Undefeated Bison play their way into record books

Bison Football

For the past three weekends, the Bison football team has been involved in homecoming football games, and it was no different this weekend when the Maroon Tigers of Carolina erected another U.S. record on the scoreboard with a 25-10 victory over Howard University last Saturday, as it passed for 281 yards and completed 17 of 29 passes. In less than two touchdowns with Howard, Walker has compiled 313 passes for 1,071 yards, passing former Bison quarterback Michael Black's record of 300 passes for 4,44 yards. Howard's first two weeks are Howard's all-time leading quarterback, but the third quarter with the game, enabling him to become the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference all-time leading quarterback. Harrell's five completions in the game gave the Bison 146 receptions in second.

In last year's Howard-Charleston matchup, Howard was a 21-10, as the Bison came out on top, winning 70. This year's contest saw a different outcome, as the Bison came out on top, winning 70-6, and the Howard offense was too much for Morehouse.

The Maroon football with a 27-3 lead off of a touchdown pass from quarterback Eric Johnson to Terral Lewis for the touchdown,ardin the second quarter. In the final period, Howard's defense denied Morehouse's attack, resulting in a 73-7 win.

The Bulldogs hold a commanding 1-0-0 lead over the Maroon in the MEAC, which five in the top 10 in the nation.

The Bison leads the conference in the MEAC, with a 19-19-1 record from 1976 to 1978.

In addition, Harrell spoke of the project's potential positive impact on the university's community. However, he also outlined the challenges the project faces, including issues related to financial sustainability and community engagement.

Howard leads movement to increase minority science student enrollment

Howard University is at the forefront of a movement to increase the number of minority students in science. Led by Dr. Lee, the university is working to address the issue of underrepresentation of blacks in science and engineering fields. The project aims to increase minority enrollment in science programs by 50 percent by 1998.

In the words of Dr. Lee, "We must create a science education system that is accessible to students of all backgrounds." The project includes initiatives such as outreach programs, scholarships, and mentorship opportunities.

Howard's goal is to become a leader in diversity in science and engineering, and the university is taking bold steps to achieve this. The school is committed to creating a supportive and inclusive environment for minority students.

Chavis addresses School of Divinity convolution

"It did because of animosity. We have forgotten, we have forgiven, we have forgotten, we have forgiven. We have lost the spirit of our people. We must remember the spirit of our people," Chavis said.

Chavis added, "We need more minorities in the sciences. We need to address this issue with urgency and commitment to ensure that our students are given equal opportunities to succeed in their chosen fields."
Student leaders voice opinion over debate of faculty tenure

Terri Wade, Levi Matthews and other leaders add new perspective to the issue

By Derrick M. Dennis

While student leaders debate the issue of tenure on campus, many faculty members also have opinions on the matter. "The tenure system is meant to protect faculty members who work hard," said Professor Jones. "It's important for us to have tenure because it gives us the freedom to conduct research and teach in a way that's best for our students." Matthews added that the system is outdated and needs to be updated. "Tenure is a outdated system that discriminates against students," she said. "It's time for us to have new perspectives on the issue." Wade echoed those sentiments, saying that the tenure system needs to be reevaluated. "We need to have new perspectives on the issue," she said. "Tenure needs to be reevaluated in order to better serve our students." The debate on faculty tenure continues as leaders work to find a solution.
Students perform the 70's dance the "Funky Chicken" in a soul train line. The dancers dressed in black and white, and the audience was wild as soon as they set foot on the stage. The show ended with everyone screaming. The last group to walk was the Delta Sigma Theta sorority, who ended the performance with a rendition of "I Got the Funk." The audience was ready to move with the groove at the end. D.C. Armory officials insisted the show begin on time in order for the Armory to be enjoyed by alumni. The show began just after 4 p.m., almost an hour before the scheduled start time. The Hilltop joins Student Activities and Cranmore Auditorium in wishing Mr. Ralph T. More than 2,000 crowd into D.C. Armory to hear hard core lyrics with a message

By Traci James

Anticipating the arrival of a crowd of 2,000 people packed against the walls and bleachers, rap artist Ice Cube told the Howard University Homecoming audience Wednesday night that "You can’t keep a good song down," as Ice Cube performed "Amerikkka’s Most Wanted," along with a host of other songs.

Although Ice Cube was the main attraction of the night, Howard University and other homecoming performers were limited to numerous appearances by The Bionic Tornado, the D.C. Armory Band, and 1984 Summer Olympics gold medalist male-bashing song "Ring Ring Ring." The Bionic Tornado performed with a woman担任 lead singer, and the D.C. Armory Band performed "Amerikkka’s Most Wanted" with the rest of the crowd.

Call to Arms

Last week, D.C. Mayor Sharon Pratt Kelly suggested that the United States National Guard be called in to patrol the violence-ricke streets of the city, and the only isolation would be to guard the National Guard from being used as a force of change. The National Guard has been trapped in the crossfire of a war. True, there is militia being brought in to “protect” will reveal how many students will be killed in the streets. Will they be reinforcements to the police or will they simply act as patrois. We must develop programs and other ways to counter the violence and recapture the future.

Homecoming-for whom?

Weeks before the 1993 Howard Homecoming, students knew events and festivities would be held. But then there was the call for the students to leave campus. Some students were concerned about the question who homecoming was actually for. Some would say that homecoming is for the alumni. From the moment one walks through the gates, the events are geared toward the older alumni. But how many students are comfortable coming “home” to on-campus activities? Now, there is nothing wrong with sending the streets further into oblivion. We need more preventive methods that will study and help students, and that means we can develop programs and other ways to counter the violence and recapture the future.

Letter to the Editor

On Oct. 22, 1993, the article titled “Society, not law, is the deterrent” appeared in the Howard University’s Homecoming. The article suggests that date rape is a result of the socialization down men,“but on eradicating such thing, we need not wait.” The author agrees that it is fine for a woman “to freely discuss subordination of women is another contributing factor to date rape. School of Education must live up to responsibilities

Barba A. Miller

School of Education, a complex system, has had many policy makers try to deal with the root causes of its problems. But in order to make the changes needed within the School of Education, we must first understand the nature of the problems.

First, we must understand the way in which the School of Education is organized, as well as the political and economic factors that influence it. The School of Education is a complex institution, with many different stakeholders with varying interests. The School of Education is also a major source of revenue for the University, and it is therefore important to consider the economic implications of any changes.

Second, we must understand the way in which the School of Education is structured. The School of Education is divided into several different departments, each of which is responsible for a specific area of study. The departments are often competition with each other, and this can lead to a lack of coordination and a lack of focus on the overall mission of the School of Education.

Finally, we must understand the way in which the School of Education is funded. The School of Education is primarily funded by the University, but it also receives funding from other sources, such as the state government and private donors. This funding can be unreliable, and it can lead to a lack of stability in the School of Education.

In order to make the changes needed within the School of Education, we must first understand the nature of the problems. Only then can we begin to develop solutions that will be effective.

On Friday night's weather was chilly, but not unpleasant. The sun was shining brightly and the breeze was blowing gently. The people of the town gathered in the park to listen to a speech given by the mayor. The mayor was speaking about the importance of education and the need for more funding for the schools.

As the mayor spoke, one of the residents of the town approached him and asked him a question. The mayor was surprised, but he answered the question patiently. The resident thanked the mayor for his time and asked him to sign an autograph.

The mayor was pleased to be able to help the resident and he signed the autograph. As he walked away, the crowd clapped and cheered for the mayor. The speech had been a success and the mayor was proud of his work.

The next day, the mayor was planning to go to the school to speak with the students. He had heard that some of the students were having trouble with their studies and he wanted to encourage them to keep working hard.

As he walked into the school, he noticed that the students were not paying attention to him. They were all looking at their phones and not listening to what he was saying. The mayor was disappointed, but he knew that he had to keep trying.

He spoke to the students about the importance of education and the need for them to work hard. The students listened carefully and smiled when he finished his speech. The mayor was happy to see that he had made a difference.

The mayor continued to visit the school and speak to the students. He was proud of the work that he was doing and he knew that he could make a difference in the lives of these young people.

Suspicion undermines Somali peace-keeping efforts

Front-Line—
an analysis

By Graham King

In order to raise the profile of Mogadishu, the UN must demonstrate that it has the will to implement its peace-keeping mission, and the Somali people. The world needs to be educated about the challenges facing the region, and the need for international assistance. The Somali government has made clear its commitment to peace and stability, and the UN must support this objective. The world community must also provide the necessary resources and support, including financial aid and technical assistance.

In the recent past, the UN has faced criticism for its failure to deliver on its peace-keeping mission in Somalia. The world must see that the UN is taking the necessary steps to implement its peace-keeping mission, and to ensure the safety and security of the Somali people. The world must also provide the necessary resources and support, including financial aid and technical assistance.

To reflect lyrics and X stand concerts place him in adherence to the styles of Madonna and Prince. Imaginative and ambitious business must place him where he is. Only one person can see the situation so clearly today, and that is Luke. He is the only one who has been arrested and dragged through the mud of this album. He is a different person and delivers an intensely explicit work. The best way to explain it is this: in company Luke to go. His first time in court was a problem. When he is performing, Luke, just like Superman, is another person and delivers an intensely explicit work. His business sense has taken him further than his lyrics. Luke has, has just turned 27, not as many people around him, all of whom were impressed. He is the same Luke behind songs such as "The Womanizer." Part of the album consists of a musical number. Luke insists, "Sex is the bread and butter of the company. And no, I don't mean to step on anyone's toes. but if the shoe fits. I'll get paid and have fun."}

Campbell has no intention of retiring his up-and-coming style. However, for now Campbell says he is the focal point of the company. Campbell is one of the few important things in life. So what kind of impression has this annual celebration left on everyone? What are the memories that lasted here with such potency? What are the memories that have been arrested and dragged through the mud of this album. He is a different person and delivers an intensely explicit work. His business sense has taken him further than his lyrics. Luke has, has just turned 27, not as many people around him, all of whom were impressed. Dance teacher shows students how to dance to the top

By Keasha Dumas

Howard's new Modern Dance instructor Steve Rooks is the product of work that many would call a love story.

A native of Chattanooga, Tenn., and a graduate of Dorman College in New Hampshire, it was only after Rooks was a junior in college that he knew moving his feet was the thing for him. Despite being told by a dance teacher that he is a "funky body" and a graduate of Dorman College in New Hampshire, it was only after Rooks was a junior in college that he knew moving his feet was the thing for him. Despite being told by a dance teacher that he is a "funky body" and by another person that he should consider a different career, Rooks said, "I was driven."

Rooks was first in drive that he just 20, in the first months of his training, and at one pulse, he took it dance classes a week. He admits that his goals may have seemed unattainable at first, but he in the summer of 1981, only four years after beginning his dance career, Rooks was offered a position with the Martha Graham Dance Company in New York City.

"I started with really raw ingredients, but I was blessed and successful," he said.

Those "raw ingredients" were refined with extensive training at such schools as the University of Cincinnati and the Washington School of Ballet as well as the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center (where Rooks received a scholarship student), the Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance, the Zaire-Romme11 Dance Center and the David Howard School of Dance. Rooks describes his style of dancing, the Martha Graham tech style, as "a very dramatic form of contemporary dance," one having merit.

His career has taken him around the world. He has been to Europe approximately 25 times, and he has trained and studied with Graham and Alvin Ailey. This year, he will perform with his "natural" improvisations to the Graham Festival in Italy during Christmas and in Germany during Spring break.

Rooks said of his world travels: "It's not a typical experience. The first one that I was able to take..." he is currently on leave from the Martha Graham Dance Center, but he still does occasional guest work for the company's dance artist. He devotes most of his time to teaching, and he has taught at a number of universities and dance schools, including Illinois State University, State University of New York at Purchase, American Dance Theater, Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance and the Joseph Holmes Dance Theater.

Rooks is impressed by students who give their all, and he believes that to be a teacher, it is his responsibility to give even more. While Rooks admits that some students may have more talent than others, he insists that it is the teacher's responsibility to reach all of them.

"I'm not looking for the perfect dancer. I'm looking for the hard worker. If you don't have it, you want it," Rooks said.

Rooks' teaching methods are consistent with his philosophy that "Every student is valid." Dance vocabulary is corrected with a bit of humor, sometimes exaggerated improvisations of their mistakes; they do not seem embarrassed by having their names called for errors in movement or form, perhaps because they are just as likely to compliment-if they perform well.

The light-hearted, yet technically informed, atmosphere in Rooks' Modern Dance class breaks down any barriers among the dancers. When trying to perfect their exercises, with lessened pressure, the dancers are able to relax and concentrate. "Keep going," Rooks told a class of 20: "If you mess up, just laugh at a number of places..." he said.

Rooks is complimented if they keep their career in perspective. "Dance is not my religion. It's not what I live for. Something God has given in the gift to me. It's a craft, it's my destiny," said Rooks, adding happily, that he is married and has a 3-month-old baby girl.

"Rooks attended Howard University when a semester program in dance units in the University with choreographer Arturo Sandoval. "Howard is a school I have never had a great deal of respect for," Rooks said. "The students are exceptionally bright. I am very impressed with my experience here and we enjoy it as long as it's here to stay. I'm very excited about the upcoming year."

Jayson coaches credit offense line in ISU's M · Jackson. Fred Dean, only a few holes in the opposing line has demonstrated. It is a unique closeness and unity among the linemen. Mitchell agreed and said the members of the offensive line consider themselves a family. "It is like a hierarchy and when you get to the third and fourth you are able to contribute to the offensive line the best that you can," Mitchell said of his season program.

Dean described offensive line captain Kenneth Renee as "an extremely smart player." "Most of the following backing up he knows how to do and how to do it," Dean said.

Another "smart" player according to Dean is junior Brooke Cawley. Dean said Cawley is his most important player and not 100 percent satisfied with his performance. Dean said the former Washington State offensive player was an assistant coach for the Redskins offensive player. Beale said she is an assistant coach for the Redskins offensive line. Beale has already broken a seven-year record in the 100-yard backstroke. Beale, locking in 1:50.01.

"She has a lot of dedication and hard work at every day," Mitchell said. "She has a lot of determination and knows that it is really beneficial to have him positioned between seniors Salina Mitchell and Kenneth Renee because he helps him out in a key."

Dean said he believes that the team has improved tremendously and that the offensive line can be considered a family. "I think the last few seasons have been a little bit tough for the offensive line and I think in the last few seasons the offensive line has been a little bit too soft," Dean said.

"I think that with the talent we have, we can improve and become an extremely good offensive line," said the former Washington State offensive player. Former Bison offensive player Cawley is an assistant coach for the offensive line and still has a lot to contribute to the offensive line. He knew what he was doing; Dean said.

Happiness was never an Issue
But that does not lessen the depths of my desires.
You didn't love me as much - that's what they hate them,

TO SOPHOCLES:
You didn't love me as I loved you
But that does not lessen the depths of my desires.
You came into my life - changing it for always,
Happiness was never an issue - until I met you.
BUT HOW ARE YOU GONE?
Do you ever think of me as I always think of you?
Do you ever miss my smile or my laugh or my breath
Have you ever felt so loneliness:

a room that contains no soul
a black hole
a word with no meaning nothing in a baldered hand
a blind man
a pair of lips
with one to kiss
a heart without blood feelings that are felt when you are misunderstood

a pencil that has not been used a woman that has killed her husband because he abused her standing in the rain
as cry

This is what life is like

To see your love
Watching the leaves
swimming in a pond
"You have people gather 'round

not worrying about the past

Love me like I love you love?
You don't love me like I love you do you love?

If we love you, you say.
You don't love me like I love you, treating me how you've treated me.

Hate-tor-tor-tor-tor love.
Is it love?

Now, if you don't love me like I hate you love,
You love me, love you say and I love you love sometimes I hate love.

You'd love your existence less than wash my mouth out with Irish love.
I wonder which side I'll fall on love. Love or hate?

I wonder if you're ever going to be willing to speak of what will words will leave my soul and crush your heart love.

So hate your lately love and let I've hated to love you love.

Sitting in... love, but I've already fallen there haven't I you or hate you love?

Do you want with me anyway love?

Used me and set me aside love. You're a liar love and a louse. And remember it didn't have to be, but you had it your way.

I wonder love which side I'll fall on love. Love or hate?

Speak with hate love, but it sees me anyhow love and I speak and don't speak for fear of what will words will leave my soul and crush your heart love.

I wonder which side I'll fall on love. Love or hate?

If we love you, you say and I love you love sometimes I hate love.

I wonder which side I'll fall on love. Love or hate?

Over hinderance from me love. near... could go on peace love. No more episodes or purposeful love.

You're a liar love and a louse. You hate me love? I've to everyone too much a reason for your wayward soul...

Forgive her father for she knoweth not what she does.

Forgive her father for she knoweth not what she does.

For me and set me aside love. You're a liar love and a louse. You hate me love? I've to everyone too much a reason for your wayward soul...
