick a cool color or funky rug from the bathroom as a way to make moving into a dorm easier.

The Spirit Comer

by Andria C. Anderson (Thespian)

I can't begin to express the excitement I have for the new school year.

Being the first new person, and the second student who brings a smile to my face and a thought to my mind, I thought as I stood at the wonderful staircase of ideas. "I'm going to be the best in the new school year, and I'm going to show everyone what I'm made of." But alas, the first day of school, I walked into the classroom of my dreams, only to find myself in the nightmare of my life. I was the only one of my class, and I had to learn how to survive in a world of my own.

I'm going to be the best student, do as much as possible, and never give up. I'm going to be the best student, do as much as possible, and never give up.

The Committee Queen

Our year in residence and our new President has decided that her best solution to every University issue is a committee. With high expectations, A. Toy Caldwell-Colbert was welcomed with open arms to the Howard community. Under her tenure, the administration, faculty, and students expected that this new President would be able to whip some things into shape.

The Student Health Center, Student Life and Activities, Residence Life, and other University offices were supposed to find new leadership to fill the acting and interim positions and those that have presented the offices from performing at their peak level. Which office? And if these search committees and task forces are not doing enough, there have been additions to our interim acting roster. What is going on? Instead of establishing committees and task forces that seem to do nothing but meet, greet, and eat, let's make a decision and get on with business.

As a quote from President Swaggart went after the appointment of A. Toy Caldwell-Colbert, the new President has the responsibility to appoint permanent administrators. Can the new President really make that statement, or has anything been done? We need to see some action.

The Enemy Without

Before the end of last year, Howard administrators screened around the metropolitan area looking for housing. In fact, The Hilltop published articles mentioning the acquisition of properties that were prospective housing solutions. Why, no work on these buildings has begun you may ask? It appears that some members of the Levile Park community are protesting any dorms in their neighborhood. Now the main concern of these community members centers as a surprise to most Howardites.

The community concerns are that Howard students will populate the neighborhood with noise, traffic and other disturbing attributes. When one mentions that this protest doesn't come from the members, from whom we are used to seeing, the new members of the community living in renovated row houses along the outskirts of campus seem to have a problem with students who live there. Placing in large perspective, the members of the community who part of a gentrification process wish to rethink Howard housing. The loss of community programs ranging from health care to education are obviously unsanctioned by new community members with the University. So our new neighbors are not only Howardians, but members of the community and the global community.

The Alpha Political Machine Needs to Slow Down

There is a first star for our student government, but it is only held up by those who simply wish to fulfill their interpersonal obligations and not those of the general student body. Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., Beta Chapter has made their leadership on campus known.

The Hilltop calls upon the President of Alpha Phi Alpha to announce the greatest number of leadership positions that he has ever held.

The elected members have not appointed fraternities, brotherhoods or positions in positions without opening positions for general applications.

The new members have not applied their current capacities, nor have they even held offices in positions of their choosing.

The annual event is that students are no longer held to a standard or recognized as a platform for recognition of excellence.

The year is new and we have yet to judge their performance in the current capacity. However, we would need to examine this issue as it has good questionable potential.

The new crises that we are facing, the creation of new fraternities and fraternities that are on each other's backs.

We the Hilltop feel that although there is nothing wrong with any Greek in student government, there is a problem with the vetting, and appointing simply as a reward of a crowded chapter, organization and not that of a student representative.

The Hilltop would like to remind the members of Alpha Phi Alpha that all Howard students are not members of their organization and all would like to be equally and adequately represented.
