Student accounts, loan offices damaged in fire

Officials believe electrical faults caused fire, arson not ruled out

By Dea Stad

Students report that the Administration Building at Howard University is on fire, and that the fire alarm system is not working.

The fire was discovered at 12:15 a.m., and fire fighters were called to the scene. The fire was contained, and there were no injuries reported.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation. The administration building is closed until further notice.

The Howard University Football team is preparing to play against Morehouse College. The game will be held at B.T. Harvey Stadium on October 22, as part of the annual series between the two schools. The game is expected to be a close contest, with both teams having strong offensive and defensive units.

The Howard team is currently ranked #18 in the nation, and has won their last three games. The Morehouse team is ranked #21, and has also won their last three games.

The game is expected to be a high-scoring affair, with both teams having strong offensive units. The team with the better defense is likely to come out on top.

The game will be broadcast on local radio stations, and is expected to draw a large crowd.

The Howard University Marching Band has been invited to perform at the 50th anniversary of the National Negro Congress. The band will be performing on October 24th, as part of the anniversary celebration.

The National Negro Congress was founded in 1940 by A. Philip Randolph, and was a major force in the civil rights movement. The band is expected to perform a variety of songs, including traditional marching band music, along with contemporary songs.

The band is excited to be invited to perform at this historic event, and is looking forward to showcasing their musical talents.

By John Lee

The Howard University Concert Choir will be performing at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. on October 23rd. The choir will be performing a variety of classical and contemporary works, including works by Johannes Brahms, George Frideric Handel, and Leonard Bernstein.

The choir is composed of students from Howard University, and is directed by Dr. Richard Williams. The choir is expected to perform at a high level, and is looking forward to showcasing their musical talents.

The performance will be held at 8:00 p.m., and is expected to draw a large crowd. Tickets are available through the Kennedy Center website, and are expected to sell out quickly.
Goldsby's recital sparks controversy, protest

By Autumn Woods

Byrd spinach. Andrew Young, the former Atlanta Mayor, performed Goldsby's recital, which was met with controversy and protest.

Gold'sby's recital was well received by the audience, but some students were unhappy with the choice of recitalist. Goldsby, a proclaimed supporter of Dr. King, was accused of having a history of hateful speech.

Goldby's recital took place in the University's main auditorium, and it was attended by hundreds of students and faculty members. The recital was praised for its joyful and uplifting music, but some attendees were concerned about Goldsby's past actions.

Goldsby's recital was the center of controversy, with some students calling for its cancellation and others defending its continuation. The controversy sparked a debate about free speech and the role of universities in promoting diversity and inclusion.

Panelists, University students and faculty explored free speech at forum

By Casey Thompson

Byrd spinach. A forum was held to explore the issue of free speech on campus. The forum was attended by faculty members, students and community leaders, and it featured several panelists.

The panelists discussed the importance of free speech and its role in a diverse society. They also talked about the challenges of balancing free speech with the need to protect students from hate speech.

The forum was facilitated by Professor Andrew Young, who shared personal memories of Dr. King and his contributions.

Meridian Hall opens weightroom

By Larry Foote

Byrd spinach. Meridian Hall, a residence hall on campus, has opened a new weight room. The weight room was funded by a grant from Nike, Inc.

The weight room is part of a larger facility that includes a fitness center, a pool and a tennis court. The facility was created to improve the quality of life for students living in Meridian Hall.

The weight room is open 24 hours a day and includes equipment for strength training and cardio. It is a popular destination for students who want to stay fit and healthy.

Homecoming officials reflect on challenges

By Derrick M. Daniels

Byrd spinach. The Homecoming festivities were held last week, and officials are reflecting on the challenges of planning such an event.

The Homecoming week featured a variety of activities, including a football game, a parade and a large party. However, officials had to deal with a variety of challenges, including a lack of funding and a shortage of volunteers.

Despite the challenges, officials believe that the Homecoming festivities were successful and that they helped to bring the community together.

"It was a challenging year," said Homecoming Chairperson Derrick M. Daniels. "But we were able to overcome the challenges and put on a great event."

Sista 2 Sista' coordinator Sabirah Moten, a senior at Howard in the Psychology Department and member of SHBC, feels that the students of WHBC can make a difference in the community. She, along with her advisor, have been working to increase the general awareness of WHBC and its activities. The students are reaching out to the community to let them know that there is a radio station that is run by students.

Moten believes that the students have the ability to make a difference because of the close-knit community they have formed. She says, "The students at WHBC are very passionate about what they do and they are very committed to giving back to the community." She also feels that the students have the ability to make a difference because of the support they receive from their advisor, Dr. Greg Guidry.

Guidry, who has been with WHBC for over six years, feels that the students have the ability to make a difference because of the support they receive from the community. He says, "The community has been very supportive of WHBC and the students. They have given us a lot of encouragement and support." He also feels that the students have the ability to make a difference because of the support they receive from each other.

Moten and Guidry are working to increase the general awareness of WHBC and its activities. They are reaching out to the community to let them know that there is a radio station that is run by students.

Metrorail constructs citywide system upgrade

By Manu Choudhury

Washington, D.C., Board of Education recently announced its plan to expand the city's Metrorail system. The board has allocated $50 million for the construction of new stations and improvements to existing ones. The project is expected to be completed within the next five years.

The expansion will include new stations in the northwest and southeast areas of the city. The board also plans to add more weekday and weekend service, especially during peak commuting hours.

The new stations will be equipped with modern technology, including real-time train arrival and departure information. The project is expected to create thousands of jobs and improve transportation options for residents.

The board has also set aside $10 million for environmental upgrades, including green roofs and solar panels, to reduce the project's carbon footprint.

The board's decision to expand the Metrorail system comes as the city experiences rapid growth and increasing traffic congestion. The expansion is expected to provide relief to commuters and reduce the number of cars on the road.

The project is scheduled to begin in early 2023 and is expected to be completed by 2027. The board has requested bids from contractors and is expected to award the contracts in the next few months.

In related news, the D.C. Board of Education has also announced a $20 million investment in the city's public schools. The money will be used to improve school facilities, hire additional teachers, and fund additional programs.

The board's decision to expand the Metrorail system and invest in public schools is seen as a positive step towards improving transportation and education options for residents.

GOP poised to take control of Senate body

By Lyall White Stone

The Hilltop Staff Writer

Republican leaders in Congress are expected to push through a bill in the 106th Congress that would allow them to take control of the Senate.

In addition to dealing with the issues of crime and drug abuse, the Senate is expected to consider a number of other matters, including environmental policies, health care, and education.

The Senate is currently divided equally, with the Democrats controlling the chamber. However, Republicans are expected to have enough votes to pass legislation.

In addition to the Senate, the House of Representatives is also expected to consider a number of important bills.

The Hilltop is a biweekly newspaper that covers local, state, and national politics. It is published in the United States and is available online and in print.

Forum discusses South African economy

By Patricia Hardin

The current ethnic violence in South Africa and their fragile political situation, according to Eric Royster, professor of political science at the University of California, San Diego, is likely to continue for some time in the future as the country struggles to overcome the legacy of apartheid.

Royster, who was one of the speakers at the University of California's Fourth Annual Conference on South Africa last week, said that the government needs to continue to address the economic problems that have plagued the country since the end of apartheid.

He said that the government needs to do more to help the poor, increase education opportunities, and reduce crime.

Royster also noted that the government needs to do more to address the issue of land reform, which has been a major source of conflict in South Africa.

Royster's comments were echoed by other speakers at the conference, who said that the government needs to do more to address the economic problems that have plagued the country since the end of apartheid.

The conference, which was held in collaboration with the University of California's Institute of International Studies, brought together experts from around the world to discuss the challenges facing South Africa today.

The forum was part of a series of events held in Los Angeles during the past week to mark the 20th anniversary of the fall of apartheid.

MBA students seek respect from University

By Sheneineqy Stratford

Hilltop Staff Writer

Steve Daniels, director of Marketing and Communication at Howard University, said that the MBA program at Howard University, which began in 1927, is one of the oldest in the country. Although the MBA program is the most popular at Howard, it is not the only program offered. There are also undergraduate programs in business administration and graduate programs in finance, management, and economics.

Many of the activities of the MBA program are centered around recruiting and enrollment, because they are usually the most important aspects of the program. Students in the MBA program are often recruited through the undergraduate program.

"Student in the MBA program," said the first-year MBA student, "are most of the things that we do. They are not as important as the things we do in the undergraduate program. However, we do try to make them feel welcome and included.

MBA students seek respect from University Graduate Student Association.

"We are trying to become a student council but we are not yet considered as a student council," said the MBA student. "We have no governing voice within the University. They are not affiliated with the University. They have no governing voice within the Graduate Student Association.

The student council does have meetings and with undergraduate students. We try to have meetings in the Student Center, but we don't have a location.

We have no governing voice within the University. They have no governing voice within the Graduate Student Association. We are trying to become a student council but we are not yet considered as a student council."

Over 1.6 million people in education and research know that choosing TIAA-CREF was a smart move. And now everyone else does, too. Because TIAA-CREF—once the nation's leading sponsor of variable annuities and mutual fund information—has seen similar things to say about your preferred retirement options.

"The comparable combination of depth and return has earned the CREF Stock Account a five-star rating."

After studying CREF's performance history, Merrill Lynch gave five stars—its highest rating—in both the CREF Stock and Bond Market Accounts, and an impressive facetrack in the CREF Social Choice Account. In fact, the CREF Stock Account was singled out as having one of the best 10-year records among variable accounts. Of course, past performance is no guarantee of future results.

"The CREF is far and away the simplest variable annuity on the market."

Merrill Lynch also cited strength in CREF's long-lasting plans—something that rarely adds a price of any kind along the road.

What's more, TI A A-CREF's traditional annuity—which offers guaranteed principal and interest plus the opportunity for dividends—was cited as having the highest bond account interest rate among all annuities in its class.

We're happy to accept Merrill Lynch's glowing ratings. But since it's all too focus on stars, we'll keep focusing on something more down-to-earth:
building the financial future you want and deserving.

A Soul Full of Anger
...And So Here I Stand

A lovely place to which I belong,
A peaceful noise, a joyous song.
One stands in the distance,
and that one is me.
Looking out at the land,
as far as can see.
The home of the free,
and the land of the brave.
Built up from the sweat,
and the work of a slave.
I am the native,
and so here I stand.

Behind this one nation,
or is it one man.

I seek my freedom,
not all here alike.
Speaks this heart of a black girl,
with courage held tight.
Robbed of my culture,
and forced here by chain.
Raped of my identity,
and given a name.

A dream, the past,
long ago yet so near.
The cry of my people,
the rage and the fear.

My soft voice once a whisper,
now a yell and a shout.

Pain and suffering,
a lifestyle, my kind.

A Soul Full of Anger...
And So Here I Stand.

I am the link of present to past,
they paved the way, now there's freedom at last.

Books my teachers,
of an intelligent race.

(Dedicated to Kisha Oliver)
Remembering Freshman Year

I often sit to myself thinking of you Wondering what it is that I should do
To make you realize what you mean to me
If only there were some way
I could make you see
I know the mistake I made
I was huge
I regret it
every time I look at you Trust me when I tell you how I feel

That is the only way
my heart will heal
I miss the times
we've had together
They were not all bad
Do you remember?
I want so much for you to care
The way I feel is very rare
My heart beats faster whenever you're near Sometimes I am afraid that you will hear
You always make me
laugh and smile
I love being with you even for a short while I wish you could believe the things I say
I would never (intentionally) hurt you in any way
I would do anything
you asked of me
If it meant that you would come back to me
I sometimes picture you with someone else
and, I hate her....
Knowing I can blame only myself that she became the winner

16th Street Blues

Three days later
and the hood lingers as if waiting to clot on summer concrete

Were it not for flies
swarming like omens
Were it not for their Vulture circling over the crimson feast
Maybe the wondering of how loud she screamed would not seem so bad

No one even bothers to wash the sidewalk
Perhaps it would be foolish like rinsing rain from streets in the midst of a storm

What is Bourgeoisie?

"Bourgeoisie is a person who feels that they or someone else is materialistic, because of their economic and social background.

Princess Tomlinson

Bourgeoisie is an attitude that a person carries, the expressions on their face, the comments they make. It doesn't mean they have to do anything with it, but it means they are carrying the commitments, the responsibilities - "deadbeats," of their parents' identity. They feel that," Wise said.

"Despite what they and others have for them. They pretend to be someone else, but they are better than that, too," she said.

"I knew that financially I could hold their heads too high, for fear of them looking down on them. I knew that financially I could hold their heads too high, for fear of them looking down on them."

Talented director dedicated to increasing Ph.D.

Michael Spencer works hard to prepare students for world of innovation

By Russell Rükseld

Professor Clayton Wilson Bates Jr. owes it all to a good friend. He was a high school basketball player, and this friend was a star on the basketball team. Bates Jr. was not good enough to make the varsity team, but his friend convinced the coach to give him a chance. Bates Jr. fell in love with the sport and eventually became a professional basketball player. He attributes his success to the encouragement of his friend.

Bates Jr. was born in Harlem, New York, and attended John Jay High School. He later attended New York University, where he earned a degree in electrical engineering. He then went on to earn a Ph.D. in electrical engineering from Cornell University. He is currently a professor at the University of California, Berkeley.

Bates Jr. has been a successful engineer throughout his career. He has worked on many projects, including the development of solar cells and the design of electronic devices. He has received numerous awards for his work, including the National Science Foundation CAREER Award and the Presidential Early Career Award for Scientists and Engineers.

Bates Jr. believes that all children should have the opportunity to pursue their dreams, regardless of their background. He works hard to inspire young people to pursue careers in science and engineering, and he is dedicated to increasing the number of Ph.D. students in these fields.

Bates Jr. has also been involved in community service. He has served on the board of directors for several organizations, including the National Society of Black Engineers and the National Association of Black Engineers. He has also been involved in many community events, including basketball tournaments and science fairs.

Bates Jr. is a shining example of what can be achieved through hard work and dedication. He is a powerful force in the world of science and engineering, and he continues to inspire others to pursue their dreams.

Biggie Smalls: Mr. Big Stuff accomplishments l' no little fes

By Paul Cherry

Biggie Smalls' debut album, Ready To Dri, has the potential to be as big a hit as any that preceded it.

From the second the album begins, it is clear that Smalls is up to the task. The first track, "Dri Got a Baby," is a strong start to what promises to be an album that will be remembered for years to come.

Talented Tenth depicts harsh realities of Black life

By Miguel R. Burke

Slang is like "It ain't where you're from, it's where you're at." It's used to define our culture and it is certainly evident in the group's latest album, "The Soul of a Nation." The album is a combination of music, poetry, and spoken word that tells the story of the Black experience in America.

Wes Craven's 'New Nightmare'

Freddy Krueger reincarnated in latest psychological thriller

By Erica Johnson

Halloween and the Friday the 13th franchise home video releases will ensure this film's success.

Wes Craven's latest psychological horror, "New Nightmare," once again takes the audience on an the wrong turn and the development of Freddy Krueger's successor.

Criminals will be around, as New Nightmare is set during the time when Freddy Krueger's reign of terror is supposed to end. However, with the emergence of the new predator, the plot thickens.

"This time the evil is not completely killed," said Cooper. "The story has been expanded to include new characters and new situations."

The film will be released on October 30th, just in time for Halloween. The audience can expect a thrilling and suspenseful experience as they follow the adventures of the new predators.

Fair trial vs. free press

The government that THE HILLTOP is grateful to and fond of, J.K. E. trial and the overwhelming attention that press coverage received. Many of us would not have been able to hear about another recent Supreme Court decision, DNA results and witness testimony, because the decision of the case ever again. We have had enough already, and that would mean the public's right to know. Therefore, the press must be allowed to investigate and report without barriers that hinder its ability to serve.

Nowhere to park

For students who use cars, parking around "The Mound" or the Student Union, finding a parking space can be a challenging task. Whether they commute to school or live on campus, students often face the challenge of finding parking spaces. On-campus parking can be particularly challenging for students who live in dormitories or off-campus housing. As the number of cars on campus increases, the availability of parking spaces becomes a significant issue. If a student arrives too late, they may not be able to find a spot to park their car. This can be frustrating and time-consuming, especially if they need to find another parking spot or rely on public transportation. The problems of parking are not limited to students; faculty and staff also face challenges in finding parking spaces. This issue has been addressed by implementing various solutions, such as increasing the number of parking spaces, implementing parking structures, and offering incentives for alternative modes of transportation. These efforts have helped alleviate some of the parking challenges on campus. However, more needs to be done to ensure that students and faculty have easy access to parking spaces. A proposed solution could be to develop a comprehensive parking plan that considers the needs of all stakeholders, including students, faculty, and staff. This plan could include measures such as improving signage, implementing parking structures, and offering incentives for alternative modes of transportation. By addressing the parking challenges on campus, we can ensure that students and faculty have easy access to parking spaces, reducing the stress and frustration associated with finding a parking spot.
Miseducation of youth threatens our future

Rajah Saleh

It is not that we want to encourage any sort of violence, but we have to do something to protect the American and New Jersey communities, as well as the rest of the country. We need to take action to prevent violence before it becomes a problem.

Rajah Saleh

We need to support OB/GYNs in their efforts to provide proper care to women. The medical community must work together to ensure that all women receive the care they need.

Attention Hilltop Staff:
Thanks for all of the hard work. You're all getting the hand of the 1950s and it's really starting to show — from A1 to B14. Keep it up.

Don't forget date, time and place for our yearbook group photo.
