THE ALMA MATER

Reared against the eastern sky
Proudly there on hilltop high,
Far above the lake so blue
Stands old Howard firm and true.
There she stands for truth and right,
Sending forth her rays of light,
Clad in robes of majesty:
O Howard we sing of thee.

Be thou still our guide and stay,
Leading us from day to day;
Make us true and leal and strong,
Ever bold to battle wrong.
When from thee we've gone away,
May we strive for thee each day
As we sail life's rugged sea,
O Howard we'll sing of thee.

Words by J. H. Brooks, '16

From the struggles, aspirations, and hopes of our forefathers, ...

emerged a fearless leader whose mighty pen and voice proved that nothing could be achieved without a constant and relentless struggle ...

Howard was born a child of necessity - necessity to educate the newly freed men . . .

Then new leaders arose, each offering a new philosophy to continue the battle for equality, justice and human dignity . . .

With the seventies came new ideas and forces—sometimes conflicting— but all leading to the total awareness of and commitment to the Black man's position and role in today's world . . .

Like the struggle, Howard has grown in size and mission - from its beginnings as one campus institution for the "freedmen" to a multi-campus university serving the needs of peoples and nations all over the world. In the spirit of the same struggle, . . .

Howardites of Yesterday and Today, together look forward ...

... to new worlds of hope and challenge.

Charter Day 1976

On March 2, 1976, many members of the Howard community - students, instructors and administrators - gathered in Cramton Auditorium to commemorate the 109th anniversary of the founding of Howard University. This celebration is an annual re-dedication of the University to the task for which it was created - that of educating Black men and women disadvantaged by a system of racial discrimination.

Howard took this occasion to honor five alumni of the University for distinguished postgraduate achievement. Those honored were Coach James "Ted" Chambers in the areas of Athletics and Community Service, Dr. James Comer in the fields of Medicine and Community Service, Major General Benjamin Hunton in the areas of Military Science and Public Service, Mrs. Roxie Roker Kravitz in the Performing Arts, and Mr. G. Frederick Stanton in the field of University and Community Service. The University also took the occasion to award a special citation to Howard Alumnus, U.S. Senator Edward Brooke, the Master of Ceremonies.

STUDENT LIFE

Howard University Soul Steppers Get Down!

Life at Howard goes on. Students work, sleep, communicate and rejoice.

Howard students are involved in all aspects of various learning situations.

Orientation

Orientation is a program of activities offered by the Office of Student Life to help introduce new students to Howard - its people, its buildings, and its life in general.

According to Andrew Coleman, director of New Student Orientation, the Orientation Program at Howard is designed to provide a comprehensive program for new students that will minimize their problems and other difficulties, thereby making their transition to Howard University an orderly and smooth process.

However, students cannot hope to learn in this brief period, all there is to know about the complexities of college life. Knowing Howard is a process which occurs throughout the time one spends on the campus.

Registration

Long queues, missing class cards, numerous fruitless trips to the "A" building - these are some of the hassles one encounters upon registration at Howard University. The guidelines for registration are posted at strategic points around campus, yet some students still become confused. Amidst all the hustle and bustle of transacting business, no one seems to be able to explain the procedure to those who are unfamiliar with the system. Here is a word of advice to those students who have been frustrated with the registration procedure: "Next year, pre-register!"

Campus Life

Come rain, sunshine, sleet or snow, one rarely finds the Howard campus dull. The campus is the scene of many activities, such as plays, concerts, and meetings of interest to both students and the public. A sunny day invites all to come to campus with the intention of going to class. However, some students give in to temptation and end up playing with frisbees, checking out the wares of sidewalk vendors, or generally having fun with friends.

Whatever it is that a student decides to do, Howard offers ample opportunities for studying as well as for involvement with both the student body and the community.

Campus Demonstration Yesterday and Today

In the past ten years, most universities have experienced at least one student uprising in some form or fashion. It happened at Howard in 1968 and again in 1975. The climate of the times dictated the issues which were brought to light.

In 1968, Howard students began asserting their rights against the administration, which culminated in a five-day takeover of the administration building by students. The primary concern of the students was that Howard be a school with a Black perspective.

Among other things, students demanded that Howard become the center of Afro-American thought and that certain departments in the university reassess their programs and gear them toward the liberation of Black people. They demanded the resignation of administrators who chose to relegate the race issue to the background of the focus of Howard.

Students worked together for the achievement of their desired goals. At the end of the demonstration students felt happy that they have made some strides toward the liberation of the university, thus winning respect for themselves as integral part of the decision making organs of the institution.

The major issue in the demonstration of October 1975, was one of economics. Students were protesting the ever rising costs of education at Howard University. They demanded the dismissal of Saga Foods, the resignation of Professor Rubin, provision for a 24 hour library and better bookstore and library facilities. They also demanded that more attention be given to the problems of international students. Students, through the twenty-four hour occupation of "A" building forced the administration to realize that students could not bear the burden of increased tuition at this time and elicited some response to the other demands.

Love it or hate it - the dormitory is a fact of life at Howard which cannot be escaped. Whether you live in the "Quad" with its stringent restrictions, or in Slowe with its high burglary rate, or in Drew, Cook, or the Meridian, you cannot but share the concern of most students that the dormitories need improvement.

However slow in coming, change is on its way. This year saw more implementation of dormitory programming tailored to student interest than ever before. From a jazz show in Slowe Hall to a lecture on symbolism in African art, the dorms have been the scene of activities designed to widen students' horizons.

Off-Campus

Missing buses, traffic, high rent - these are part of the price one pays for living off-campus.

Despite all of the hassles, many people gladly cope for the reward of having a place of their own. Those students who live off-campus do so for various reasons. Some cite the need for privacy as a person; others feel that maintaining a house or an apartment is part of accepting the responsibilities of adulthood. Some simply cannot cope with living in just one room. Whatever the reason may be, students who live off-campus have declared their independence to the world.

Office Of Student Life

Each year, the Office of Student Life creates new services for Howard students and improves existing ones.

Vincent Johns, Director of Student Activities, indicated that creating programs to reach all segments of the student body is difficult due to the vast diversity in student interest and attitudes. However, the department has successfully maintained a variety of programs which stimulate student awareness.

One of the first programs students are introduced to by the Office of Student Life is the New Student Orientation program. A part of Orientation is designed to acquaint students with the many opportunities offered by Howard's 17 schools and colleges. The Office also coordinates the intramural sports program, recreation activities, the volunteer bureau, and publishes the H-Book and the Student Organizations Directory.

Students not only benefit from programs instituted by the department, but are also aided by the expertise and assistance the staff offers to campus organizations in development of programs and objectives. The Office of Student Life also offers financial assistance to organizations which sponsor programs in the interest of a cross-section of the student body.

Currently, the office staff is finalizing plans for the new University Center, and welcomes all input from students. As Vincent Johns noted, "Students have to get involved with the activities of the Office of Student Life to make them more meaningful".

Who's Who

Howard University
Washington, D.C.

Hodari Ali

Hodari Ali believes that the pen is mightier than the sword! This Californian has shared his journalistic talent with many campus publications. Needless to say, his name will always bring to mind the Hilltop, since his participation on the paper's staff has been so extensive. He has served as a reporter, News Editor, and as Editor-in-Chief. Hodari was also the first photography editor and contributing editor of the School of Communications newspaper, The Communicator. When WHBC, the first student carrier current radio at Howard, went on the air, Ali was appointed chairman of the station's task force and public affairs director. In 1974, Ali was awarded a Lucy Moten Fellowship and traveled to Africa to study the eastern regions' press. He was also a member of the School of Communications Frederick Douglass Honor Club.

Hodari Ali

Rhetta Marie Douglass

Rhetta Marie Douglass

Rhetta represents the School of Communications well both academically and socially. Not only has she maintained a high standard of scholarship as evidenced by her acceptance into the Frederick Douglass Honor Club, but she was also selected as a member of the Miss Howard Homecoming Court in 1974. In addition to being a conscientious student, Rhetta has been news director of WHBC, associate student news director for WHUR, and a Hilltop staff reporter. This native of Washington has certainly contributed to the Howard family.

Cynthia A. Scott (not shown)

The devotion of Cynthia A. Scott to her fellow students heavily influenced her nomination to Who's Who. Cynthia has shown an involved interest in faculty-student relations having served effectively on the Executive Council, the most important Council in the College of Pharmacy. She is the first member of the College to be elected to the Council of Students, a prestigious committee of the National American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy. She has also represented Howard on other national committees. Cynthia, whose hobbies include music, sports and craft, is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.

Ivy Camille Sharpe (not shown)

This Georgonian is quiet and easygoing, yet she has made quite an impact on the University community. Ivy, with her enthusiastic spirit and willingness to help has participated as a majorette in the Marching Band, and was representative to the School of Communications Student Council. A firm belief in high standards of scholarship has enabled Ivy to excel academically and become a Frederick Douglass Club Scholar in the School of Communications. This dedicated member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority is Anti-Grammatis of that organization. With her proven ability and perseverance, Ivy is sure to be a productive member of any community she settles in.

Jacque E. Turner (not shown)

While some people think of monetary reward first, it is a rare pleasure to find one who works willingly with only hopes of attaining personal satisfaction in seeing a job well done. Jacque is one such person. Indeed, she has given freely of her time and talents without asking for or expecting pay. Just a few of this young lady's accomplishments include assistant chairman for Campus Pals, editor-in-chief of the H-Book, advisor to H-Book, and member of the curriculum committee for the English and Classics departments. Jacque plans to become a researcher in the field of linguistics, and hope to eventually publish Black grammatical texts. Good luck!

INTRAMURAL

Intramural Sports

In today's modern and technological world, there is increasingly a need for maintaining a level of active participation in physical activities throughout life. The intramural program at Howard University provides an opportunity for the University community to enjoy satisfying experiences related to their particular needs and interest, varying from the highly competitive type sports to those of non-competitive and recreational in nature.

Relevance: Can We Survive It?

In the past, the concept of relevance has been applied to the study of the past, to the study of the present, and to the study of the future. It is a concept that has been used in many different ways, and it is a concept that has been used in many different ways.

The purpose of this article is to explore the concept of relevance and to see how it can be used to help us understand the world around us.

Relevance is a concept that has been used in many different ways, and it is a concept that has been used in many different ways. It is a concept that has been used in many different ways, and it is a concept that has been used in many different ways.

College: How Many Years?

The 1975 Challenge: How many years should a student spend in college? This is a question that has been asked many times, and it is a question that has been asked many times. It is a question that has been asked many times, and it is a question that has been asked many times.

The 1975 challenge is to find a way to answer this question. It is a challenge that has been met many times, and it is a challenge that has been met many times. It is a challenge that has been met many times, and it is a challenge that has been met many times.

PUBLICATIONS

The publications that appear in this section are by no means all the student publications at Howard. Those appearing here are publications that agreed to submit material to the Bison.

The Hilltop

Each year, the Hilltop receives criticisms and praises from students, student governments and even the Administration. This year, majority of the students questioned feel quite satisfied with the performance of their campus newspaper.

A native of San Diego, California, Hodari Ali, Hilltop Editor-in-Chief brought some innovations to the paper. These include a new design of the masthead, a section for "Words of Wisdom" and some improvements in the quality of the paper.

According to Hodari Ali, "Our objective, as expressed in the creed, has been to educate, inform and motivate students to be serious in their studies and be dedicated to the freedom of Blacks and oppressed people."

Although, there has been no "open warfare" between the Hilltop and student governments this year, Ali, observes that there is room for better understanding and cooperation between the two in serving the needs of students.

Summing up the performance of the paper for the year, Ali said, "in essence, we saw ourselves as members of the crusading Black press, symbolized by our masthead—the sword of truth—and we saw our duty as providing information about Howard and the world that was relevant to the students."

Waverly A. Webb

The Howard University Student Handbook, the H-Book, is an official publication of the Office of Student Life, published by the students in the undergraduate schools and colleges each year. The H-Book serves as a source of general information designed to give the reader an understanding of what is happening around the Howard university community. The editor of the 1975-76 H-Book is Waverly A. Webb.

New Directions

New Directions, the Howard University magazine, is published quarterly by the Department of University Relations and Publications. The magazine is distributed to students, parents, administrators, and anyone who is interested in Howard University. It is one of the chief public relations instruments which is used by the University to familiarize the public with Howard.

New Directions was one of the first projects of the Howard University Press, which was initiated in 1974. The magazine's "On the Hill" section deals with activities at Howard University. The magazine also runs commentary on political events, international affairs, and reviews the Arts. Howard University's motto is "Achievement Through Excellence", and New Directions is aimed toward achieving excellence in journalism.

Abdulkadir N. Said, Editor, New Directions.

Alumni News

Alumni News is a magazine which is distributed among Howard alumni. The magazine gives information on the activities and programs within the Howard University complex. There is a commentary section, in which the cover story is introduced by an administrator. There are Sports, Campus activities, and Alumni Affairs sections. There has also been a new addition to the magazine: a club corner section which highlights activities of the various Howard alumni clubs throughout the world. The purpose of the magazine is to provide a variety of information so as to offer something to all Howard Alumni.

Right On

Right On is a weekly newsletter which is published by the Department of University Relations and Publications. The newsletter has a campus-wide distribution and it is designed to publicize activities which are of interest to the Howard Community. Right On informs the readers of sports, events and personalities, and in general, it focuses on areas of interest to the Howard Community.

The Journal of Religious Thought

The Journal of Religious Thought is published semi-annually by the Howard University School of Religion. It is a collection of articles by various contributors which discuss issues of ethical, moral, and religious life. The emphasis is on issues which are relevant to the Black church.

The Journal attempts to examine the relationship between religion and the Black community, and to interpret the significance of that relationship in the world today. J. Deotis Roberts, Sr., professor of Systematic Theology, is the current editor of the Journal.

Fraternities and Sororities

Pan-Hellenic Council

The Pan-Hellenic Council is the league of social-service Greek letter Organizations that takes an interest in the uplift of black people, brotherly, socially, educationally, spiritually and economically. The Council consists of the organizations of Alpha Kappa Alpha, Alpha Phi Alpha, Delta Sigma Theta, Zeta Phi Beta, Kappa Alpha Psi, Sigma Gamma Rho, Phi Beta Sigma, and Omega Psi Phi.

Although belonging to different organizations with different creeds, ideas and "colors", these individual organizations combine to strive as a solid coalition for the advancement of the Black mind in an oppressive society. This year the Council brought a new emphasis to its activities by performing such services as tutorial programs for the community, visitations by the pledge lines to Children's Hospital, the sponsorship of "Come-Out Week", spearheaded a fund drive for the Pan-Hellenic Scholarship.

Alpha Kappa Alpha

Alpha Kappa Alpha is the oldest greek letter sorority in America established by Black women in January, 1908. The record of its origin, growth, and development is more than an interesting chronicle of a colorful bit of college-based history. It is, rather a significant and inspiring reflection of the development of a minority group in a changing culture.

The size and scope of the activities and chapters of the AKA extend outside the United States to Liberia, West Africa and Nassau, Bahamas.

AKA operates under the motto of "By merit and by culture", with the identifying colors of apple green and salmon pink. Some activities sponsored by Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority during the year have been volunteer services at Children's Hospital, a carnival for children, continuous donations to the UNCF, Holiday baskets for underprivileged children and families and the Buelah Burke Book Scholarship.

Delta Sigma Theta Inc.

Delta Sigma Theta - The Alpha Chapter women of this dynamic sorority are not just first in organizing, but they are also number one in exemplifying the bonds of true sisterhood, love towards all people, concern for the community, kindness to their fellow-men, and courtesy with everyone they encounter.

Since DST's founding in 1913 here at Howard by 22 outstanding women, its members have carried out diligently the high ideas of social welfare, community service, cultural enrichment, and academic excellence, de-emphasizing the social side of sorority life.

Today, Alpha Chapter remains loyal to its purpose by actively implementing its Annual Sadie Yancy Scholarship, the tutoring of disadvantaged youth, visitation of local hospitals, clothing drives, and many other types of volunteer work. It can be concluded that Delta women everywhere are a vital, dynamic force within the entire world.

In December of 1907, Beta Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. was founded at Howard University, thus making it the first Black fraternity to exist on a predominantly Black college campus. These young men have continually sought to serve the Black community in as many ways as possible. This year their dedication was exhibited in the form of several programs: a conference on the C.I.A., Christmas parties for confined children, various tutorial programs, and in general they provided a basic, needed concern for personal uplift and community service. By upholding their motto of "First of All, Servants to All, We Shall Transcend All," the men of Alpha Phi Alpha have exhibited their dedication to the Black Community.

ADMINISTRATION

Message From The President

Howard University seeks to provide its students the finest possible education. It has traditionally been and will continue to be a vital resource of academic and cultural advancement for Black and other underprivileged people in the United States and throughout the world.

The ten thousand students and five thousand members of the faculty and staff come from more than one hundred countries. They lend a cosmopolitan and international diversity to the University Community. They bring a collective sensitivity to human problems as these problems exist in the areas of the world, and among the various ethnic, racial, and religious groups of the world.

Howard is unique in its potential for receiving the sensitive but ill-equipped individual as a student, and fostering the development of an individual prepared to engage in the continuing struggle for equality and justice. It is our responsibility at Howard to dedicate ourselves to the realization of that potential. It is the responsibility of the members of the Class of 1976 to join the thousands of living alumni in working for a better nation and world.

We shall always cherish the years shared with the members of the Class of 1976, and shall solicit and depend upon their wise counsel and support in the crucial years ahead. To each graduate we extend warmest congratulations and best wishes for a prosperous, successful, and meaningful future.

H.U. Board of Trustees

A noted Zoologist, Civic Leader, Government Consultant, Dr. Geraldine Woods is the Chairman of Howard University Board of Trustees, replacing Dr. Asa Spaulding who retired as Chairman to be Trustee Emeritus. A native of West Palm Beach, Florida, Dr. Woods received her B.S. from Howard University, and the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Radcliffe College.

Presently consultant to the General Medical Sciences Institute, National Institute of Health, Dr. Woods was appointed Chairman of the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Service in 1968 by President Johnson. She was also appointed to the State Committee on Public Education by former California Governor Edmund Brown. Dr. Woods holds membership in several organizations including the National Advisory Council of the General Medical Sciences Institute, at NIH, the National Citizens Commission for International Cooperation, and the Women's Advisory Committee of the California Fair Employment Practices Commission.

Vice-Presidents

Dr. Lorraine Williams has served the Howard community in several different capacities, first as a student, then as a professor and chairman of the History Department. She presently holds the position of Vice-President of Academic Affairs. The division encompasses all academic programs at Howard excluding only those of health affairs. Special programs under the jurisdiction of Dr. Williams include the Howard University Press, the Center for Academic Reinforcement, the Institute for Urban Affairs and Research, and University Without Walls. According to Dr. Williams, plans for new programs have been curtailed pending budget appropriations.

In Dr. Williams, Howard has an outstanding scholar and educator in charge of academic affairs.

In Dr. Caspa L. Harris Howard University has a very capable businessman overseeing the fiscal affairs of the University. Dr. Harris combines his experience as a Certified Public Accountant with his law degree in his capacity as Vice President for Business and Fiscal Affairs. Before advancing to this position, Dr. Harris has held the positions of chief internal auditor and comptroller of the University. As Vice President for Business and Fiscal Affairs, he deals with the financial management of the University's property and insurance. At this time, the major program in this area concerns the computerization of the financial records of the University. Dr. Harris indicates that there are no immediate plans for new programs.

Top: Dr. Lorraine Williams, Vice-President for Academic Affairs. Bottom: Dr. Caspa L. Harris, Jr., Vice-President for Business and Fiscal Affairs, Treasurer of the University.

Dr. Carlton Alexis has been Vice-President for Health Affairs since December 1969. Dr. Alexis who received his medical degree from Howard has been in the university since September, 1953, when he entered as a medical student.

As Vice-President for Health Affairs, Dr. Alexis administers all health programs. These are the colleges of Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences, Nursing, Allied Health Sciences, Howard University Hospital and University Health Service.

Realizing the fact that most of the schools and programs listed above are among the top rated in the nation, Dr. Alexis is quite an able administrator. Dr. Alexis does not foresee any new programs in the immediate future.

Dr. Roger Estep has been the Vice-President for Development and University Relations since 1972. Previously, he held several other positions at Howard University, such as Executive Assistant to the Vice-President for Health Affairs and the Executive Assistant to the President.

Dr. Estep's responsibilities as Vice-President cover such areas as Development and Fund-raising, publications, Government and University Relations.

He notes that the objective of his office is to "continuously expand the University's base of support—from individuals, corporations, foundations, and public agencies." In order to achieve this goal, there are many fund-raising programs in existence. Also, the Office acts as a liaison between the University and appropriate government agencies.

Some of the publications issued from the office are "New Directions", the "Howard University Magazine", "Alumni News", and "Right On".

Perhaps, the most competent and experienced person to deal with student matters at Howard is incidentally the chief administrator of student affairs, Dr. Carl Anderson. Beginning as Head Resident Counselor of Cook Hall in 1958, Dr. Anderson has advanced to the position of Vice-President for Student Affairs in 1969.

The Division of Student Affairs provides services which assist students in their academic and social development. Some offices which aid this development are the Office of Financial Aid, the Office of Student Life, and the Office of International Student Services.

Some programs currently in existence under the direction of the Vice-President for Student Affairs include the Student Advisory Council, a number of student publications and the various programs in the University Counseling Service. Plans are underway for the development of a computerized registration program, a revamping of the Judiciary System, and the development of leadership training program for student leaders.

The task of coping with the Administration at a university that is the size of Howard must be staggering. However, Dr. Nichols, is equal to the task. Dr. Nichols has served as Vice-President for Administration as well as Secretary of the University since 1971. Prior to this appointment, he was the executive assistant to the President. The area of Administration deals with the Board of Trustees, the Office of Personnel Administration, the Building Program Development, and the Office of Security and Safety Services. The Physical Plant and Cramton Auditorium are also under his jurisdiction. While Dr. Nichols indicates that he has new plans to implement in his area, he does not elaborate on the plans.

The Howard University Alumni Association (formerly Alumni Federation) was established in 1964 to advance the welfare of the University and to establish, encourage, and maintain a mutually beneficial relationship between Howard and its alumni.

The Department of Alumni Affairs, created in 1964 to provide technical and financial support to the Association, coordinates all programs and functions of the Association and its director also serves as the Executive Secretary of the organization. Over the years, Association programs have included class reunion activities during Commencement Week, a Homecoming event, and the annual Alumni Tour that has taken groups of alumni to such places as South America, Copenhagen, France, and Hawaii.

Currently, there is a concerted effort to involve more alumni in the Association's programs; to increase significantly the level of alumni financial support of the University; and, to utilize more effectively the many skills and talents of former students in ways that would benefit the institution. Special attention is also being given to the development of a viable program for international alumni to foster a closer relationship between these former students and the University.

The involvement of students in the Alumni Program has long been a major concern and the Department of Alumni Affairs has always enjoyed a good working relationship with this most important constituency. In 1975, the annual Homecoming Gala became an event that is jointly sponsored by the Association and student body. The Department of Alumni Affairs assists in the planning and implementation of the annual Freshman Reception. In the coming years, greater efforts will be made in involving an increasing number of alumni in critical student activities.

James P. Comer

James Pierpont Comer, a leading psychiatrist, is an authority on the mind of the Black child. He is the Associate Dean for Student Affairs at the Yale University School of Medicine and Professor of Psychiatry at the Yale Child Study Center. He is the author of Beyond Black and White, published in 1972 and co-authored Black Child Care with Dr. Alvin Poussaint of Harvard University in 1975. Dr. Comer is a native of Indiana where he received his A.B. degree in Zoology and social science from Indiana University in 1956. He received his M.D. degree from Howard in 1960, and his master of Public Health from the University of Michigan in 1964. Dr. Comer is a member of the Board of Advisors of "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company".

Roxie R. Kravitz

Roxie Roker Kravitz has had a distinguished acting career.

Her performance as Mattie (the mother) in the Negro Ensemble Company's production of "the River Niger" won her the 1973 Obie Award for Distinguished Performance.

She is a native of Miami, Florida and received her Bachelor of Arts from Howard in 1952. Later, she did post-graduate work at the Shakespeare Institute in England, on a Hattie M. Strong Foundation Fellowship.

She has appeared off-Broadway in "Jamimma" and "Behold Cometh the Vanderkellans" and performed in the Negro Ensemble Company's "Adods", and "Rosalee Pritchard".

G. Frederick Stanton

G. Frederick Stanton has devoted 38 years of service to Howard University, and was one of Howard's most respected and efficient administrators. He retired in 1971 from his position as Vice President and Secretary of the University and Secretary of the Board of Trustees.

When the Howard administration decided to restructure the alumni program, Mr. Stanton was chosen for the job. As a result of his carefully researched recommendations to the Board of Trustees, the Alumni Federation was established in 1964.

He holds membership in the Howard Kappa Mu Honorary Society, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, and was a charter member of the Board of Directors of the H.U. Employees Federal Credit Union. In 1968 he was recipient of H.U. Alumni Federation Award and received a special award from the 1969 Charter Day Committee.

Benjamin Lacy Hunton

Major General Benjamin L. Hunton was the first Black General in the United States Army Reserve.

Presently, he is a two-star general and Commander of the United States 97th Army Reserve Command at Fort Meade, Maryland.

In civilian life he is an Assistant Administrator in the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration. He is responsible for investigating causes of accidents, and has sole responsibility for education and training for the Mineral industries.

A native Washingtonian, he received the Bachelor of Arts and Masters of Arts in History from Howard in 1940 and 1942 respectively. He received his Ph.D in Public Administration from American University in 1954.

James Theodore Chambers

"Ted" Chambers has devoted his life to laying the foundation for an athletic program at Howard which has earned him national respect and admiration. Mr. Chambers received his education in the school system of Washington, D.C. and matriculated at Howard, where he was a Bison Squad member. In 1944 he returned to Howard as head football coach. By 1966, the cricket team, under his tutelage, had established themselves as champions. In 1968, Mr. Chambers became the first Black American to be named to the soccer hall of fame. In 1975, he received a Certificate of Merit from the American Red Cross and letter of Commendation from President Gerald Ford.

ACADEMICS

ALLIED HEALTH

Dean Harley Flack

In March 1971, Howard University continued to be the trend setter by establishing the Department of Allied Health Professions. Not very long afterwards the Allied Health department was elevated to College status, thus Howard became the first predominantly black University in the nation to have a College of Allied Health.

The College is a part of Howard University's over-all strategy to chart a set of new directions to meet the demands of a changing society. Thus the College has committed itself to a mission of preparing its members at every level of administration, students, and faculty to engage the challenges of change and create new equilibriums among men, their ideas and service to one another. The identifying characteristic of the College's efforts toward this preparation will be the notion of development. This development will take place in the internal spheres by improving the caliber of the faculty and the external spheres by becoming more involved with the community.

Under the deanship of Harley Flack, this College will undoubtedly become one of the best in the nation. According to Dean Flack, "Adaptability and hard work are indispensable part of success."

Outstanding Faculty

The students in the School of Allied Health Sciences formulated the criteria of understanding and concern in choosing the outstanding faculty members. Because they fit the requirements, Ms. Delores Mounsey and Mr. John Donahue were chosen as outstanding faculty members in the School of Allied Health.

Ms. Mounsey was selected because of her interest in the students outside of the teaching situations. As chairperson of the Student Affairs Committee, Ms. Mounsey brought diligent work, understanding, and dedication to her student related activities.

Mr. John Donahue, as Assistant Professor and co-coordinator for Core Curriculum, was selected an outstanding faculty because of his unique relationship with students. He takes personal interest in the well-being of his students as well as their academic development. He urges students to achieve to the maximum of their capabilities.

Jerome N. Lindsey, Dean School of Architecture and Planning.

Howard University is one of the few black schools in the nation that maintains a School of Architecture and Planning. For many years this School shared facilities with the School of Engineering. However, this arrangement was discontinued in 1970 when the Architecture school was relocated to a separate facility.

The thrust of the School is to prepare its students to meet the challenges of designing, programming and planning for human environments. The specific focus is on environments that not only symbolize and reinforce the collective identities of ethnic societies in America and other developing nations, but it also addresses itself to the life styles and socio-economic needs of those groups.

In keeping with the general thrust of the University, the major focus of the School's programs is within the context of contemporary American society and its socio-environmental problems with particular, but not exclusive emphasis on those factors relating to the American black community.

Business

Dr. Milton Wilson, Dean, School of Business & Public Administration.

With the recent advent of greater opportunities for Black people in business and governmental affairs, the focus of the School of Business is on increasing both the number and influence of minority individuals and groups in the decision-making councils of management and public affairs.

The School of Business which was elevated from departmental to College status in 1970, is regarded as one of the best schools at Howard. The goal of the School, in Dean Wilson's words, "is to prepare effective and contributive citizens to perform services for the Black community." The School performs this function by offering placement services for its graduates, and by the recent establishment of a cooperative education program for its continuing students.

Communications

Dr. Lionel C. Barrow, Dean, School of Communications.

The School of Communications has dedicated itself to the task of developing a communications center and communication specialists who are capable of providing the media with a black perspective. In order to cope with this mission, television facilities, a commercial radio station (WHUR-FM), a carrier current station (WHBC-AM), and a newspaper, The Communicator afford students a first-hand experience in broadcasting and journalism.

Howard University is the first predominantly Black institution to establish a School of Communications. It has been a leader in the ever-expanding fields of television, film, and radio. The students of the School of Communications have the opportunity for practical as well as theoretical education in their programs.

"Speak softly, but carry a big stick", sums up the philosophy of life for Dr. Lionel C. Barrow, who assumed the position as Dean of the Communications School in July of 1975.

He came from Milwaukee, Wisconsin and undertook the deanship in its fourth year. His assessment of the school's growth is that even though the school has monies for faculty, it is just reaching the point of getting necessary equipments.

Department Heads

Outstanding Faculty

Professor Samuel Yette who worked from 1968 to 1972 as Washington correspondent for Newsweek magazine joined the Howard University faculty as a professor of journalism in February 1972. For the five consecutive years, he has been selected an outstanding faculty by the students of the School of Communications. His book, The Choice: The Issue of Black Survival in Black America, has been honored as the Non-Fiction Work of Distinction by the Black Academy of Arts and Letters.

Professor Yette, a member of the prestigious Capital Press Club in Washington, D.C. was president of the Washington Chapter of the Sigma Delta Chi (Journalism Professional Society).

As a professor of journalism, Professor Yette advocates a strong liberal arts background for communication students so that they can understand and write intelligently on any topic in journalism.

Mr. Haile Gerima who was selected an outstanding faculty by the Communications students obtained his Bachelor's and Master's degrees in motion picture arts at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Mr. Gerima has won a number of awards in film and playwriting. He was awarded a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts for his thesis film "Bush Mama." He has also received the Lucille Ball Theatrical Writing Award, the Donald Davis Dramatic Writing Award, and for three consecutive years he held Kurtz Creative Writing Award. His film "Child of Resistance," was shown at the Philadelphia Black Arts Festival in 1973 and the Leipzig International Film Festival in Germany.

DENTISTRY

Dr. Jeanne C. Sinkford, Dean, College of Dentistry.

One division of Howard University that has received recognition as one of the tops in the nation is the College of Dentistry. In fact, a few years ago, a study based upon the results of the National Dental Board ranked Howard as number three among all the dental schools in the country.

Under the guidance of a distinguished educator, Dr. Jeanne C. Sinkford, the School of Dentistry seeks to train individuals to serve community's needs for dental care, with particular emphasis placed upon service in minority communities.

Founded in October 1881 as the seventeenth dental School in the United States, the College offers eight clinical divisions: operative dentistry, oral hygiene, oral surgery, orthodontics, pedodontics, prosthodontics and roentgenology. Each clinic is divided into private cubicles so that all patients in all areas receive individual independent consideration, thus creating a personal, professional atmosphere of doctor-patient relationship.

The Dental School has developed a highly competent faculty and maintains a working relationship with the College of Medicine.

Dr. Willie T. Howard
(Acting dean)

A pioneer in public education, particularly in the highly urban sections, the School of Education is instrumental in advancing the notion of teacher accountability. The consequence of this emphasis has led the school to develop its programs around the concept of competency-based teacher education, and to introduce curriculum innovations in educating prospective teachers to meet the challenges of inner-city teaching.

The School of Education is in a transitory period. In the past year alone, it has had three acting deans, beginning in the fall with Dr. Nancy Arnez, followed by Dr. Willie Howard. However, the absence of a permanent dean has not affected the school's ability to develop excellent educators for the uneducated and undereducated citizens of America.

ENGINEERING

Dr. Percy Pierre, Dean, School of Engineering

Confronted by large-scale breakdowns in urban systems - mass transit, air and water quality, sanitation, housing and health care, the School of Engineering is committing its energies and resources to lifting the oppression of technology from the people of the cities. Its objectives are to train students to employ engineering technology in skilled ways for humane purposes.

Dr. Pierre, Dean of the School of Engineering feels that engineering is quite demanding and that it takes not only ability, but hard work and perseverance to succeed.

On his view of Howard's role as a Black university, Dean Pierre states that Howard University should be first of all a university which educates and fosters scholarship which is the best in whatever fields it is involved in. Having done that it should acknowledge its special character of being a black university and its special mission of serving blacks in this country. Without being the first it cannot do the second. Over the last five years, he says, Howard University has made great strides towards achieving these goals especially true in the school of engineering.

Dr. Pierre who received his doctorate from John Hopkins University was a researcher with Rand Corporation before coming to Howard.

FINE ARTS

Dean Vada Butcher

The College of Fine Arts represents the educational force to stimulate the use of art forms to express the feelings of people. The College makes an attempt to communicate through music, drama, and all forms of art. The students in the College can express themselves through various ways - the Howard University Marching Band, the Jazz Ensemble, the Howard University Choir, and through stage productions at Ira Aldridge Theater. The art work of students is proudly displayed in the Fine Arts Building.

An adjunct to the College, the Center for Ethnic Music is the source of important research in the original music of black people and ethnic groups around the world.

The Brass Medallion

The year of 1976 was one of firsts for the Howard University Players. For the first time in the Players' forty-two year history a play written and produced by a student was presented. The Brass Medallion by Ajamu explored the prison system in the United States and its disastrous effect on black men who are incarcerated under violent, oppressive conditions. The play was well-received by both critics and audiences.

The Brass Medallion won second place in the American College Theater Festival, marking the first time a Black playwright has placed in that competition. As a result of this award, the play will be presented at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts this spring.

Howard University is indeed very proud of this talented young playwright. Ajamu has a bright future and he is wished the best of luck by the Howard community.

Kojo and the Leopard

One of the first plays presented by the Howard Players in 1976 was Kojo and the Leopard. Kojo is a story which explores the mores, customs, and folkways encountered throughout Africa. Grace Cooper wrote Kojo so that the Afro-American could be exposed to some of his roots and racial history. She hopes that the play will stimulate an interest in the rich African heritage which is shared by most members of the Howard Community. The play was directed by Kelsey Collie.

Dr. Edward W. Hawthorne, Dean of Graduate School

The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Howard University provides graduate students with forty different programs of studies from which to choose, including doctoral programs in seventeen fields. Established as a separate unit in 1934, the School encourages scholarly pursuits on the part of both the students and faculty.

According to Dean Hawthorne, the purpose of Howard's Graduate School is to develop the intellectual potential of superior individuals who will leave their imprint on their chosen fields. "In today's highly competitive society," Dean Hawthorne noted, "self-preservation and group advancement are frequently tied to marketable skills."

Although there are at Howard more approved graduate programs leading to advanced degrees than at any other predominantly black institutions, there is room for further expansion since no other major American university is committed to the training of blacks and minorities. The mission of Howard at the graduate level, therefore, in the words of Dean Hawthorne, "is to continue its tradition of service with a priority on creative productivity and Leadership."

Asked what he thinks Howard's role in society should be, the Dean observed that in the past, Howard has had an impact on the nation and the world, but that the exigencies of the present and visions of the future demand even greater involvement.

HUMAN ECOLOGY

Contrary to popular belief, Human Ecology is not synonymous with sewing, cooking, and all sorts of domestic activities. It involves much more interesting, and challenging programs. The School of Human Ecology, which was elevated from departmental status in 1974, has developed a comprehensive curriculum which focuses on the impact of social, economic, and technological changes on human experiences. It is oriented toward problem-solving with relation to the inner city; toward the access and management of resources such as food, clothing, housing, consumerism, and the environment.

At present the School offers Bachelor degrees in seven areas of concentration: Community Services, Human Development, Human Nutrition, International Studies in Human Ecology, Education and Family Social Services, Macro-environmental and Population Studies, and Microenvironmental Studies and Design. A Master degree is also offered in seven different programs. At present a Doctor of Philosophy in nutrition is offered. Hopefully, doctoral degree programs in all areas of specialties will be implemented.

Outstanding Faculty-

Effie Crockett and Lichu Hsu

The students in the School of Human Ecology have selected Mrs. Effie Crockett and Dr. Lichu Hsu as the most outstanding faculty for the 1975-76 academic year.

Mrs. Crockett, an expert in the field of community service, with a special emphasis on consumer education oversees the students practicum in community project. Her goal is to help educate the public so that they will not be taken advantage of in the open market. She has also been able to motivate her students in this direction.

Mrs. Crockett is also involved in writing and distributing manuals which will help the low income consumers utilize their resources to the fullest extent.

Dr. Lichu Hsu who has been at Howard for nearly five years, teaches Nutrition and Human Development - a course taken by all students in the School of Human Ecology. Throughout these years, Dr. Hsu has developed a basic teaching philosophy. She considers each student as an individual whose special needs for growth are unique, and tries to cater for the needs of each student as a person. Dr. Hsu advises her students to develop the spirit of self-discipline and humility.

LAW

Charles T. Duncan, Dean,
School of Law

Being one of the first schools to be established at Howard University in 1869 the School of Law has grown from a school of ten students to several hundreds. Presently, under Dean Charles Duncan, it has developed one of the most outstanding programs of constitutional law in the country.

As a producer of 75 percent of all Black lawyers in the United States, the school is widening the scope of each of its graduates. The objective of the Law School is to provide professional education in the law and to equip its students with a grasp of major social problems within society. Therefore, students are aware of the law's inherent potential to bring about a reduction in these problems. They are trained to confront within the legal context the continuing social problems arising from poverty, deterioration of urban centers, the changing function of the family, and the proper allocation of social power between the private and public sectors of American life. Broad new concepts of Law have emerged over the last decade, and new approaches have been formulated to meet those legal issues. The School of Law is meeting the new focus with programs designed to give students this new view of the law in corporate affairs in civil rights and civil liberties. The School has developed clinical programs to give students first-hand legal experience. Finally, the School seeks to impart an understanding and an appreciation of the social values to be achieved by and through the law.

Boyer and Reid - Outstanding

Spencer H. Boyer

Professors Spencer H. Boyer and Herbert Reid have been selected outstanding faculty by the students of Law School.

Professor Boyer (above picture) joined the staff of Howard Law School in 1966. He specializes in taxation, tax law and contracts. A cofounder of Harvard Civil Rights and Civil Liberties Law Review, Professor Boyer believes in training his students to be competent lawyers. "I train my students to be good lawyers, not black lawyers, but good lawyers who happen to be black."

A recipient of several outstanding awards which include the Student Bar Association Award in 1971, Professor Boyer is an asset to Howard Law School.

Herbert O. Reid (Not Shown)

"Challenge and excellence." This is the philosophy of Herbert O. Reid, Charles Hamilton Houston Distinguished Professor of Law at the Law School. A specialist in Constitutional Law, Professor Reid joined the Howard Law School staff in 1947. His numerous awards include the Frank D. Reedes Community Award, The Martin Luther King Jr. Award and the Whitney M. Young Jr. Memorial Award. The presiding judge during the Barbara Sizemore - D.C. School Board Hearing, professor Reid also took part in the investigations of George Jackson's death and the Attica prison conditions.

LIBERAL ARTS

Facing a job market that relies heavily on technological expertise and practical skills, the Liberal Arts student is somewhat of a present-day anachronism. Heretofore, the major purpose of the Liberal Arts division has been to prepare its students for graduate and professional schools. Consequently, the Liberal Arts graduate has had a hard time finding employment in fields other than teaching.

Under the direction of Dean Robert Owens, the College of Liberal Arts is attempting to alleviate this problem by reorganizing the basic impetus of its curriculum. The reorganization program would provide students with new educational and practical experiences along the following lines: broader subject areas with less emphasis on majors, increased reliance on independent and self-paced study, advanced placement programs, the development of off-campus experience centers, and an intensification of the black presence in the Arts and Sciences.

MEDICINE

Dr. Marion Mann, Dean, College of Medicine

Perhaps one of the most outstanding academic units of Howard University is the College of Medicine. The medical school is presently producing more black doctors than any other university in the nation. It has achieved a reputation which is unparalleled by that of any other school.

Organized in 1868, the College of Medicine offers a four-year program leading to the Doctor of Medicine degree and cooperates with the graduate school in providing instruction for advanced degrees in anatomy, biochemistry, pharmacology, and physiology. The primary aim of the College is to prepare students for the practice of medicine and for careers in teaching and research. Through precept, laboratory experiment, and clinical experience the college provides the foundation upon which students of medicine can build their professional lives. An in-depth educational experience is provided for those students in the Graduate School who are studying for the Master of Science or Doctor of Philosophy degree at the college.

The recently completed, ultramodern Howard University Hospital will enhance the medical program at Howard. This edifice serves as the nucleus of the medical center, which is comprised of the medical and dental colleges along with the schools of nursing, pharmacy and allied Health.

Whether it's conversation, lab time, or rushing to class, the Med. School is serious business.

On-the-job training helps develop the doctors of the future.

Doctors, researchers, student and laboratory technicians work together to make Howard Medical School one of the best in the nation.

Time to relax from the busy schedule of med. school.

NURSING

Dr. Anna B. Coles, Dean, School of Nursing

Since its inception in 1968, the School of Nursing has dedicated itself to the training of skilled technicians in the health field. Its philosophy is that man should develop to his potential, and that assistance should be available to him as needed. With this in mind, the primary role of the faculty is to stimulate intellectual growth through student-faculty interaction. The objectives of the School are to instruct students to utilize the studies in the baccalaureate program as a base for providing safe and effective nursing, to apply theoretical knowledge with practical skills, and to use the nursing process as a means of studying and identifying health problems and formulating solutions to these peoples. The School aims to prepare students to participate in community development activities, national, state, and local nursing organizations, and to demonstrate an awareness of the need for continual self-development. By working in conjunction with the other health professions, the students are prepared for employment in various aspects of nursing.

Each year the school attains a higher level of achievement. On the 25th of October this year, the Nursing school became the first predominantly Black college to receive a charter from the Sigma Theta Tau National Honor Society. Howard's school is also the youngest college of nursing to receive a charter from the honor society.

Department Heads

Outstanding Faculty

The students in the College of Nursing have selected Ann Murchland, Grace Jarrett and Beatrice Adderly as the outstanding teachers of the 1975-76 academic year.

Mrs. Ann Murchland joined the university faculty in 1973 after teaching at the University of Maryland and Catholic University. She has devoted most of her time to learning about mother and child care and is currently writing a book on the subject. Also she is completing the requirements for a doctorate in human development at the University of Maryland.

Miss Grace Jarrett, assistant professor of nursing, believes that her role at Howard is not only to teach but to guide, assist and support students in accomplishing their goals.

She received the B.S. degree from Hunter College, a masters from Columbia University, and is currently working on her doctorate in human development at the University of Maryland. She teaches nursing leadership at Howard and has been appointed coordinator of the RN-BSN program.

Miss Beatrice Adderly came to Howard in 1971. She has completed her masters degree in medical surgical nursing and is currently pursuing advanced studies in psycho-educational studies at Howard. An active member of several nursing and educational organizations, Miss Adderly believes that she owes it to her students to help them achieve the highest possible goal.

PHARMACY

Dr. Ira Robinson, Dean, College of Pharmacy

By offering several graduate degrees as well as a PhD. program, the College seeks to produce graduates who are capable of engaging in a variety of health professional practices including community and institutional pharmacy, research, teaching, and, manufacturing. The students work along with others in the health-related areas in order to coordinate their efforts in the interests of community-related health practices. Each undergraduate is required to complete a clinical program before graduation in order to gain practical experience in the field of pharmacy and pharmaceutical sciences.

The primary objective of the College of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences is the Preservation and enhancement of the value of human life. By producing students with educational and training experiences, the College develops pharmacists and pharmaceutical scientists who are competent in the delivery of high quality pharmaceutical services to the public.

Dean Ira Robinson feels that Howard's role in society is "to effectively raise the level of aspiration for Blacks and other minorities for full and productive participation in the economic, educational, political, governmental, and health care systems."

Outstanding Faculty - Dr. Narendra Shah

Dr. Narendra Shah has been chosen as one of the outstanding faculty members in the School of Pharmacy. He teaches Pharmaceutics I, II, and III. Dr. Shah's goal as an instructor is to develop in his students, a knowledge of and an interest in pharmacy. According to Dr. Shah, the social as well as the scientific aspects of pharmacy must be understood by Pharmacy students so that the community will benefit from this knowledge.

RELIGION

Dr. Lawrence N. Jones, Dean, School of Religion.

The School of Religion was established in 1868, along with the Law School and the Medical School. It has long been dedicated to training people to relate to religious needs of the minority communities to the ministry. The school's curriculum is structured to incorporate a strong core of religious studies with field education and clinical pastoral programs.

The School of Religion seeks to develop men and women of superior intellectual and moral character who will be capable of total spiritual ministry to individuals and groups in their most urgent personal and social concerns. By means of a balanced resource of practical and academic disciplines, the qualified religious educator aims to nurture, preserve, and enhance existing values in the community. These values make for ultimate character and personality development, and thus, for responsible citizenship.

Dean Evans Crawford has had varied experience in the field of Theology. He obtained his bachelor's degree from Huston-Tillotson College in 1943. He earned his Bachelor of Sacred Theology (S.T.B.) from Boston University in 1946, and completed his doctorate there in 1957. Dean Crawford presently serves as the Dean of the Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, as well as a Professor of social Ethics in the School of Religion.

Dr. Evans commitment to the community is obvious when one looks at his past record. He has served as Field Director of the Study of the Negro Baptist Church in Chicago, and has taught at Boston University, Wesley Theological Seminary, and the Pacific School of Religion in the capacity of Visiting Professor. He is a member of the Society for the Study of Black Religion, and holds a membership in the Bicentennial Committee of the Council of Churches in the National Capital area.

With his outstanding credentials and his obvious commitment to the community, the School of Religion is proud to claim an instructor such as Dean Evans.

SOCIAL WORK

Jay C. Chunn, Dean, School of Social Work.

The School of Social Work became a full-fledged school in 1946. Its curriculum has been developed on the premise that professional education for social work is designed to enable the student acquire a body of knowledge about human behavior and institutions, and the methods of problem-solving in social relationships. It aims to reinforce the use of such knowledge skillfully and responsibly in the problems of individual, group, and community relationships as well as formulate the attitudes necessary for the sensitive and disciplined use of self as a helping person. Finally, the curriculum seeks to combine habits of integrating knowledge, thought, and feeling into an effective and efficient means of action.

The sixteen-month period of graduate training concentrates on team teaching, and it provides opportunities for field experience at decision-making levels in the planning and administration of social welfare.

Women's Volleyball-MISA Champs

The Howard University volleyball team not only improved its record from a mediocre 8-8 (1974) to a 20-4 (1975), but also won the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Sports Association for Women Tournament. Three players were selected to the first squad of the tournament All-Star Team. They were Winsome "Skinny" Davidson, Patti Symonette, and Debbie Richard (second consecutive year). These three players and in particular the playing experience of two starters, Patti Symonette and "Skinny" Davidson, was a major factor in the team's success. Coach Cody attributes the team's success to concentration and mastery of the game's basics.

This coming season, the Howard University volleyball team will be competing against the stronger MISAW conference teams of Gallaudet, George Washington, Georgetown, and American University. The regular season schedule is presently being upgraded to include the current Eastern NIAW Region champs, Maryland University, Salisbury State, (the past regional champs,) Towson State, and Madison College. To face up to their more competitive schedule, the Howard volleyball team plans to recruit "power" volleyball players to add more depth and versatility to the young and aggressive team.

The team's objectives are to reach the NCAA regional play-offs and become the first Black school to win the championships.

Women's Basketball

Coached by Sylvia Groomes, the Howard women's basketball team posted a 13-11 record for the 1975-76 season. Led by Cynthia Chandler and guard Carmen Bryant, the team in their second year of inter-collegiate competition, posted victories over such schools as George Washington, Georgetown, and Bowie State. However, playing in their upgraded schedule this year, the Bisonettes ran into trouble against the major collegiate powers of South Connecticut, Cheyney State, and Federal City College. But in spite of their losses, the 'Nettes won a 3rd place finish in the Metropolitan Inter-collegiate Sports Association for Women tournament.

In order to fulfill the primary goal of the coach to produce a team capable of competing on the same level as Immaculata, Delta State, and the University of California, vigorous recruiting will have to be done. With the experience of players like Leslie Norris, Winsome Davidson and others the outlook for the 1976-77 season looks good.

Lawn Tennis

Howard's tennis team posted victories over American and George Mason University and were defeated by Georgetown and George Washington Universities. The Howard University tennis team took second place in the American University area Intercollegiate competition, and have an overall fall seasonal record of 2-2.

Coach Johnson's principal objective is for his team to win and be successful. However, the present environment is not totally conducive to tennis. The team functions without tennis courts and under very inadequate conditions, thus making it very difficult if not indeed impossible for the coach and his players to present what tennis has to offer to the Howard community.

With players of outstanding calibre, like Jesse Holt, Jr., Mark Williams and other talented players, Coach Johnson's arsenal is well stocked for the battle in the coming year.

The Howard University Tae Kwon Do Team won the Second National Tae Kwon Do Championship this year held in Kansas City, Missouri. The young men and women on the team exhibited their expertise in the sport by winning a total of one bronze, three silver, and twelve gold medals in this martial art of free self-defense fingting.

In the women's division, Ayoka Kam-bon and Debra Hooper were awarded three first-place gold medals each, while Cheryl Rogers was awarded one gold and one silver medal. The gold medalists were named to the 1976 AAU All American team. Miss Hooper was also a member of the All American team in 1975.

In the men's division, Curtis Airall was awarded two first place medals, while Howard Davis and John Holloway each won a gold medal. Daniel Smith also won a second place silver medal, with Holloway taking a third-place bronze medal.

The conditioned sport of Tae Kwon Do at Howard was established by Instructor Dr. Yang. He has taught and drilled the team members thoroughly, and has now been rewarded for his efforts. Congratulations to Dr. Yang and the Tae Kwon Do team and their fine exhibition of talent.

Since Coach Douglass Porter made his debut at Howard, he has been working very hard to live up to his statement, "I made my decision to come to Howard because I felt it offered a tremendous opportunity for developing a top level club." It has been a difficult task, he admitted, since building a strong team is not done overnight.

However, he had a successful season his first year - 1974-75, and had critics forecasting that the Howard Bison would be a powerful contender for a major bowl in the 1975-76 season.

The season started with the Bison roaring. However, they lost three key games, which Coach Porter attributed to injuries sustained by veteran players. "We had to use our freshmen, who, though inexperienced, played well," said the Coach.

The talent and display of good football from the Howard Bison were manifested through the press polls around the country. Two Howard players, General Rooney and Benjamin Harris, were selected All-Americans. In addition, the Bison placed Rooney, Keith Napier, Dan Ambrose, and Anthony Tapp on the All-MEAC offensive team.

Three Bison offensive players, Quarterback Michael Banks, Running Backs Donald Barnes and Harvey Banks, were selected to second-team All-MEAC, as was Defensive Back Haywood Corley.

Despite injuries and lack of experience, the Bison bounced back, as Coach Porter found the right combination. They defeated Florida A & M University in O.I.C. and Morgan State College in the Howard-Morgan classics, finishing the season with a 8-3-0 record.

One of the unpublicized sports on the Howard University campus is baseball. Coached by former Washington Senator Chuck Hinton, the Big Blue batsmen posted a 28-12 record in 1975. This impressive record was the result of a concentrated team effort. Edward Hallard, Burt Herron, and Winford Copeland combined their speed to steal a total of 127 bases. Michael Banks and Calvin Smith led the team in batting .375 and .342 respectively. On the mound Reginald May and John Chestnut won 12 of 15 games, and Greg Scarborough posted an 1.70 earned run average.

In 1975, the Bisons captured their Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference title. As of this writing they have won eight games and are seeking an NCAA playoff spot. The team is facing a very rough schedule this year, which includes North Carolina State, Jacksonville, and Florida (all playoff participants last year). The Howard community should take pride in this fine baseball team and moreover we should lend our support because the Bison baseballers are winners!

Basketball

The 1975 Bison team faced some of the super powers of collegiate basketball this year. A rough schedule placed them in competition with the University of North Carolina, the University of Southern California, and the University of Toledo.

Under the leadership of the new coach, A. B. Williamson, the Bisons posted a 5-7 MEAC record, with an overall record of 9-19. In spite of this mediocre showing, Coach Williamson and the team are looking forward to the challenge of next year's MEAC season. Vadnay Cotton, HU's All-American candidate, broke the MEAC Conference four-year tournament scoring record in Greensboro, North Carolina. He collected 53 points, establishing a new record of 193 points. The Bison captured fourth place in the three day tournament.

Under the superb handling of Head Coach William P. Moultrie, the Howard University track team finished the 1974 season with broken and equalled records under the belt of its young talents. Since the arrival of Coach Moultrie at Howard in 1973, the team has experienced two successive years of great achievements.

The 1975 season opened with the team looking forward to a brighter, record-shattering year. So far, they have lived up to the standard of expectations in several fields. At the time of going to press, the relay team holds the 1975 season's best record of 3:15.1 minutes in Collegiate Mile Relay.

Special mention goes to the mile relay quartet comprised of three All-American runners - Richard Massey, Gosnell White, Reginald Sojourner, and a freshman, Zach Jones, who have consistently distinguished themselves with superb performances in several notable track meets this season. Added to these outstanding performers are the special talents of M.E.A.C. triple jump record holder Victor Egwu, half miler Wallace Rabi, William Griffin, and a host of others.

The women are not left out in the strive for track excellence at Howard University. The presence of a former Olympic star, Esther Sroy, has inspired many a young prospective track women into the team. With the effective coaching assistance of Mr. Moultrie, there is no limit to what they can achieve.

With the determined efforts of the so many stars geared towards placing Howard University on the track map of Collegiate Athletics, many people have no doubts that the realization of their goal is within sight.

Finally, Coach Moultrie, has praises for the administration of the Athletic Department for their assistance and cooperation in making the track program a dream come true at Howard University.

Soccer

The 1975-76 Bison Soccer team marshalled by captain Keith Tulloch, orchestrated by Sunny Izevbigie, and bolted by Dominic Ezeani and Michael Davy passed the regular season test with an impressive 8-2-1 record. Howard entered the crucial play-off season after defeating Clemson, the leading contender 1-0 in the Clemson Invitational Tournament. But the major goal of the team was to win the national championship for the second consecutive year and third time in five years.

From the beginning of the pre-season, it became evident that the Bisons were heading for a tough season. Lincoln Phillips, the outstanding Howard Soccer Coach, was under investigation for his affiliation with the Baltimore Bays professional soccer team. Howard suffered the loss of a key player earlier in the season. At the time the team was to meet Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in the semi-finals, three of the fifteen-man squad could not play due to injury.

Despite the odds, Coach Phillips remains quite optimistic about the future of soccer at Howard.

Coach "Ted" Chambers

This year, the Howard community honored a man who has dedicated many years of his life to serving Howard University. "Ted" Chambers came to Howard with "sports on the brain" in September of 1918 as a seat-back for the Bison football team. He graduated in 1903 as a commissioned second lieutenant, U.S. Army, R.O.T.C., and pursued an athletic career first in Manassas, Virginia, and then on to Wheeling, West Virginia.

Over a sixteen year period, Coach Chambers repeatedly built national and area-wide championship teams in track and football.

After his retirement from the Army in 1944, Ted Chambers came back to Howard as head football coach.

While concentrating on Howard's celebrated Bison track team, he had another dream in mind: a soccer team. In 1949 Howard established a soccer team.

In 1961, under his guidance Howard won the National Association of Inter-Collegiate Athletics Soccer Crown - a precedent for a Black College in America. Under the coach, the Booters achieved a record of 137 wins to 27 losses.

Building upon the foundation laid by Coach Chambers, the "Booters" won the NCAA Soccer Championship in 1971 and 1974.

Now, at the tender age of seventy-six, Coach Chambers still enjoys the success of all the athletic teams at Howard.

Athletics Improve

It is no mere coincidence that since the appointment of Leo Miles as Director of Athletics in 1970 there has been noticeable progress in all aspects of the athletic program at Howard University.

To mention a few, the soccer team has made the NCAA play-offs five out of six times and won the NCAA championship twice. The baseball team has won three out of four MEAC crowns in the last four years, and the two year old women's volleyball team won the MISAW championship this year. The track team has made tremendous progress and now competes in international competition. Similar progress is being made in football, wrestling and other varsity sports. Now, plans are under way for more improvement in the areas of tennis, swimming, basketball (both men and women). "The increase in coaching staff and the quality of staff members", said the director, "have helped tremendously to upgrade the athletic program at Howard University."

HOSPITAL

Dr. Charles S. Ireland, Director, Howard University Hospital.

In 1975, Freedmen's Hospital closed its doors. Taking its place was the new 500-bed complex named Howard University Hospital. The complex offers superior medical aid, and is completely equipped with modern medical instruments. The new Howard University Hospital is also utilized as a teaching facility for students in the Schools of Medicine, Dentistry, Nursing, Pharmacy, and Allied Health.

The new hospital has received formal certification from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to establish a kidney transplant center.

Still dedicated to community service, the hospital administration opened a new center for Sickle Cell Disease in December 1975. Among the center's many programs is the screening and identification of persons suffering from the disease. Administrators of the center hope that through the center they will be able to enhance public awareness of sickle cell anemia.

With the opening of the new hospital complex, Howard has once again clearly established its position as a leader in developing better Black institutions to assist the community.

Fire:

A Poem Dedicated To Blackwoman

By
Francis Welch

Fire
An element
Of nature
Important to man

She helps
Forge Civilizations
She helps
Destroy them too

She possesses
Tremendous energy
Of purity
And pain

She's revered
By some
She's feared
By all

Her changeful flame
Reveals her intensity

Her changeful colors
Reveal her beauty

She likes
To be cared for
Or else
She grows fast and angry

And when
One lets her have control
She demonstrates
Her disastrous quality

Yet when
One checks her every growth
One knows
Her true identity

Fire!
Energy!
Friend!
And Foe!

AFRO-AMERICAN STUDIES

Dr. Russell L. Adams, Chairman of Afro-American Studies.

The Afro-American Studies Department is the one undergraduate component of the College of Liberal Arts whose subject matter and intellectual focus consists of the study and teaching of the black experience through interdisciplinary, multi-media techniques. Afro-American Studies majors' career options are as attractive as majors in sociology, political science, economics, history, music, art and related fields. Students may take undergraduate concentrations in political analysis, sociological analysis, and cultural analysis.

In addition to a career-oriented field program, the Afro-American Studies Department conducts lecture and film series. Among the participants in the lecture series have been Dr. Vincent Harding of the Institute of the Black World, novelist, Chinua Achebe, poet Margaret Walker Alexander, and historian John Henrik Clarke. The Afro-American Studies Resource Center houses one of the University's most complete black film and book collections on the contemporary black experience.

To this day,
The Howard
University College of Medicine has graduated almost half of all the Black physicians in the entire United States of America.

And it's just a start . . .

The need for more highly-trained black physicians in our Black and inner-city communities is greater now than ever before. The Howard University College of Medicine recognizes and accepts its responsibility to the Black community for filling that need by providing an academic environment wherein young men and women can pursue their medical education and ensuing careers under the tutelage of some of the best trained medical personnel anywhere in the world.

In the 100 plus years since its inception, the Howard University College of Medicine has been at the forefront in providing medical education and training for young men and women of all races and nationalities. It will continue to do so.

Some of the programs include:

- The Six Year B.S.-M.D. Program – permits receipt of the B.S. and M.D. degrees in six years after graduation from high school.
- The Early Entrance Medical Education Program – permits college sophomore and Junior students who have completed the basic science requirements to apply for admission.
- The Shortened Medical Curriculum Program – provides an opportunity for students enrolled in the College of Medicine who qualify to obtain their M.D. degree in three years.
- The M.D.-Ph.D. Program – permits simultaneous study for both degrees.

It's a Goal

In earnest, work on the 1976 Bison Yearbook did not begin until late in October but the staff worked hard and finished the book at a record time. Producing the '76 Bison has been quite educational, challenging and time consuming.

As editor-in-chief I'm grateful for the cooperation I received from my staff. Although we had our moments of doubts and disagreements, without their cooperation and hardwork the goal of producing the 1976 yearbook would not have been accomplished.

Frank Asamoah was more than a managing editor, his eye for error and his dogged persistence in achieving perfection were invaluable even when we were in a rush to send the book to print. William Aboko-Cole, an aggressive and resourceful sports editor, did all he could to help whenever help was needed. Judy Watkins, capable, dependable and diligent, did an outstanding job as class section editor. Anthony Shirley deserves credit for taking and processing a lot of the students pictures used in the book.

Debbie Richard, though she joined the staff late, did an excellent job as copy editor. David Houston had some difficulties with his layout staff, yet he persevered and held on to the end. Sandra Baxter helped with copy writing, editing and offered invaluable contributions to editorial decisions. Ademar Martin (academic editor), William Tuck (photo editor), Brenda Kinsler (business manager) and Willa McMichael (organizations editor) did their best, and, I am sure, demonstrated the ability to excel.

I am also grateful to those who were not on the Bison staff but responded kindly to our call for help - John DeFreitas, Jeff Donaldson and the Fine Arts Faculty, Samuel Yette, Dr. Fenderson, Mike Shirley, Lennox Price and others.

We are greatly indebted to the expert guidance of Vincent Johns, Director of Student Activities, Raymond Archer, Bison Coordinator and the staff of the Office of Student Life. Dr. Carl Anderson and Bill Keene helped, too.

On behalf of the Bison staff, I wish to extend warm congratulations to the class of 1976. We have tried our best to record for you and for future generations, the people, places and events at Howard in the 1975-76 academic year. We tried hard to include the picture of every member of our university community but the task was overwhelming and time was short.

More importantly, we would like to express our sincere appreciation to you the students of Howard University for your understanding, cooperation and for the privilege to serve you in this capacity. We hope that you will join us in cherishing and preserving the '76 Bison Yearbook. We urge you not to relent in your efforts, in seeking those things that lead to first-class education and superior character which were the legacies of the Howardites of yesterday and the pursuits of the students of today.
