Letters From Our Readers

My dear Mr. Editor:—

Will you kindly inform me when the next "at home" will be held? I have a lady friend in Miner Hall and she doesn't know when I can call, if at all.

Yours,
Anxious

The next "at home" will be on Friday evening. You may call to see the young lady any time that her other fellow is not there.

My dear Mr. Editor:—

In order to settle a fierce dispute, will you kindly inform me who is who with Miss Jones, the dreamy-eyed belle?

Your broken hearted reader,
T. T. A.

The latest victim is Mr. S. P. B. Perhaps Stratton or Ruffin could give you the correct information as the task proves too much for us.

My dear Mr. Editor:—

Will you kindly tell me the name of the young man who wrote the poem "Latin is an Easy Subject." I have several friends who would like to communicate with him. Also, please tell me where he studied as I am sure he did not take his work in the Academy.

Yours,
Punched out A. M. A.

The name of the young man who wrote the poem "Latin is an Easy Subject" is Rusty Jones. He studied at the "True Reformers Institution for Colored Youth." Up to the time of going to press his whereabouts is unknown.

My dear Mr. Editor:—

I am in love with three young men; one lives in the city, one in Clark Hall and one at home. All three are expecting me to accompany them to the game on Thanksgiving. Will you please tell me what to do?

Your puzzled reader,
E. E. J.,
Miner Hall

Write the other two sweet, sweet letters and tell them you have planned to be sick on Thanksgiving. Then persuade, if you can, the young man in Clark Hall to hire a closed cab and see the game through the window.

My dear Mr. Editor:—

Kindly answer the following questions in your worthy paper. Which is the best looking girl in Miner Hall? Which expects the most expensive Xmas present? Which is the biggest flirt? And which is the best to trust a secret with?

Yours,
A. E. S.,
Clark Hall

The Editor refuses to answer letter signed A. E. S. on the ground that it might incriminate him.
