First Impressions . . .

Dear Gail,

Hey—what's happnin'? I miss runnin' the streets with you and everything, but Howard is really taking me through some wild changes . . .

First thing was getting here and lugging all my junk into that dorm—I'm one of the lucky ones with a room on main campus. I nearly broke daddy's back and ma collapsed halfway through . . .

Freshman orientation started off with all the important folks addressing us and telling us how things were gonna be. We have these upper classmen friends called Campus Pals who help us out when we have problems or need to know something to get through some of the long lines . . . anyway, they've been giving parties and even a bus tour of the city . . .

Campus Pals sing Alma Mater to Freshmen

They also had a Student Organization Awareness Fair where all the campus organizations had representatives. They talked to us about their groups and recruited members too.

UGSA (that means Undergraduate Student Association), one of the student government organizations had a three day fair for the community at Freedman's Square, across from the old Freedman's Hospital. It was really cute: games and rides for the little kids, inflatable animals to buy, hotdogs, soda, cotton candy, popcorn . . . oh, and bands every day for those of us who like to jam (smile).

I guess the biggie was the picnic on the law school campus that President Cheek gave. Everybody likes to go to that because everybody else goes and there's all this food and dancing and a chance to meet so many people.

That must be what keeps me here—all the different people. It's hectic and I understand that when the booking starts it's chaotic, but I think I'm gonna like it here.

Gotta go . . . write soon!

*Love,
Sheila*

Opening Convocation 1976

Each year students, faculty, and the administration gather in Cramton to celebrate the formal opening of school and to renew Howard's commitment to academic excellence. Convocation attracts guests of national and international importance and the ceremony is traditionally highlighted by a guest speaker.

The guest speaker for Convocation, 1976 inspired more than admiration. The Honorable William Tolbert, President of the Republic of Liberia, received an honorary degree, in addition to delivering the keynote speech. However, a demonstration led by the Organization of African Students protested the honoring of Dr. Tolbert.

Amidst a peaceful demonstration the Howard community re-dedicated itself to scholarly and intellectual pursuits.

Dr. Tolbert receives an honorary degree from President Cheek and Dr. Woods as students exhibit their disagreement

"Getting into the swing of things"

To those of you who are new at Howard, you are now an official "Howardite," open to new experiences, knowledge, people, and environments. Even to those of us who have been here, Howard University has new dimensions yet to be explored. Parents are gone and new freedoms are upon us. The adjustments from Mom's cooking to waiting in cafeteria lines, from magazines to serious booking, from a curfew to staying out all night are all a part of getting into the swing of things.

New roommates, personality conflicts, budgeting money, studying late, and getting up early are just a few of the trials and tribulations to be experienced during your stay at Howard. Home is just a place a long distance call away—Howard is not always the next best thing to being there. The realization is that you are now on your own, a student at Howard to accomplish your goals.

Just a phone call away . . .

Getting into new relationships...

... and getting in out of the rain

Taking advantage of warm weather

Balmy Washington days with the weather in classic form calls us from our dorms. Again we learn to appreciate the warmth of the sun as we go about our daily business.

Strength in numbers

*We come together . . .
we come alone . . .*

With so many things happening on Howard's campus, we need time to be by ourselves. Time to eat, think, practice and to be simply single. It is at times like these that we come alone.

We interact

We find each other where we can only to grasp the moment. We dance, talk, and we wait whenever we come together.

Registration, Fall '76

Bill Keene directs students

Registration involves more than just checking out classes

Students wait outside—only to wait inside

New arrivals at Howard University must acquaint themselves with numerous procedures of the administration, one of those being registration. Since this process required students to go to various departments to pick up class cards, a new student needed to quickly familiarize himself with the campus.

The great increase in new student enrollment has caused many problems for the administration and students alike. One problem is knowledge of closed courses. Often a student does not know until he reaches the particular department whether or not a class is closed; therefore he must make extra trips to change his schedule.

The initiation of the Student On-Line Academic Registration system (SOLAR) for spring registration promises to alleviate a number of registration hassles. Courses will be projected on a computer screen and students will know immediately if the desired courses are available.

However, only time can prove the effectiveness of the SOLAR system. Until then, many students will continue to ask: Can I survive registration?

A different sort of story

Long lines, the arrangement and rearrangement of courses, and a constant search to obtain needed class cards are all representations of registration faced by new students. During this, students often long for the ease of pre-registration. However, as one student can acknowledge, pre-registration does not guarantee the process will be any simpler or easier.

Debbie Puryear, a senior in Speech Pathology, is in the process of redoing her schedule. This became necessary when all of the courses she pre-registered for were cancelled.

Debbie discovered when she went to the Burr gymnasium to get her certificate of registration: it was not there. A subsequent trip to the Johnson Administration building indicated that the school had failed to note its reception of her student loan, which had been secured in time for the final date of bill payment for pre-registered students.

Now Debbie must pick up class cards from the Speech Department in Locke Hall. Unfortunately, she soon discovers that many of the classes she wants are closed. But, Debbie is a graduating senior and she can be admitted to these courses with the permission of the instructors.

As Debbie attempts to complete her task, her many trips to and from various parts of campus begin. This includes runs for class cards, visits to her advisor and instructors, and trips to department personnel for signatures. At one point in the process Debbie learns that a course she has enrolled isn't required in her program any longer and she has to substitute another course.

Finally, Debbie is in the last stage of registration—card validation. The whole registration process has taken Debbie approximately three weeks to complete. Will registration be any simpler next semester?—Debbie certainly hopes so.

Sickle cell mobile unit dedication

Sickle Cell Mobile Unit awaits patients

In September of 1976, thirty years of patience and hard work culminated in the formal dedication of Howard University's Sickle Cell Mobile Unit. The campaign to provide such a center for community residents began in 1946, when a Howard clinic opened for research and treatment of patients with sickle cell anemia. In 1971 the Center for Sickle Cell Disease was officially dedicated by the University's Board of Trustees. Today, Howard is the first and only hospital to have a sickle cell mobile unit. The unit is supported in part by a five-year grant from the National Institute of Health as well as by the United Black Fund.

The Mobile Health Unit acts as a university satellite in the Washington, D.C. community and the greater metropolitan area. The center provides educational programs which are designed to inform the public about the nature and problems of sickle cell anemia. It plays a major role in screening for sickle cell and other blood disorders. Staff members are trained to acquaint the community residents with other services available to them, such as social services, health care facilities, and career planning. All of this serves the goal of the unit to eliminate fear and ignorance in the community concerning sickle cell anemia.

Howard student Melody Moss participates in screening

It's not as bad as it looks

The screening process itself is very simple. The patient gets a simple pin prick in the tip of her finger and her blood is fed into a machine for analysis. Results came back almost immediately and Ms. Moss is informed that she does not have sickle cell.

Howard's expanding physical plant

Since the 1867 founding of the University, Howard has grown from a few sparsely distributed wooden frame buildings to a vast complex. Today Howard has its own hospital, 17 schools and colleges, and campuses in four locations in the metropolitan Washington area. Work begun on the new student center should be completed in 1978. This should add a finishing touch to Howard facilities and provide a much needed place for students to meet, rap and be together.

It was a fall like so many others we've come to know in D.C. Hot, sticky, nearly naked weather whose only relief was an infrequent breeze from the reservoir. But, it got cold, we heard reports of snow in Miami. We shuddered as the heat was turned down in the dorms. We bundled ourselves tightly and made fewer trips downtown. We bravely faced the challenge of 2^o days without missing class and patiently awaited the arrival of spring.

Policy Board

Made up of the student council presidents of Howard's seventeen schools and colleges, the Policy Board may well be the most powerful entity of student membership. The 1976-77 school year found Hughlin Williams as Chairman, Pat Woods served as Vice Chairman. Controversy came from all fronts as the D.C. Survival Project lost much of its traditional recognition, a new HUSA constitution passed referendum, elections created factions, the Law School became a focal point of student rights and Howard constantly made demands on these elected student leaders. Yet throughout their lengthy meetings and carefully weighed decisions members of the Policy Board respond to the challenge of every student: to excel.

WE KNOW THE WAYS AND WAYS

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The two most powerful organizations in student government today are the Howard University Student Association and the Undergraduate Student Association.

Under the leadership of Luther Brown, HUSA is responsible for activities for students ranging from concerts to setting down the rules and regulations of the Association in the form of a constitution. A highly-funded student government organization, HUSA has been the spear head this year in forming a national conference of black colleges.

UGSA and GSA are primarily concerned with providing programs and services which are directed toward a better development of the Howard University student body. They are particularly concerned with areas of political, social, cultural, and intellectual development.

Undergraduate Trustee

K. Earl Ferguson

Several years ago, the Howard University Board of Trustees voted to institute a position on the Board which would be reserved for students. This action was instituted in order to give students an official spokesman with the basic interests of students at heart. This position allows the Undergraduate Trustee to act as a go-between among the members of the Board, the President of the University, and the student body.

University-Wide Organizations

A wide range of groups come under the broad heading of University-Wide Organizations. This particular designation encompasses many different types of organizations, ranging from the Martin Luther King Debate Team to the Soul Squad. These organizations have the distinction of having open membership to any student and persons who are interested in joining these groups do not have to have any particular qualifications. The members of these organizations, like the Chapel Ushers, are generally service oriented.

Dormitory Councils

One integral factor in the efficient working of the dormitories lies in student participation through the dormitory councils. Each dormitory elects its officers, and these officers work with the Resident and Graduate Fellows as well as with Dormitory Counselors to make the dorms a more pleasant place to live. Activities may vary from personal attempts to improve the dormitory to the traditional decorating contests during Homecoming, and also special seminars on safety and security. All in all, the members of the dormitory persist in trying to make the dorm more home-like for every resident.

Student Publications

On a campus the size of Howard University, many journalistic talents are combined to produce publications which are of interest to students and to the general Howard community. The Hilltop is the principal medium which communicates students' feelings and thoughts on the contemporary scene. It serves as the major campus newspaper with a weekly Friday distribution. It has been lauded as the best Black newspaper in the Washington area. The Communicator focuses on events and happenings in the School of Communications, while Dorm Dialogue is an informative newspaper concerning the activities of the dormitories. These publications serve as the backbone for communication within the Howard community.

While not quite a publication, WHBC has been actively involved in informing on-campus residents. News, entertainment, and public service make up much up of the programming for WHBC listeners. Approximately 2½ years old, the station broadcasts exclusively to the dormitories under a carrier current system. As a carrier current station the FCC prohibits broadcast beyond the dorms so antennas are installed in each resident hall. WHBC was founded to allow students an opportunity to gain first-hand experience using modern equipment, broadcasting, writing, and generally being involved in on-the-air radio as compared to participation in the commercial operation to WHUR.

Super Sports

Intramural action

Not everyone can play varsity or even JV sports at Howard. Too often one's ability to join the team is predicated upon one's professional ability. With the various efforts of recruitment for star football, soccer, and basketball, many of us ordinary people wonder if we can ever experience the "thrill of victory" or simply the "agony of defeat" as our aging muscles turn to fat in college years.

Under the direction of Roosevelt Addams, coordinated through the Office of Student Life, Howard's intramural program relieves some of our pent up physical activity. Not only can sisters participate in programs designed to make them more attractive—Slimnastics. But frats can fight against frats, dorms against dorms, and even the yearbook against the HILLTOP in football, basketball, and baseball. These programs are not restricted to the school year, as summer arrives, Mr. Addams aims to expand to women's softball and other fair weather sports.

The Bison teams better look out, the rookies are getting better every year!

Football represents only a part of the diversified intramural program.

Mind expansion

On an intellectual side, the husband and wife duo of Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee inspired the audience through prose and poetry readings which captured the essence of the Black experience. Nikki Giovanni scolded, encouraged, and thoroughly entertained us with her unique recitations of her works. Finally, we were brought back to our roots. Author Alex Haley relayed to a captive audience the story of his extensive search for his ancestors. He encouraged all Black people to take an interest in their roots, emphasizing the joy he felt in finding his. Each of these speakers and numerous others helped us to expand our awareness beyond week-end partying and day to day books.

Showtime, '77

1976-77 was one of the better years in terms of entertainment. We revealed in Norman Connors' starship, rolled with Michael Henderson and the Commodores for Homecoming and accompanied Dexter Wansel and Jean Carn on an excursion to Mars. We flurried in the passionate sounds of Ashford and Simpson, while Valentine's Day brought another show for lovers only—Patti Austin and the Moments. Gil Scott—Heron offered his services in a benefit concert and Lonnie Liston Smith provided more progressive music. These concerts and others made this year a musical success.

Howard audiences enjoy soothing sounds of Jean Carn, Norman Connors and the Moments.

Layers of Warmth

Class, sophistication, and elegance were the ingredients for success in "Layers of Warmth," the 1976 Homecoming Fashion Show. Always trendsetters among college students, members of the Howard community modeled the absolute latest in fashion from shorty casual wear to classic formal wear. Fashions were provided by local shops such as September, Make Someone Happy, Grandma's Tranquility, and The General Store.

The show opened with a tribute to Duke Ellington, which was performed by the Howard Players. Following this introduction, "Layers of Warmth" began its presentation on outerwear with "Great Coverups." Stylish capes, coats, jackets, and sweaters were modeled. The transition from outerwear to casual was made in "Easy Living." The epitome of casual this year is the pants and boots look, which is popular with both sexes. Suits are the tasteful trendsetters of the season—skirt suits, slack suits, and jumpsuits. Hats, scarves, and head wraps are indispensable accessories this year. These headpieces serve three purposes: they compliment any outfit, they keep the head warm, and they cover-up what may underneath be a disaster area.

Following the intermission entertainment of "We the People," the show continued with the final segments of "Layers of Warmth." "Designer's Showcase" aptly displayed the talents of local couturiers Patty Page, Levonia Johnson, Lepenski, and Otis Cover. These original designs highlighted the fashion show.

The finale of "Layers of Warmth" focused on formal wear. For the ladies, V-backs, scooped necks, and gathered waists accentuated the sensuousness of the ultra-chic outfits. The three-piece suit added an aura of distinction to menswear. All in all, "Layers of Warmth" was an evening of high fashion and entertainment.

Looking out at the Big Blue Bison

Homecoming pitted the Bison against arch-rival Bulldogs of North Carolina A and T. Spear-headed by a defensive unit which forced fumbles, interceptions, and a blocked field goal, the Bison team led A and T by a score of 21-zip at halftime.

The second half proved to be a different story. A and T mustered enough momentum to match the Bison's first half performance; while the Aggie defense held the Bison offense in check ... the game ended ... 21-21.

In the Touchdown Tradition . . .

It was a different sort of year. One marked with victories and losses and the usual demands of the players, but a different sort of year regardless. It was a year of traditions, touchdowns, and rebuilding. It was a year of field goals, tie scores, and injuries.

In this year no one self-appointed sports writer sat in the security of his office and evaluated the team's performance—somehow forgetting the practice and sacrifice. In the Action Line all things are real and the players speak for themselves. “. . . I'm glad people are now finding out that the majority of football players don't fit the classic stereotype of being big, rowdy, unintelligent individuals. The character of an athlete now has to be unique in that the competition and pressures are so great.”

"Practice is so time consuming that it makes you use your time wisely and that means you have to cut down on your social life, which is already restricted by your books. But you've got to adjust."

*Lookout for the BIG BLUE
BISON*

“ . . . if only the students and alumni would come out and support the team. I don't know why support is so low, maybe it's because the District offers so many recreational alternatives. Somehow, someone has got to make the students and others feel that they are an integral part of the program.”

" . . . in addition my athletic participation contributes to my primary purpose of attending Howard. You have to adjust your study schedule around practice. Often after all those hours of practice and meetings you'll be really tired, but somehow you have to discipline yourself."

Coaches Freeman and Porter spur on the Bison team.

"It would help us if the Howard community could more or less 'let its hair down' and really get involved with people. Many people have a negative or indifferent feeling towards Howard—don't know why—but maybe we need more programs."

Coach Porter

. . . I wouldn't come to every game either. Students here have so many choices of activities that athletics face stiff competition. Often I'd rather do other things, or go other places than cheer at a game. Speakers at Cramton, shows in D.C., plays at Ira Aldridge, the Redskins and the Bullets . . . all draw people from the potential fans of Howard sports.

I came to Howard because it was not a "rah-rah, big game on the weekend, frat dance on Saturday night" type of school. No one clique runs the whole Howard show. D.C. keeps Howard from being as isolated as some other schools and the variety of Blacks here make it the most "cosmo" college set in the U.S.

My athletic participation forces me to discipline myself and to establish priorities. It also has helped me to meet a wide segment of the Howard community. Cheering has also helped me to get into the D.C. community, for we work as advisors in junior highs, act as judges for inter-high competition, and have time to just "rap" to our little sisters that live near the gym.

Linda Thompson, Karen Glermont, and Michelle Wright

Loretta Reynolds, Gail Freeman, and Cecelie Counts

Practice interrupts my whole program. Afterwards I have to fight an urge to take a shower and just go to sleep. Teachers don't consider cheering an activity worth missing class for, so taking a trip means being super-prepared when you get back. I've studied on buses, planes, and hotel rooms; changed clothes and showered three to four times a day.

People think cheerleaders are cute and silly, always flirting with brothers on the team. Instead we practice hard and look quite "funky" after practice . . .

. . . it's hard to be cute when you're standing on your head, sweating with the wind blowing."

WCAA Again!

In 1976 the Howard University Booters carried on what became a tradition—a spot in the NCAA playoffs. As usual the team consisted of a strong first string, yet it was lacking in the depth that is needed to sustain a team in the national tournament. In addition to the lack of depth, the Booters met two former teammates on the field at Clemson and were defeated in the playoffs, 3-1.

Vicious competition takes place as Howard meets Alderson-Broadus.

“... I don't think that we receive the recognition that we should. We happen to be one of the best teams in the nation and many people have forgotten that the team was the national champion in 1974. Student support could be better and I think they would enjoy soccer games if they checked out a few—their encouragement at games is always needed.”

The Look of Champions

Bisonettes win MISAW (again)

Did you know that in its three years of existence, Howard's Varsity Volleyball Team has won two championships? This past season marks the second consecutive year that these young ladies, through hard work and perseverance, have emerged as victors in the Metropolitan Sports Association for Women (MISAW). The team's 19-5 record belies a tough season.

However, the Bisonettes were not totally victorious this season. The ladies expected a bid to the Eastern Regional Tournament, but this did not become a reality. Apparently the coaches failed to complete the application for the tournament, thereby automatically eliminating the team for consideration. In the future the team will be able to avoid the pitfalls of careless coaches and thereby participate in post-season play.

SHARKS

The Howard University Swimming Team has faced a rough 1977 season. With the exception of Howard and South Carolina State, economics has forced other MEAC schools to abandon the sport. Therefore, the Sharks must arrange their own tournaments and meets without the auspices of an official conference.

Recently, with the pool in the Burr gym undergoing repairs, the team had no alternate facility which was adequate for practice and meets. The Sharks are also at a disadvantage because they field a relatively small team. They have five members—four swimmers and one diver—while other teams generally have ten to twelve members. As a result the team has had to forfeit points in some events. In spite of these odds, the Sharks have proceeded with dedication and perseverance.

Plunging into the sea of success

no longer
just a

Meeting the challenge

Everyone loves a winner and at Howard the old adage is more than true. We hold our breath and wait for the final score. We hold our breath as the referee makes his final decision. It's as though we are out on the court or field as we involve our own bodies and souls.

The patrons of sports too often rely on the final score as the most important information about the game. Athletics is more than a simple victory score. It involves a spirit of fairness and goodwill, a healthy attitude toward competitions and maximum team effort.

The team is not merely a collection of five, nine, or eleven individual parts. The team is not even a solitary figure pinned on the mat. It is a well-oiled machine operating as the whole. Each part is charged with fulfilling his or her function. Goalies prevent points, swimmers stroke, and jumpers stretch to their limits for points.

Still, all the components, no matter how well trained do not make a team. There remains a unique quality, demonstrated by the Howard teams regardless of their chosen specialty.

Maintaining a high personal Standard and deep pride in the university

The make up of Howard teams is characterized by a special spirit. The teams all have a will to win, shared equally and intensely by the individual team members and coaches. Every Shark pounds the water with determination, every Bisonette sweats as she blocks and spikes, and every Bison gives up his blood, sweat, and tears on the field.

Next to team devotion and the will to win, one's self-psychology is most important. The simple ability to tell yourself that there is NO ONE better, NO TEAM better, and ultimately NO UNIVERSITY better. Sparked with this dedication it becomes possible to head back on to the field after a series of losses. It becomes possible to meet the necessary demands of fighting back despite fatigue and pain. It becomes possible to ignore hecklers and disappointed fans, all because you know that you have done your best no matter what others may say.

*Overtime

new heights are achieved*

There is a level reached and maintained by our teams. It shows in their determination whether they win or lose. Bison and Bisonettes, whether in football, volleyball, basketball, swimming, track, wrestling, or any other sport are more than just actors on a stage of athletics. Sports are taken to a height greater than face value. A sport becomes more than just a sport: It becomes a driving force, a dedication, and a labor of love.

It's for real

The Bison wrestlers this year have exhibited great potential. Lacking a complete roster in all weight classes, the Bison, as a result, has had to forfeit points and thereby have lost matches. However, the outlook has been brightened by the performances of Freshmen Asa Jones, David Esaw, and Hershall Tolbert. In addition, Marshall (Chip) Wood has returned to the team to strengthen the higher weight class. Also, Robert Royal, Gary Greene, and Joe Dean have provided some of the stability and consistency that the team needs. Despite the mid-season dismissal of head coach Sam Rucker, the outlook for wrestling in this and future years is excellent.

The 1976-77 basketball season promised and delivered much for the Bisonettes. Led by Winsome (Skinny) Davison and Sandra Watkins, the Bisonettes have proved to be formidable foes to all opposition. The team also has rebounding as well as scoring power in freshman Charlene Marks, who was out with a back injury during the first part of the season.

At this writing, the Bisonettes have a record of 7 wins and 5 losses. However, 1977 marked the year that the ladies defeated their old nemesis, the Federal City Pantherettes. The team has begun to execute plays well and at this point is riding on a three game winning streak. The coaches feel that the team, because of its comparatively easy schedule, will not get a bid to the Eastern Regionals. However, with renewed interest and a relatively young team, the Bisonettes should be ready next year.

The Bison B-Ball is back

Coming off a dismal 1975-76 season, the men's basketball team has taken on a new spirit. At this writing the Bison had an overall record of 12 wins and 6 losses, with a 4-2 MEAC record. Led by forward Gerald Glover, the Bison has definitely improved its basketball sense. Under Coach A.B. Williamson, a young, relatively inexperienced team has put it all together and at this time is tied for second place in the conference. In addition, the Bison participated in the Martin Luther King Christmas Classic and finished a respectable third. With four or five starters returning next year, the Bison can look forward to greater success in the future.

Beatin' feet

Beginning in September, one saw energetic young men and women training daily, running around the football field. This perseverance and dedication seems to have paid off. The 1977 track team, under the direction of Coach William Moultrie, has made its presence felt. The two-mile relay team of Zack Jones, Michael Archie, Karl Butler, and Aaron Pharr placed second in the CYO Invitational Classic which was held at Cole Field House. Howard was also represented by Kenric Higgins in the 60-yard dash and by the mile-relay team of Gosnell White, Heywood Johnson, Reggie Sojourner, and Richard Massey. However, a bumping incident with Villanova University resulted in a dropped baton eliminating the team. Also, Richard Massey with Stan Vincon of the D.C. Striders in the 500-yard dash at the 70th Millrose Games.

"We've always faced facility problems. But that won't keep us from doing things. It will be a problem for Howard—athletically speaking. The major problems are the ones that you can't do much about.

"If we could get 75% cooperation from all the students and alumni, we would have a good program.

"Promotions, public relations, and attendance—trying to get the people to come out and view what I think to be an exciting thing! We need that support. That is the thing lacking in our program. Support is needed and wanted and it would mean so much to everyone in the athletic department."

Being at Howard demands a certain awareness. We respond to the crises situation in South Africa and offer sanctuary to Native Americans. We help each other and share a smile. Our awareness is found in all we do as we make Howard our home.

Making new friends gives us peace of mind when we're alone. Living in the city and meeting its demands gives us greater strength to share with others. Our lives go around and come around positively.

Student government and international organizations has claimed a great deal of Ajayi's time at Howard. Originally from Nigeria, Ajayi has participated in the International Students Association in several capacities: as Activity Coordinator, as a member of the Advisory Committee, as Public Relations Chairman, and eventually as President. Ajayi was UGSA representative from the School of Architecture, Budget Chairman for UGSA, a member of the 1976-77 H.U.S.A. Constitution committee; he was the Editor-in-Chief of the Omouwe journal. Upon graduating, Mr. Ajayi says: "My intention for the future is to be one of those that will bring Afrika(sic) and the whole of (the) black race to the horizon we ought to be."

Judy Atkinson

Judy is a North Carolinian who has been very active on Howard's campus in both academic and non-academic endeavors. Her leadership ability has been demonstrated through participation in the AFROTC program and Arnold Air Society. Judy was selected "Miss AFROTC 1976-77," and upon graduation she will receive a commission as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force. In addition, Judy has dedicated much time and service to the Physical Education Majors Club, as well as attaining the honor of the Dean's List. (camera shy)

Iris Davis

A chemistry major, Iris has served as past President of the American Chemical Society. While involved in continuous research, Iris has also found time to serve as the co-founder and administrative secretary of the Howard University improvement Committee. In the realm of athletics, Iris was a member of the Tae Kwon Do Club. Iris has been the recipient of the Polaroid Scholarship and the Analytical Chemistry Award. We are sure that Iris will be an inspiring and contributing force to the greater society in her future endeavors. (camera shy)

"For the past four years, I have attended Howard University as a student with goals and a purpose in mind. As managing editor of the Hilltop newspaper, a member of the Frederick Douglass Honor Society, and a few other organizations, I was thrust into positions that allowed me to better myself as a Black man and to serve society, at this time, as best I could. Howard's greatest influence on me has been to illustrate how important it is to be a man of alternatives.

With this very precious lesson, deeply imbedded in my mind, my heart, and my soul, I will attempt to be a man of alternatives in my future endeavors."

A native of Nassau, Bahamas, Venola believes vehemently in the public's right to know of issues that affect or threaten it, directly or indirectly. The black journalist, she feels, has a unique challenge to meet in educating his people, by interpreting these issues through writings.

A product of the School of Communications' journalism department, Venola put her words into action by working consistently with the Hilltop ever since she started Howard—as news and feature reporter, as news editor and as a columnist.

She also worked as a stringer for the New York—based National Black Network while at Howard and contributed to the Bison Yearbook as well as the annual Homecoming magazine.

This Bahamian is a member of the Frederick Douglas Honor Society, the International Student Association, and the campus chapter of the Sigma Delta Chi, society of Professional Journalists.

"Sam hails from Nibo-Awka in Nigeria. After working as a radio journalist in Nigeria and West Germany, he came to Howard in August 1974. Dedicating himself to his studies and to service to the Howard Community, he completed undergraduate work in three years, graduating in May 1977. He majored in journalism and minored in political science.

"A Capricorn, Sam held a number of offices here at Howard. He was copy editor of the Hilltop, managing editor of the Dorm Dialogue, and a resident assistant at Meridian Hill Hall. He was also a member of the School of Communications' Frederick Douglass Honor Society.

"Sam plans to go on to graduate school and then return to Nigeria to join that country's Diplomatic Service. His philosophy: "Nothing is New." His message to Howard: "God Bless Howard U."

One familiar face that will be missed around Howard in the future belongs to Willie. Since his arrival, Willie has devoted his talents to various activities such as the Debate team, the Howard Players, and the Cook Hall Judiciary Board. In the area of academics, the communications major is a member of the Frederick Douglass Honor Society and has been on the Dean's List. An active politico, Willie served as treasurer of the freshman class and as Undergraduate Trustee. In addition to his many endeavors, we must not forget that Willie was the coordinator of "Family Reunion," Homecoming 1976. Last but not least of Willie's honors is his title of Mr. Howard 1975.

During her years at Howard, Gail has exhibited her concern for better student involvement and participation through her various activities. In the area of student government, Gail has served as the vice president of the College of Nursing Student Council and as a UGSA representative. She also held the office of vice president of the junior class. In addition, this native of Chicago has participated as a tutor for Project Help as a member of the Omowe staff. In the future, Gail hopes to obtain a masters degree in maternal-child nursing and a certificate in nurse midwifery. It is her ambition to travel to foreign countries and to study their practices of maternal and infant care.

"It was with mixed feelings that I welcomed the news that I had been selected to Who's Who. Naturally I was glad that my efforts to be a positive contributor to the University had been noticed. Yet I also had my doubts about just what made me so special.

Each of us, being Black and surviving to reach college have made major accomplishments. We have avoided the law, illness, and have found the financial and family support to make our trek possible. I find that the real achievers are those that will graduate from Howard without the two parents they started off with, or those that made it without support from home or with families of their own to direct.

The honor of being selected to Who's Who goes beyond the presentation of the award. I thank the University for the recognition and I also congratulate Howard students. You, like me, can stand and say: "I am Somebody!"

The Howard community in general and the College of Nursing in particular will miss Patricia in the years to come. Patricia is from New York and she served as president of the College of Nursing Student Council, and president of the D.C. Student Nurses Association. In conjunction with H.U.S.A., Patricia served as co-chairman of the Policy Board and as chairman of the Constitution committee. Another of Patricia's contributions was her participation as copy editor of the Omowe journal. Patricia says, "I'm sorry that my days here at Howard as a student are over but I plan to return to aid in the future development of the University and the Black movement. There are times when you wonder if all this work is really worth it. Hold on in there! I did, you can too. Good Luck!"

Bill Scott has served the university in many ways. He became editor-in-chief of the HILLTOP and the Liberal Arts Review. As Public Relations Director for the Black American Law Students Association, President and Resident Assistant of Cook Hall and a member of the Long Range Planning Committee on the Management and Operation he has become a well known figure about campus. He has also worked with the University Press and the University Wide Energy Conservation Task Force. Majoring in journalism with an appropriate minor in radio, Bill hopes to move on to bigger and better things through his pursuit of a law degree.

The Problem is obvious: What the Hell do you wear on the best dressed campus in Washington? Unquestionably it must be something more striking than Pierre Cardin or Givenchy. “HEADLINE”

Responsible for Howard's present and future, the Board of Trustees are "the powers that be" of the University. They come from varying backgrounds and educational concentrations. They are the determinants of Howard's overall policies. Their voice decides the extent of student and faculty participation, employment practices, and academic standards. Throughout their deliberations remains a strange kind of concern. Every proposal is considered for all of its merits—with so much at stake it's often better to be conservative. It's what's at stake that makes the Board so powerful: seventeen schools and colleges, a hospital, hundreds of acres and above all some 10,000 students.

Major General Frederic E. Davison, Special Assistant to the president, speaks with Caspa Harris before a Board meeting.

Board of Trustees, 1977

Meet the Vice Presidents

Meet who you say?
What Vice-Presidents?
What do they do and where are they?
In no way could President Cheek be expected to keep a personal hand in all of the University's business. Thus, six devoted and conscientious individuals are appointed to act as go betweens. Charged with academic affairs, administration, business, development, health affairs, and student affairs they each act with deans, department heads, the community and students. Whether it's a requirement for the distribution of syllabi, request for larger classroom space or assistance in student elections the vice-presidents are the people to talk to—even before you go to the President.

A different sort of job . . .

Graduating a student from Howard is not an easy job. At one time or another the University must feed, clothe, house, transport and entertain every one of us. They find that we are not content with a prescribed class schedule, but that we want to change it, our room mates, eating habits, and still be politically active on campus.

The administration, with the consecrated "A" Building ultimately holds the responsibility for our well-being. After the Trustees have ruled and the President has concurred, after the Vice-Presidents have investigated the difficulties—the Administration takes over. They give us SOLAR, housing requests, repair requests, security, and maintenance. They prepare our transcripts, bills, and distribute financial aid. And at the end of a hard day of class, they assure us fresh linen, a few hours of visitation and choice entertainment in Cramton Auditorium.

We often question the efficiency of their varied positions, but without them, life at Howard would be a trying experience. Their different sorts of jobs keep us and the University all in one piece.

William Sherril

Faculty and Administrators lend an interested ear whenever they meet. Whether conversation about students or the university, neither Christmas nor Charter Day decrease the discourse.

Business students: typically the best dressed on campus and frequently the most conniving. Yet, the School answers its goals of training students for high level managerial positions in government and business industry. Products of the school are also entrepreneurs, ready to take on the world. Graduates frequently find work with pay over $10,000, starting salary. The answer simply: it's a business world.

The School was recently founded in 1970 to answer a need for trained and qualified Black business men and women. The Bachelor of Business Administration degree is available for the following areas of concentration: Accounting, Banking Education, Finance, International Business, Management, Management Science and Marketing. The Master of Business Administration is available for both Business and Hospital Administration and the Master of Public Administration is awarded in areas of General Public, Urban, and Health Services Administration. Combination degree programs are also offered in conjunction with the School of Law and School of Engineering.

School of Law

Preparing world reknown lawyers is one of the successes of the School of Law. Yet, Spring Semester of 1977 saw internal dissension rock the boat. Led by the Student Bar Association, students called a moratorium on classes. One of their major complaints being the low rate of passage of the D.C. Bar by Howard graduates. This is naturally an alarming reality to students enrolled in the school. Charges were also made that certain instructors were at best ill-prepared, at other times incompetent. Dean Duncan promises in an effort to again place the Law School in the high position it deserves.

School of Communications

Responding to the oral tradition, the School of Communications prepares students to enter areas of radio, television, journalism, broadcast management, and speech. Courses are offered on both graduate and undergraduate levels, thus allowing the adoption of a well integrated program that responds to specific needs.

A slogan of the School, "Communicate to Liberate," stresses the need to transcend the oral tradition. Thus the School provided opportunity for students to work in the Speech and Hearing Clinic, WHBC-AM, WHUR-FM, and the organization of the proposed TV station. Students are given the opportunity to obtain varied experience before they enter the "real world" as qualified Communicators.

College of Fine Arts

Home of Howard's creative genius, Fine Arts host students involved in music, dance, drama and art. Faculty members encourage students to express feelings in art forms. Thus students are challenged with rope sculptures, animal personifications and recitals. Yet, each Howardite is touched with the fruits of Fine Arts Labor. Through the Howard University Marching Band, Jazz Ensemble, University Choir, Ira Aldridge productions and artwork a part of our heritage is redefined and our future looks brighter.

Dean Robert Owens

College of Liberal Arts

The largest and most diversified school on Howard's campus prepares students A-Z: Anthropology-Zoology. Because the Liberal Arts focus is primarily designed for preparing students for graduate and professional training, Dean Owens has made efforts to reorganize the curriculum. Subject areas have been broadened, independent study stressed, lessened emphasis on majors, in an effort to make the Liberal Arts student better equipped for life. Another step was the re-implementation of senior exams for the class of 1980. Liberal Arts remains the stay of education at Howard. General education requirements are generally found in the school. And for many Liberal Arts students, is the first step to a future of academic success.

Giving students an opportunity to explore 40 graduate programs including doctoral programs in 17 fields is a hearty challenge. Both faculty and students accept the challenge as they participate in the Graduate school. Established in 1934, the school offers an integrated program with various schools and colleges on campus. Challenged and determined, graduate students emerge to challenge the world.

Macroenvironmental and Population Studies

When the Department of Home Economics of the College of Liberal Arts could no longer meet all the needs of its students, it was necessary to create a new school. In 1974, Human Ecology opened its doors with traditional disciplines of Home Economics expanded to encompass human ecology: the interaction of man and his environment.

Six programs, Community Service Education, Human Development, Human Nutrition and Food, International Studies, Macroenvironmental Population Studies, and Microenvironmental Studies and Design lead to the Bachelor of Science Degree.

School of Education

All students in education do not want to be teachers. Their school provides them with training for teaching, but also for school administration, educational and school psychology, guidance counseling, research and specialization in education.

The school is primarily oriented to urban education and strives to train students qualified to meet demand in modern education—excelling through leadership. Specialization in Elementary and Secondary Education, Administration and Supervision, Adult and Continuing Education, Childhood Education, Educational Technology, Psychological Foundations, Guidance and Counseling, Reading, Special Education, Student Personnel Administration, History and Philosophy of Education and Social Foundations lead to the following degrees: B.A., M.A., M.Ed., Certificate of Advanced Study, Ed.D., Ph.D.

Curriculum and Teaching (Elem. and Sec.)

Since its creation more than 60 years ago the school has grown immensely. The growth can be seen as the response to a never ending need for Black architects in government and industry. Courses leading to the Bachelor's Degree in Architecture as well as to the Master's Degree in Architecture and City Planning are offered.

Not just average skills are found in students from Architecture. They all seem to be characterized with a high spirit of self sacrifice. Every weekend they start complaining of the infinitesimal amount of drawings, die and then disappear to their rooms. Yet, they maintain an enviable grade point average and are among the first to get jobs after graduation. So many times we wonder if we should change our majors to become a part of the School for Architecture and Planning.

Chemical Engineering

Nearly 600 students participate in engineering. Anyone who has reviewed the HILLTOP's listing of interviews or attended Career's Day is aware of the need for engineers and the current market for persons with engineering skills. Howard students can specialize in civil, chemical, electrical, mechanical, urban systems and computer science engineering.

College of Nursing

Dean Anna B. Coles

Howard University Hospital is the nucleus around which is formed the Medical Complex. Consisting of both the undergraduate and professional schools shown on these pages, the complex enables Howard to prepare qualified individuals to care for physical and oftentimes emotional needs. With the exception of Dentistry, the schools consider the facilities of the Hospital to be the prime training areas for professionals desiring to enter the medical field. Practical experience gained in the hospital is combined with a comprehensive classroom program. The final result is the production of technicians skilled and knowledgeable but also well-rounded and comfortable with their responsibilities.

School of Religion

One of the oldest schools on campus, the School of Religion produces theologians of all faiths. The School also serves as the base for the Gospel Choir, weekly Bible study in the dormitories, faculty/student Bible meetings, and Chapel services in Rankin Chapel. These services, like the numerous religious groups on campus, are designed to meet the common need of Howard students to communicate each with their individual God. It is an inter-denominational approach that creates toleration in all people involved and allows each of us to work collectively as brothers and sisters without regard to specific tenets.

School of Social Work

Established in 1945, the School of Social Work has grown from a two-year professional school to a school with masters and doctoral programs. The faculty and students of the School attempt to produce trained professional social workers who help people utilize their own abilities in the solution of their problems.

The curriculum promotes scholarly inquiry into the Truth of the Black Experience with a view toward formulating systematic knowledge and understanding of that experience. Community service objectives of the School are intended to provide social resources, to train personnel in specific skills, to develop methods for assessing adequacy for and needs of service, and to contribute to continuing education in the political, social, and interventive areas necessary for the improvement of the daily living and survival of Black people.

Charter Day 1977 Award Recipients

Elizabeth C. Mora

Many have heard of Elizabeth Catlett Mora, the artist, yet few know that Ms. Mora is a graduate of the Howard University School of Fine Arts. Beginning with her personal exhibition of "The Negro Woman" in 1947, Ms. Mora has devoted herself to expressing the Black experience through the aesthetic field of art. Her latest exhibition, presently being shown around the United States, is an anthology: "Two Centuries of Black American Art." Ms. Mora is a sculptor as well as a painter; she designed a life-sized bust of Phyllis Wheatley for Jackson State College and has been commissioned to design a 24 foot bronze relief for the Chemical Engineering Building at Howard. It is significant that this year Howard has chosen to honor this talented lady who expresses the spiritual nature of Black life through her art.

Joseph W. Hatchett

Justice Joseph W. Hatchett is an example of a true Black professional. A native of Florida, Justice Hatchett attended Howard University Law School from 1956 to 1959. He holds memberships in the American Bar Association, the National Bar Association, and the Federal Bar Association. Prior to his present position on the Supreme Court of Florida, Justice Hatchett served as the First Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Florida. He was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1975 and in 1976 he faced a state wide election to this office. His victory marked a historic first—he was the first Black to win a state-wide election in Florida. It is the production of distinguished alumni such as Justice Hatchett which helps Howard to maintain its fine reputation.

William Henry Greene

Since entering Howard in 1916, Dr. William Henry Greene has served this university in several capacities. He was president of the 1924 class of the Medical School, served on Freedman's staff for fourteen years, and was elected to the Board of Trustees in 1969. In addition, Dr. Greene has served as Vice-President of Howard University Alumni Federation. He was responsible for the establishment of a $20,000 scholarship fund for Howard students in 1959, as well as the Gladys Garrett Greene Student Revolving Loan Fund for the School of Education in 1972. In 1976, Dr. Greene received the NAACP "Outstanding Service Award." Howard can indeed be proud of this distinguished citizen who has been selected to receive the Outstanding Alumni Award.

Because of substantial portion of Howard University's student body are African students, it is fitting that one of the recipients of this year's Alumni Awards is Mr. Edward Olu Sanu. A native of Nigeria, Mr. Sanu graduated from Howard with honors in 1953. Since that time he has participated in a varied career in the Nigerian Foreign Service. He served as the First Secretary in Charge of Economic and Finance Desk at the Nigerian Embassy, he was Ambassador to Ethiopia from 1968 to 1973, and he has held the post of Chairman of the Finance Committee of the United Nations. At the present time, Mr. Sanu is the Ambassador of Nigeria to the United States.

Andrew Young
Ambassador to the United Nations

The morning after, The night before

The major speakers for the celebration of the 110th anniversary of Howard University had survival as their focus. Vernon E. Jordan, keynote speaker at the Charter Day dinner, dealt with the practical realities of life as he stressed the importance of alumni support for the University's future. On the other hand, United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young emphasized the aesthetics of world survival. Both Howard alumni, Jordan and Young attempted to pinpoint solutions to problems which Black people face, both in the microcosm of Howard and in the macrocosm of the world.

Jordan recognized Black colleges and universities as one of the most important factors in the progress of Black Americans. He warned both present and past members of the Howard community of the danger of complacency. He intimated that by allowing the Federal Government to bear the financial burden of sustaining our university, we thus allow the government more control: The key to Howard's survival is alumni support.

Ambassador Young reminisced about his days at Howard, noting that the Howard community, as a gathering of oppressed people in an academic setting, is unique. He encouraged Black Americans to consider the race of the United States in oppressing our people in Africa, and to realize that a certain interdependence exists between the continents of North America and Africa.

Can Howard help you if you're a high school student who wants to attend college? You bet it can. The Upward Bound Program, under the direction of Joseph Bell, is designed specifically for the purpose of aiding academically underprivileged teens in their desire to attend an institution of higher learning. By providing supplemental week-end classes in basic subjects, as well as focusing attention on individual counseling, the program hopes to encourage those students from area high schools of the viability of a college education.

The Assistant Director, Leslie Shields, provides the role of general counselor to the students. She organizes classes and timetables, introduces innovative programs for the students' preparation for college. This begins with modified career counseling in the tenth grade and continues with the specifics of colleges, majors, and financial aid in the later years. She is ably assisted by Grace Burton and a staff of paid and volunteer teachers and tutor counselors. The persons involved in Upward Bound should be commended for their dedication and commitment to serving the Black community.

& Univ., Sdnt. Ldr.;

Of all things experienced at Howard, no matter how informative or surprising, one aspect has come to stand above all others . . . Friends, transcending boundaries of age, sex, and position. Without you, I doubt I would have survived. Thanks!

Over in the office of student life

Coordination of most student activities is the major purpose of the Office of Student Life. Because it is temporarily housed in Cook Hall with the student government offices, the office is a favorite spot for students . . . who are in and out all day. Often they need to see Mr. Johns, or find out about intramurals, or meet with student leaders. However, they may just want to pass the time jiving with the secretaries. With the constant interruptions, it's amazing that Laverne and Linda ever get anything done.

In these days of inflation and run-away prices, the attempt to raise funds rears its head in many ways. Of course, we could all be sophisticated and proper in our quest for money, just like Howard University. We could send a personal letter to students, families, and alumni, describing our great need. However, because of students' temporary presence in the area, we usually turn to the old reliable method: bake sales.

Friday morning in Douglass Hall rarely pass without one organization or another hawking culinary delights of home-made cakes, cookies, and other sweets. In the spring for sure we expect to see each pledge line, at one time or another utilizing this tried-and-true method of fund-raising.

Fire drill!

The winter of 1977 was one of the harshest ever endured by the Washington area. The onslaught of cold weather held many serious implications: freezing temperatures, lack of fuel and heating oil, and a general inability of area residents to cope with the cold.

Perhaps one of the most important implications of the weather is the eminent threat of fires. Weekly, citizens tune in to the news to find out that another home or apartment building has been destroyed by fire. This fate awaited numbers of off-campus Howard students. Slowly, students realize that this is a real horror of winter time—being left homeless by a quirk of nature. Students tend to take fire alarms in the dorm for granted; often we ignore the sounding of the bells. We should realize that fire is a serious hazard that should not be taken lightly.

The staff of the 1977 BISON are honored to dedicate this edition to Dr. Mordecai Wyatt Johnson. Dr. Johnson devoted his life to the betterment of education for Black people and through his efforts Howard University became an institution of national and international stature: the Capstone of Black Education. In this small way, we acknowledge Dr. Johnson for we realize that his dreams made our Howard a reality.

Closing Time

"So you want a yearbook, eh?" I'd be glad to oblige even though politically I could have sent all the money to South Africa and used last year's pictures. Yet, I'm devoted, dedicated and most certainly crazy and I've been faithfully married to the BISON for a year—or at least something like that based on what's happened to my personal life. But that's another story and I've already done enough writing for this book.

To slip into tradition I must thank my staff—all of them personal favorites in thier own way and still not wanting to get emotional my appreciation extends beyond these lines and into the lifelong friendships I'm sure we'll maintain. Specifically, Marcia Thomas, Administrative Assistant, who gave me the most accurate and reliable set of books on Howard's campus; Anthony Shirley, Photo Editor, if we'd given him credit for every picture there'd be no space for any other copy; Deborah Richard, my mind, my words, and my Copy Editor. These three people contributed consistently beyond their job descriptions to provide much of the continuity in the book. Organizations Editor, Sherry Cole, spent numerous hours contacting and arranging for organization pictures and copy. Her efforts were frequently accented by Robin Lockery, Campus Life Editor, who tied all sections of the book together. Vedia Jones as Academics Editor faced the challenge of contacting students and faculty alike for her section. Sports Editor, William Tuck filled two roles as he organized his section and took his own pictures.

But even as I thank these people I can not help but to remember all of the other staff members that worked with each of my editors. I also remember long discussions with artist Robyn Gibson as I proposed nude after nude which she wouldn't let me print. Even longer hours were spent with Terry Miller trying to out-type that 70 wpm speed demon. They too deserve much credit for their unselfish contributions.

I'd also like to thank eveyone in the Office of Student Life that understood my fits of frenzy during deadlines, bidding, pay periods and so many other times when I just went off! Special gratitude to Raymond Archer who advised, counseled, recommended, congratulated, assisted, and provided my strength and determination during the BISON's and my trying times.

Naturally I haven't forgotten the omnipresent forces that made it all really possible. However you look at it, I couldn't have done it by myself and I'm glad God was on my side to help me through. Well, you have a yearbook and I give it to you joyously, after all Howard has given so much to me.

Aren't they both Hellified?!

Colophon:

With 400 pages, 6000 copies of the 1977 Bison of Howard University, Washington, D.C. have been printed. The Bison was printed by Josten's/American Yearbook Company in State College, Pennsylvania.

The book has a trim size of 9 x 12", and is sewn, case-bound, rounded and healed. Paper stock is 80 pound white velvet matte finish.

The cover is a custom silkscreen, using blue 439 and white 325, with the design on front and back designed by our own artist.

Body type is 10 point, 8 point for captions in optima, and 24 point for headlines, and 14 point for sub-headlines in Optima Italic.

Artwork throughout the book was done by a staff artist.

With the few exceptions, both undergraduate and senior portraits were done by Arpeda Studios of New York City.

Between fleeting moments, stop the change in you shows lines creep softly to your face
