HUGH LAWSON SHEARER

Hugh Lawson Shearer, Prime Minister of Jamaica, was born in the village of Martha Brae just outside of Falmouth, Trelawny, where he attended primary school and won a parish scholarship to St. Simon's College in Kingston.

Beginning his career as a journalist, Mr. Shearer worked on the weekly "Jamaica Worker," the newspaper of the Bustamante Industrial Trade Union, and eventually became its editor. While in the latter position he initiated his apprenticeship as a trade unionist, played an active role in the 1944 elections which were won by the Jamaica Labour Party, and was appointed assistant General Secretary of the organization in 1947. It was also during 1947 that he won the Central St. Andrew seat on the Kingston and St. Andrew Corporation Council.

Recognized as a key figure in trade union circles, Mr. Shearer was selected one of Jamaica's labour representatives to the Moral Rearmament Conference in Switzerland in 1951, and was appointed Island Supervisor of the Union in 1953. In 1955 he won a seat in the House of Representatives and in 1960 was elected vice president of the Union.

Following the 1961 referendum and Jamaica's withdrawal from the West Indies Federation, Mr. Shearer, moving ahead in governmental affairs, received appointments to the Legislative Council, was made Leader of Government Business and a Minister without Portfolio, and was later appointed Deputy Chief of Mission for Jamaica at the United Nations General Assembly. His proposal that 1968 be designated Human Rights Year was adopted by the United Nations.

A member of the Jamaican delegation at the Commonwealth Prime Minister's Conference in September 1966, Mr. Shearer won the seat in the 1967 General Elections which had previously been held by Sir Alexander Bustamante and was appointed Minister of External Affairs on February 27, 1967. # Alma Mater

Reared against the eastern sky
Proudly there on hilltop high,
Far above the lake so blue
Stands old Howard firm and true.
There she stands for truth and right,
Sending forth her rays of light,
Clad in robes of majesty;
O Howard, we sing of thee.

Be thou still our guide and stay,
Leading us from day to day;
Make us true and leal and strong,
Ever bold to battle wrong.
When from thee we're gone away,
May we strive for thee each day

As we sail life's rugged sea,
O Howard, we'll sing of thee.
