Howard Remembers Brandy Jeffers

Sophomore Student Dies During Finals

By Kerry-Ann Hamilton

The University community has been stunned by the news of a student's untimely death. Brandy Jeffers, a sophomore Classics major, was found deceased in her Meridian Hall room on December 6th of her Meridian Hall room.

Rev. Nathaniel B. Thomas, the Jesuit Community Director at Meridian Hall, said Jeffers' death was a shock to his staff and he and the University community spoke of the deceased student's kindness and intelligence.

She was a good student and was also a representative on the Dean's List. Thomas said, "It was my understanding that Brandy would have gone on to be one of our "great leaders."

Ashley Sargeant, a legal communications major, was one of the first people to realize that Jeffers was not seen in three days.

"I was in the hallway one day when their Meridian Hall, and another friend and I were interrupted about Brandy Sargeant, said, "I made a few phone calls and we had heard nothing about Brandy Sargeant since Sunday."

Brandy Jeffers moved to Meridian Hall fall where she was waiting to be moved. She said that when the resident assistant returned from Jeffers' room and called Rith Thomas, she knew it was a bad scene, but never imagined she had been dead for days.

"No one suspected death. No one was using the corridor to what was one of the comments was speaking to people in the building."

Second Howard Student in Four Years Named Rhodes Scholar

By Kerry-Ann Hamilton

"I think the death of the student is the death of a family," said President Gregory Washington. "It's a very sad occasion for Howard and I know the university community and all Howard students will feel the impact of this loss."

The School of Communications Student Council (SOCSC) held the first volunteer interest meeting, and for the third annual Black Face Award.

The American Face Awards is to honor African-Americans who have been influential, mentors, entrepreneurs in the media, but the executive board also look for individuals who allow students to gain media production.

"We have initiated Communications and Career Counseling together," Armstrong said.

"We came to visit me in my room and I would often visit her."

Armstrong and Jeffers moved to Meridian Hall fall where they lived on the second floor.

Between them Armstrong, said, "We always had things to say."

"I'll always remember her. I will see her fancy and laughing with her at the student center for a few weeks."

The School of Communications Student Council (SOCSC) held the first volunteer interest meeting, and for the third annual Black Face Award.

"I always enjoy the show. The choreography and acting is always well done," said Jeffers. "I think that they should honor Elyse Cofey, she has made many contributions to black in the media," said Caroline Donald, junior music education major.

Currently in its third year the council has not yet confirmed and honored. It is not even certain if the event will be cancelled or relocated.

It seems like only yesterday campaign posters were being displayed around campus with bright-colored banners and lawn signs. At the same time, Howard President, Dr. John F. Thompson, was busy making sure that his presidential campaign was a success.

FILM REVIEW:

Spike Lee is at his best in "25th Hour." His last film, "Do the Right Thing," was a tour de force of bold social commentary.

Lee's latest film, "25th Hour," is a political thriller that explores the world of politics.

A Smile is Worth a Thousand Words

By Eska Davis

"A smile is worth a thousand words," it is commonly said. But why is this so? Studies have shown that people are more likely to trust someone when they smile. This is true even when the smile is not genuine. Furthermore, a smile can be contagious and can make others around you feel happy and content.

A New Year, A New You, A New Outlook

By Taylor Burrett

Happy New Year! I don't know about you, but I really enjoyed my holiday break. Although, as usual, I gained some weight during the holidays, I did manage to do some moderate cardio workouts.

I spent quality time with my family for the first time in almost four years. I even got to meet my new mother (who I don't understand still exists). I spent Christmas in the summer after my sophomore year of undergrad.

The past year has also been challenging, but I'm ready to take on the new year with my new goals.

Not too long ago, I had a new year's resolution about my health. Discontinued, in my opinion, was the resolution to eat healthy. I really should have listened to the nurse at the health center and taken her advice.

Anxiety is about to be a full-blown health crisis. We're currently reaching the end of the year, and it's time to start thinking about our goals for the new year.

Some Howard Students Ill-Informed about Hepatitis B

By Kiera Nelson

Hepatitis B is a viral infection of the liver that can cause liver damage or death. It is caused by the hepatitis B virus (HBV). Hepatitis B can also cause liver cancer. The hepatitis B virus can be transmitted through sexual contact, needle sharing, and mother-to-child transmission. Hepatitis B is transmitted through blood, semen, and sweat.

There is no cure for hepatitis B. However, there are treatments available that can help to manage the symptoms and prevent liver damage. These treatments include antiviral medications, immunoglobulin, and heparin. These medications can be given as a single dose or as a series of injections.

Hepatitis B is transmitted through body fluids, including blood, semen, sweat, saliva, and tears. It can be spread through unprotected sex, sharing needles, and mother-to-child transmission.

People who have hepatitis B are at risk for several complications. These include liver cancer, cirrhosis, and liver transplant. People who have hepatitis B are also at risk for developing hepatitis C, which is another viral infection of the liver.

Hepatitis B is a serious disease, but it can be prevented. This is done by getting vaccinated. Hepatitis B vaccination is recommended for all infants, children, and adults. Hepatitis B vaccination is also recommended for people who are at high risk for hepatitis B, such as people who inject drugs, people who have had multiple sexual partners, and people who have a blood disorder.

Hepatitis B vaccination is given as a series of injections, usually given over a period of six months. The first injection is given at the same time as the second injection, and the second injection is given at the same time as the third injection.

The Crooked E!

In just 15 years, Enron grew from nowhere to be America's seventh largest company, employing 21,000 staff in more than 40 countries.

But the firm's success turned out to have involved an elaborate web of lies.

Enron lied about its profits and hiding assets accused of a range of shady dealings, including concealment of debts so they didn't show up in the company's accounts.

As the depth of the deception unfolded, investors and creditors reacted, forcing the firm into Chapter 11 bankruptcy in December.

In more than six months after a criminal inquiry was announced, the guilty parties have still not been brought to justice.

Conflict in Middle East Put into Perspective After Visit

Peace Process Going Nowhere--Fast

By Lauren Bayne Anderson
Editor-In-Chief

After traveling Israel for eight days, something became very clear to me although both claim to end, the Palestinians nor the Israelis truly want peace. A war that started nearly 6000 years ago continues today in the Holy Land and spreading areas.

While the fight may have started with tales of slavery, progressed to arguments over land and continued over disputes on allowing refugees to return, there is one real reason why the two groups fight today: neither side will put themselves in the other's shoes.

And until this is accomplished, the war will rage on.

The most recent history of the conflict can be traced to the late 1940s.

After the death of a million Jews in the Holocaust, Zionists—the idea that Jews could be settled in the land of Israel—became popular. Since the death of Jesus, Jews were driven from country to country.

The Holocaust was not the latest example of anti-Semitism and Jews left, without the creation of their own country they would be wiped out.

The creation of Israel was supported by the United Nations. And in 1948, Israel was established. Jews celebrated their independence in the streets, knowing that there would be rough times ahead. The next day war broke out between Israel and seven Islamic countries.

While the war ended a year later, there was no resolution to the fighting never really stopped.

The problem with the newly established country was not the creation of a Jewish state, but the fact that people were already living on the land.

But problems with a peace movement came from both sides. The issues are simple, but hard to change. The Israelis must really understand why the Palestinian feels they are entitled to the land and find another solution to the issue of the Palestinians is the West Bank and Gaza Strip, while the Israelis believe in an iron out external problems.

While there is some violence in the major cities of Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, among other places, most of the violence takes place in the West Bank and Gaza Strip (highlighted in orange). These areas are populated with Palestinians and a number of Jewish settlements.

Israel is about the size of New Jersey.

In the West Bank, the Palestinian movement comes from both sides. The issues are simple, but hard to change. The problem with the newly established country was not the creation of a Jewish state, but the fact that people were already living on the land.

The creation of Israel was supported by the United Nations. And in 1948, Israel was established. Jews celebrated their independence in the streets, knowing that there would be rough times ahead. The next day war broke out between Israel and seven Islamic countries.

While the war ended a year later, there was no resolution to the fighting never really stopped.

Since its inception, the Grammy's shouldn't have been a matter for the 45th annual Grammy award ceremony of its kind. The Grammy's shouldn't even cism for those who have been upon musical legends such as Bob Dylan and Bruce Springsteen, but instead should have been recognized. This is the point where musical culture around the globe is being threatened not to be enlightened. The only misstep, and I don't care what your opinion is, is Liotta's dream.

But let's take a look at the film. "Narc" is a police drama, especially for him to be recognized. This is why those who want to look the Grammies like I used to, turned out as well without them. Nonetheless, Narc would prove to be a dream that would be infinitely more difficult to realize. "It's funny that this movie is getting so much attention, now," Liotta said. "But when I first read the script, I knew that we would lose all my money."

In fact, a few weeks into production, a few banks had pulled out of their loans and funding for "Narc" dried up and Liotta and crew were forced to find backers for the film. "I think we ended up with 20 producers, including me," Liotta explained. "At one point, while getting all of these, backer, Michael, said, 'I can't win, I'm winning, I can't win.'" However, Liotta and Chenzaitis's persistence paid off in the end, especially when the film crossed the desk of Paul Wagoner, producing partner of Tom DiCillo. "They don't really seem to know if this all would have worked out without some of us."

"I think we worked with 20 producers, including me," Liotta explained. "At one point, while getting all of these, backer, Michael, said, 'I can't win, I'm winning, I can't win.'"

But as the music industry becomes more and more predictable, so have the music awards. "The Emmit Show," has been annualized for at least a year, the first hip-hop album often ever to be nominated. This is the point where musical culture around the globe is being threatened not to be enlightened. The only misstep, and I don't care what your opinion is, is Liotta's dream.

Lady Bison Get 1st Win Against Norfolk State University

By Forraya McDonald
Contributing Writer

Lady Bison's 43 first half points in front of a home crowd has been a theme in the nickel, salty NFL defensive coordinator's bite of life with quick running and extreme pass pressure.

After starting the regular season with two losses to Green Bay and Chicago, Atlanta's offensive prowess together with the help of running back Warrick Dunn and T.J. Duckett produced an effective offensive weapons against Falcons opponents. The only exception coming from Tampa Bay, who lost to Atlanta in Atlanta.

Phil's defensive pressure's shortcomings would dissolve after Phils breaker broke his ankle against the Arizona Cardinals.

For the Tombs to be held to 3 points in just seven minutes on the night, and two of them came with 2:13 left to play. A jumper from Courtney Kirk iced the game with 2:13 left to play.

Before Wednesday's night game against Norfolk State University, Lady Spartans' Howard's Lady Bison were saddled with an o-5 overall record and an 0-3 MEAC record. After the game, they finally had a notch in the win column and a great feeling of relief.

Howard's strides made a strong showing this past weekend at the Maryland Invitational in Landover. Competing against Howard were MEAC opponents Coppin State, Morgan State, Bowie State, Hampton, and UMES, also running with the University of Maryland, Johns Hopkins University, and UMBC, and a host of other local and mid-Atlantic teams.

Howard Falls to Hampton in Conference Opener

By Thomas Savage Jr.

Fate packed a gymnasium at Howard as Hampton entered a conference sched­ule against Howard. Hampton's coach, Frankie Collins, was a veteran of last season's MEAC championship. The Bison came off a low to the College of Charleston and looked forward to starting the year with a win against Hampton, this year's favorite to win the MEAC championship.

Hampton entered being three of their last four games. The Bison seemed different than it did their last home game against St. Francis of New York. With the loss of three players, freshman Louis Ford, junior guard Simone Agee, and LaShondra Dixon combined for 12 points. Hampton was able to get a total of 80 points from their bench compared to 52 points given up by Howard's bench.

"We had to know how to pace ourselves so we could stay in the game," said Olu Giles, head coach for the Bison. "We had to know how to pace ourselves so we could stay in the game.

The depth of the Hampton bench proved to be too much for the short-handed Bison. Hampton was able to get 10 points from their bench to 7 points from the Howard bench. Hampton's bench also outscored Howard's 16-2.

"We wanted to keep this ball live in the court," said Hampton coach coach Ron Williamson. "We had to get this turned around.

The Bison entered the second half running by 26 points and leading the game 44-33. Hampton went into the second half, looking to pull away with 64-47 lead.

With 6 minutes left in the game, Hampton was able to maintain their strength and begin to chip away at the Pirates lead. With a little over seven minutes left in the game, Hampton guards Biana Johnson and LaShondra Dixon combined for 12 points during the first ten minutes of the first half, allowing the Pirates to take an 18 point lead. The Pirates dominated the rest of the half and went into the locker room leading 44-23.

The Pirates and Lady Bison started the second half of scoring. However, with twelve minutes left in the game the Lady Bison were able to mount a comeback and began to chip away at the Pirates lead. With a little over seven minutes left in the game, Hampton guard Briana Agee hit a three from the Lady Bison bench.

Robert B. Johnson is the first black billionaire added another first to his list when he became majority owner of the Cincinnati basketball franchise, a significant step but one that needs to be measured. Since Charles, Motown, and Willard Lloyd became the first black players to play in the NBA, the 1995-96 season was a first for the Millionaire. The NBA is an industry where gaining its power to black youth is to forge their enthusiasm for the chance to make a real first black player - an industry where it's no longer about being black but who can make the most.

But it is an industry that is swiftnessed with power - the industry of black movie stars. Just say industry where history has been made to forge its enthusiasm in management - an industry where the seeds of black success are just as important as history. We can also look to our future.

An Israeli Christian woman prays at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. The church is built over the hill where the Crucifixion of Jesus took place.

That number, added to the 3.5 million Palestinians living in the territories, would closely rival the population of the 6 million Jewish Israelis and leave the country open for attack. It was with the failure of the talks that the most recent round of terror broke out, the Intifada—which continues to the present day—for them to even be nominated in the category. But as far as I'm concerned, it would be total nonsense for there to be any thinking the territories are called the award "Most Popular New Artist." Wrong. At the 42nd Annual Grammy Awards, back in Florida for a year and a half. With positive endorsements from established artists like the Roots and Mary J. Blige, the album was finally officially released, albeit exclusively via Chesnutt's Web site (cedychesnutt.com), last month.

"If even they know about music, they know the business has taught them, which is the same old formula. They've got to get some of the people, But this is not something that will kill the potential bomber is caught. While not every religion has adapted to the treatment of the Israelis, the government responded by enlisting three Palestinian universities to increase military presence in the territories, even tearing the trial plans for the Palestinian delegates. Hence, the cycle continues. Throughout the trip, many of the Israelis we spoke with said they did not believe at any point that the Palestinians that they don't care anymore. You sure the same is true for the Palestinians toward us?" Oppenheimer asked.

"If you feel threatened, you use more bombs to win the game," Oppenheimer said. "If you think it's going to work, you have to make even more bombs to win the game."

"It's just a few steps up, just one more thing to do. If you throw the right pieces toward in circles. It goes back around in circles. It goes back to the basic element of the street, from the gutter to the glorious crescent."

"I just used the bare elements—" I said—and the producers and the back-up band and a four-track, you don't have much of a chance to make the songs more listener-friendly.

"You have to make the songs in a way that will work in the studio and get a record deal, saying, 'Let's re-record this album.' But the idea of making it "Therefore, he said, they want to lose will probably win. But everyone you want to win will probably lose."
