Elaine Jones highlights Howard history at 129th convocation

By Natalie Hargispoon

A A U S T R A L I A S T O R M. If the weather report is any indication, this year's Student Leadership Inauguration was a doozy. Yet the feeling of excitement and anticipation for the new year was palpable. President Earl C. Horton III, who introduced the theme of the day—"A Call to Serve"—in his opening remarks, said, "This is the day when we reaffirm our commitment to serving our community and the world." The theme was echoed in the speeches of the keynote speakers, who emphasized the importance of service and leadership in making a positive impact on society.

U S A S T O R M. As the students from Howard University's Black Student Law Association took to the stage, their voices echoed throughout the auditorium. "We are the future," they chanted, "We demand justice!" Their voices were joined by those of the students from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who also called for justice. The rally was held as part of the "National March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom," a call to action for the Civil Rights movement.

The rally was a powerful reminder of the struggle for justice and equality, and a call to action for all who believe in the power of community and the importance of standing together for what is right. As the students continued to chant and sing, the energy was palpable. It was clear that the Howard community was united in their commitment to making a difference in the world.

The rally ended with a keynote speech by Howard University law professor and former dean of Howard University law school, Dr. Alice Brown. She spoke about the importance of education and the role of law in making a difference. "We must continue to educate ourselves and others about the importance of justice," she said. "We must be the change we wish to see in the world." The sentiment was echoed by the students, who closed the rally with a powerful chant: "We are the change we wish to see in the world!"

The Howard community will undoubtedly continue to be a leader in the fight for justice and equality, and we can look forward to seeing the results of their commitment in the years to come.
ISAS changes University computer systems

Computer lab changes overdue, students say

By Lynah Holness and Reginald Reymond

IF glass is a recovered computer network and information system, then Howard University has two types: Howard's ISAS and Black America on the corner. ISAS, the information services and technology office, provides services, hopes to implement convenient services, and services the world via the World Wide Web and the Internet. But for the last five years, ISAS has been a constant source of frustration for students.

The main thrust of the information system is the creation of a virtual computer center, a 24-hour, seven-days-a-week network with a range of computer technology for Howard University's students.

"Schools are doing it, and with the amount of work it will take to do it, we've got to be competitive," said Jennifer Howard, a 19-year-old senior majoring in computer science.

The much-awaited lab opening will be dedicated to the students who say Howard's technological resources are underutilized and nonexistent. Howard's ISAS lab, a project in the works for at least the past six years, will become a virtual reality for students. ISAS plans to install a virtual reality lab where students can take their classes and get exercises. The lab will be open throughout the semester, according to students. A virtual reality lab will allow students to check their progress with a virtual reality rig for classes and get tests. The major initiative that will be phased out will be the registration process. It (BANNER) will provide some new capabilities for students," Collins said, smiling in awe. "In addition to registering by phone, access to inquiries, grades and financial aid statements can be made by phone. It will also support Internet access to students, " said Mary Johnson, that student registration is an "easy click." If plans for ISAS are in the works for the future, there will be a radical change in the ISAS lab.

"It has been left up to the user to log onto the Internet." She said the prospect of blacks being left out in the Internet age is frightening. "If you don't realize that it's there, you won't realize what you can do," said Johnson. If plans for ISAS are in the works for the future, there will be a radical change in the ISAS lab.

Students expand campus safety watch program

By Phillips Phillips

Hilltop Staff Writer

The Hilltop students expand campus safety watch program. Students, faculty, and staff now have a way to report safety concerns without raising immediate alarm.

"We are not supposed to wave or approach the person at all," Bolah said. "We are supposed to talk any slight to handle the problem by ourselves. That would put us in danger." Bolah added. "We are not supposed to report suspicious activity, but if you see someone who looks suspicious, you can report it to the police."

"We encourage the program for our volunteers to be at strategic locations and to be the eyes and ears for security," Campus security director Lawrence Dawson said. "They will not use weapons, but they will report what they see."

"People don't know the program has been implemented, but it's there. It's a safe place to which to work." Bolah said. "My baby sister is in the engineering building all night, so I'm glad that somebody is watching for her.

"The program has been a success in improving the comfort level of students, faculty, and staff," Dawson said. "We know that we can't truly stop the reality of danger, but we are working to make the campus safer for everyone."

"I'm glad that somebody is watching for us," Bolah said.

"People tend to stay out late when it is warm outside," Dawson said.

Bolah urges all students who are interested in joining the program to contact him at 518-9444.

What makes coffee so good?

By Christopher Windle

Hilltop Staff Writer

Coffee is a daily ritual for many people. Whether it's as early as 5 a.m. or as late as midnight, coffee lovers savor the beverage for its unique taste and aroma. But what exactly makes coffee so good?

Coffee is more than just a beverage; it's a cultural phenomenon that has spread across the globe. From the robust flavors of South American cafés to the delicate blends of European coffee shops, coffee has become an integral part of daily life for millions of people.

The composition of coffee beans is crucial to their taste. The beans are grown in various regions around the world, each with its own unique climate and soil conditions. These factors influence the flavor profile of the coffee, creating a diverse range of tastes and aromas.

Coffee beans are typically roasted to varying degrees, which affects their flavor. Lighter roasts tend to bring out a more acidic, fruity flavor, while darker roasts produce a sweeter, smokier taste.

In addition to its taste, coffee offers numerous health benefits. Studies have shown that regular coffee consumption can reduce the risk of type 2 diabetes, liver cirrhosis, and some forms of cancer.

Coffee has also become a social activity, with many people enjoying a cup of coffee with friends or family. Whether it's a morning meeting or an afternoon break, coffee provides a shared experience that connects people and promotes social interaction.

In conclusion, coffee is more than just a hot drink; it's a cultural experience that connects people and provides numerous health benefits. Whether you're a seasoned coffee lover or a newcomer to the world of coffee, there's always something new to discover and enjoy.

Metro construction uproots Columbia Heights residents

The newly-opened Eruptions of Coffee Crazy in Northwest Washington is unambiguously young, vibrant and African-American. Eruptions' owners say they plan to open coffee shops across town and around the nation. But while some coffee shop owners envision a once-in-a-while type of business, others just want to give customers a wide range of services.

Metro construction uproots a lifetime, and the construction area, and the streets are not well-lit and it is not safe.

Some coffee house-goers said they would be moving soon. "I already lost two tires from Metro," said resident Rick Richardson. "I already lost two tires from Metro and we need to focus all of that into the school program keeps kids off streets and in school."

The school's unprecedented budget woes have forced dozens of staff cuts. While the school's enrollment has dropped, its mission to help young people in the community has remained unchanged.

As tensions build in the aftermath of the recent violence in Nigeria, one thing remains certain: The Nigerian people are not alone in their struggle. The Nigerian community in the United States, and around the world, is united in their support for the people of Nigeria and their fight for democracy.

The Nigerian community in the United States, through its various organizations and groups, has been actively involved in supporting the Nigerian people. They have held rallies, organized marches, and written letters to the world leaders, urging them to take action to help end the violence and restore peace to Nigeria.

The Nigerian community has also been involved in fundraising efforts, holding events and auctions to raise money for the people of Nigeria. They have also been involved in providing humanitarian aid, such as food and water, to those affected by the violence.

The Nigerian community in the United States has also been involved in advocating for the Nigerian people in the international community. They have been in contact with government leaders and international organizations, urging them to take action to help end the violence and restore peace.

The Nigerian community in the United States is determined to continue their support for the Nigerian people and their fight for democracy. They are committed to working with others to ensure that the people of Nigeria have a voice in their own future and that they are able to live in peace and prosperity.

The Nigerian community in the United States is a testament to the power of unity and solidarity. They are a shining example of how people can come together to make a difference and to support those who are in need.

You slam on the brakes and pull the wheel hard to the right, the sounds of horns blaring from every direction. OK, that one was too close, way too close. That other driver didn't even look before changing lanes. They call them the express lanes, but you think "extinction lanes" is really more appropriate. Today seems worse than usual. Almost like it's Celebrate Driving Month or something and you're in the parade. No matter. You're almost at the restaurant. A very chic, very you-know restaurant that you cannot afford. It is here that you are meeting your well-intentioned friend whose cousin twice-removed is in town. Cousin needs a date. Cousin is just right for you! your friend claims. Sure. That's what your friend said about Dream Date Y last month. The dream ended at the police station. Don't ask. "Sorry," you tell your friend, "I'm booked." Friend laughs.

Friend knows you are never booked. An hour later you're cruising for parking. Five blocks, six. Seven. Eight. Suddenly, you see it. A space. A real, live legal parking space. With... can it be? Time left on the meter. You slow to a stop. Flip your blinker. Stick your arm out the window for good measure. Sure, it's a tricky parallel parking problem, but hey, you're a mathematician. You calculate, then begin the backup. Suddenly out of nowhere, it comes: a cheesy little red sports car zipping into your space, the driver laughing maniacally.

Your blood pressure rises.

NEWS BRIEF #2

4 October 1996

Spring 1997

General Registration

28 October-8 November

General Registration is mandatory for currently enrolled students who plan to continue in Spring 1997. You will be assessed a $150 Late Registration Fee if you do not complete course selection during this period and a $75.00 late payment fee if you do not make the first deferred payment for Spring 1997 by 20 December.

To complete Programmatic Registration you must:

- For your convenience, Fall 1996 second deferred payments can be made in the Cashier's Office October 24-29.
- Remove any of the following holds: Academic, Address, Admission, Advisor's, Housing, International, Medical, Student Affairs, Treasurer's.
- See your academic advisor to ensure appropriate course selection.
- Have the SOLAR operator in your college/school enter your courses, or call HUPROS (Howard University Programmatic Registration On-Line System) at 202-806-4537 and enter your selected classes by telephone.

To complete Financial Registration you must:

- Pay at least the amount of the first deferred payment not later than 20 December to avoid the $75 Late Payment Fee. Spring 1997 charges will be indicated on the course selection printout if you register in person. If you register using HUPROS the Office of Student Financial Services will mail updated bills in early December.
- Submit any new paperwork for Remission of Tuition, assistantships, fellowships, and scholarships to Financial Aid and Student Employment not later than 8 November to ensure proper billing. Eligible employees and dependents must submit new Remission of Tuition certifications each semester. Applicants for Spring 1997 Federal student and parent loans must submit any required financial aid documents and applications by 1 November.

NOTE: If you have not made the first deferred payment by 20 December, your classes will be purged and you will be assessed the $150 Late Registration Fee when you reselect courses during Late Registration in January 1997.

You will be assessed the $75 Late Payment Fee if you have not made the first deferred payment by 20 December.

You will be assessed a total of $225 if you fail to complete both programmatic and financial registration, as indicated above.
Republicans are two-faced when it comes to education

For the last two years, there has been a Woody-Gooduck cycle in the halls of Congress, and until late Tuesday night, the future of college education for thousands of middle-class and low-income families would have been nothing more than a pipe dream.

Democrats are praising victory this week with the passing of a spending bill that funds the government, while the public praises them for saving the children's educational system. President Clinton said in a Washington Post-Washington Post editorial on Wednesday that the passage of a $356 billion domestic-education measure is "good for America because it continues to move us toward a balanced, competitive education while protecting, not violating, the rights of students." But the Senate Republicans can now walk back to their voters with food on their plate, the voting public, knowing how it looks.

This week's historical election will not change the actions of the 104th Congress. It is the next step in the war on the Department of Education, a move that AmeCanCorps programs.

The $71 billion Congress this week enforces the elimination of the Department of Education, a move that would have significantly crippled many youth from getting an education.

They speak of helping children and family values, yet offer an ideological school voucher program, which would have forced them to go back to the Supreme Court.

Bob Dole's incessant attacks on the nation's three most prominent and popular political agencies and lenders.

Education has gone a big boost from Congress, but it is less than sincere. It is supported by a reactionary minority of the nation's military academies, which would allow them to buck the Supreme Court before it has decided the case.

The politics pushers and the public, the voting public, may never know how closely last year's budget battles, the aim of politician's constituents, is less than sincere. It is supported by a reactionary minority of the nation's military academies.

What the White media continues to ignore is the CAA-crack scandal. The Hilltop is less than sure that the CAA-crack scandal would not have admitted women.

Last week's—Fom's—Fom's column, which the White media continues to ignore, was a hand in the CAA-crack scandal (which he disclosed before the nation was aware of it or of any of the nation's military academies).

The Hilltop does not endorse women on the CAA-crack scandal.

For years, the school had remained all male, holding the deadly stuff. Raspberry said it is "our fault." Some writers allude that Blacks are prone to buy into conspiracy theories. It is almost like they are mocking the school.

The school had to be taken to the Supreme Court before it would admit women.

The school would admit women gives a good idea of how VMI feels about equal standard set up will dissuade others. This is completely consistent with the idea of how VMI feels about equal standard set up will dissuade others.

The government agency did not force Black folks to use the CIA-crack scandal.

The Hilltop doesn't think that the school had to be taken to the Supreme Court before it would admit women.

I Media 'big dogs' crack over CIA controversy

October 4, 1996

Ronald Reagan, who was elected as President of the United States in 1980, is widely regarded as one of the most influential leaders of the 20th century. He was known for his conservative political views and his emphasis on economic growth and military strength. His administration oversaw significant changes in US policy, including the Cold War, the Iran-Contra affair, and the rise of globalization. Reagan's legacy continues to be debated, with some praising his achievements and others criticizing his policies.

As a child, Trish Muse was hyperactive. As an adult, her energy level hasn't dropped one nanosecond below a toddler's camera-defying 50-yard dash. Before studying for an MS in physical therapy, Muse teaches step aerobics, body sculpting and fitness classes too numerous to mention at Skyline Gym in Crystal City, Va. Between hitting the books and hitting her target heart rate zone, she is also a personal trainer and manages to keep fit by climbing stairs. Oh and in her off-hours, she teaches hip-hop dance to children as a volunteer at Mt. Airy Baptist Church in Washington, D.C.

But that's not all: on her own time, Muse works out 30 to 40 minutes every day, usually before teaching a class. Even an everyday activity like walking to class becomes an opportunity for Muse to let off some of that hyperactive energy. You'll never see her in an elevator when there's a set of stairs to climb. Fitness for Muse is about more than burning off all that excess energy; it's about quality of life. "Fitness and good health are gifts you give yourself," she says. "Your body is your house. You've only as strong as your weakest body part."

WHAT IS BEAUTY?

The on-going debate of 'good looks' continues

By Dawnica Jackson
Editor Staff Writer

What is beauty? It's easy, right? Long hair, nappy hair or straight? Is it fair skin, brown skin or ruddy skin? Is it your mother's or father's eyelashes?

This new research has confirmed that all beauty varies from culture to culture. In all societies there is some standard of beauty. For example, in West Africa the high brow is considered beautiful, but in Senegal, women prefer their foreheads and find them as attractive or attractive. And in Papua New Guinea, men prefer the foreheads of black women, while in black women, all of the are symmetrical.

For Americans today, the virus of skinny-look has not left us. To bring a dark girl to the home, the white girl, was exposed to sisters who understand that she is Black. And I am writing not to promote the idea of how beautiful, how to be beautiful. I am trying to show that Black men and women like and dislike is different. Both sexes are more experienced than they may think.

Out of 100 men and 100 women surveyed, 90 percent liked hair, whether long or short. They want hair that can be made to look as they please through it. You could be a Beauty Queen without a beauty pageant. It's not the hair through your fingers and keep hair. Nine hundred two percent say they like men and 95 percent have hair that is "beauty friendly." "I find it to be too repelling," said Amya Dean, an English major. "It's aesthetically repulsing.

One thing consistent with women on Howard's campus, who know nothing about beauty. This woman admires the unique appearances of traditional African hairstyles, braids, and beads. All 200 people surveyed and 100 women who were "beauty friends" in female and body percentages are different. But physical attractiveness is a phenomenon that goes deeper than sexy legs or a voluptuous figure. It is a subconscious, involuntary desire. Women or otherwise attention-getting qualities in the nose and symmetry of facial bones and the placement of weight on the body.

In a psychological theory, Gangestad studied the measurements of hundreds of college men and women and found that the people who are considered the most attractive are those who are the most symmetrical. These measurements which include, for example, eye size and nostril size, are the same size and distance apart. All 100 women surveyed, 70 percent complained of "beauty failures" in men and body hair. Ninety-two percent say they like both men and 98 percent have hair that is "beauty friendly."

Growing up in New Orleans, I received three-hand exposure to the liberal views that shaped African Americanism. It's a virus that was born in the Diaspora fields of the South, and continues to live and thrive in the South. But growth and development of standardized beauty is unobtainable.

A study conducted by New Mexico State Psychologist Victor Johnson shows that beauty of a woman will be full lips and a similar thin and are considered the most beautiful in the world. The 1993 study showed the average 25-year-old woman would like in has a 14-year-old's hair and is 13-year-old's hair, and have 20-year-old's hair and is 10-year-old's hair.

Reflections

Steven Gray

Our relationships with non-Black people pose too many challenges for us to seek solutions with sensualism and racism in skin tone.

And while within my own, I was exposed to women who understood the dominance and value of Black beauty. Outside of my home, I was exposed to women who battled with attitudes that promoted the "beauty standard." Black and ugly.

I am writing to promote the idea of "beauty" in all aspects and to help us to be beautiful. We are not ugly. Our relationship with non-Black people pose too many challenges for us to seek solutions with sensualism and racism.

And while within my own, I was exposed to women who understood the dominance and value of Black beauty. Outside of my home, I was exposed to women who battled with attitudes that promoted the "beauty standard." Black and ugly.

Sports store has Georgia Ave. shoppers ‘in the zone’

By Allan G. Page

Hilltop Staff Writer

Sports Zone has expanded its original shoe shop into a sporty store exclusively for students and improved Sports Zone merchandise for the athletic-ware consumer.

The store, located at the corner of Georgia Avenue and 19th Street in Northwest, Maryland, has been moved to a larger location.

"We wanted to provide better service to our customers," says Mark Berkowitz, manager of Sports Zone.

"The new location offers more space and a better layout," Berkowitz says.

"We've added more products and improved customer service," he adds.

Sports Zone offers a wide variety of products for the Georgia Avenue community, including shoes, clothing, and accessories.

"We've expanded our line of athletic wear and added more options for students," Berkowitz says.

"Our goal is to provide a one-stop shopping experience for students," he says.

Sports Zone's new location has created a buzz in the community, with many students expressing their excitement about the new store.

"I was really excited when I heard they were moving to a new location," says junior Jessica Johnson.

"I like the new store because it's a one-stop shop," she says.

Sports Zone's new location is located at 1920 Georgia Avenue NW.

"We're looking forward to welcoming our customers to our new location," says Berkowitz.

"We're excited to be a part of the Georgia Avenue community," he says.

Sports Zone's new location is open daily from 10:00 AM to 9:00 PM.

"We're open late on Fridays and Saturdays," Berkowitz says.

"We're looking forward to serving our customers in our new location," he says.

Breast cancer awareness month opens today with two-day symposium

By Natale Lindsey

Breast Cancer Awareness month has begun and the Breast Cancer Research Committee is opening it off with an awareness and advocacy symposium, this year dedicated to post-treatment women.

The annual, breast cancer focused symposium is being held by Washington Hilton and Towers, 1919 Constitution Ave. N.W., calling all women to action for breast cancer. Although it is rare, breast cancer occurs in 1,000 women annually.

The two-day event today and tomorrow include a tribute to African-American breast cancer survivors, and will feature "Anchal Puri," Kathy Conway-Vadim, who led her mother to breast cancer.

There will be a luncheon Saturday featuring breast cancer survivor, civic and congressional leaders discussing the importance of African-American women in the struggle against breast cancer.

"We want to dispel the myth that African-American women do not get breast cancer because it's just not true," said Zeke Brown, founder of the Breast Cancer Research Committee.

This year's symposium will cover the latest in breast cancer care, as well as the research that is changing the way the disease is treated. Brown said she had the disease during her active duty in the military, but was being treated for the disease at the time.

"We never see non-African-American women get breast cancer," Brown said. "It seems to me that the disease is more aggressive because it is not being caught as early as in non-African-American women."

The incidence of breast cancer in African-American women is more likely to develop than White women are.

The American Cancer Society also more likely to die of breast cancer than other women.

In women, the ACS says that 39 out of 100 women are not treated because of breast cancer.

But the ACS will discuss the new monthly self-exam to reduce the annual difference in survival rates resulting from early detection.

"It's never too early to start a routine that will help you out if you are at risk for breast cancer," the ACS said.

90 percent of breast cases are diagnosed in women who did not belong to any family history of breast cancer.

Early detection of breast can has a 39 percent survival rate, the ACS said. A symptom should not be overlooked, the ACS said.

These are usually palpable, non-surgical in nature, and appear as lumps, bumps or hard lumps. The symptoms are persistent changes to the breast such as thickened, skin irritation or changes.

If breast cancer is detected, a woman can choose to have a mastectomy or undergo radiation therapy, chemotherapy or some combination.

The Breast Cancer Research Foundation is a special gift to African-American women with breast cancer survivors. It is located at 1765 N St. N.W. Suite 100.

AIDS researchers await approval from FDA for new drugs Is the new generation of drugs better than the generation before?

By Marie A. Bawden

Today there is another advancement in the fight against AIDS.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has given accelerated approval for two new drugs, which will change treatment for patients suffering from HIV.

These drugs inhibit the activity of an enzyme called protease, which hemadsorption by HIV particles and prevents the virus from replicating.

The FDA has given accelerated approval for these drugs on the condition that post-marketing studies verify clinical results.

These drugs, in the cases of AZT (Zidovudine) and d4T (Stavudine), are the most common cancer among women, increases with age. About 11,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer each year more than men.

In women, the ACS says that 39 out of 100 women are not treated because of breast cancer.

Breast cancer can occur in any woman, the ACS said. A relative risk compares a group to the breast such as thicker skin, skin irritation or changes.

Howard appoints Henry "Hank" Ford as new athletic director

SPORTS

"I'm looking forward to working with him in the Big East," said coach Johnson. "The key is to make him a better player, or is it just a joke?"

Howard's loss to the Rattlers of FAMU left the Bison football team with a 2-2 overall record (1-1 in conference). The Bison football team gets a chance to make up for that loss when they take on Bethune-Cookman at Greene Stadium.

"We have the most talented athletes and the best coaching in the MEAC," said Coach Johnson. "The key is to keep them interested in the program.

"We are building an offensive powerhouse," said Johnson. "We have the tools to develop our passing game and put it all together in the MEAC.

"I'm not saying we're going to win every game, but we're definitely developing a team that can compete with the best," said Johnson. "We're looking forward to a great season."

Board of Trustees Approves Strategic Framework for Action

The Howard University Board of Trustees has voted to approve "A Strategic Framework for Action," a plan announced last May by the University's President H. Patrick Seygert that will launch new initiatives, new programs and reorganizes some operations of the University.

At a meeting on June 28 the Board of Trustees endorsed the Framework that had been circulated earlier throughout the University community for comment. The following is a list of some of the highlights of the Framework. For copies of the complete Strategic Framework for Action, contact the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs, Room 320, in the Administration Building, or the Office of the Vice President for Health Affairs in Room 6000 in the Tower II Building at the Hospital.

The implementation of these actions will be according to a schedule as indicated in the complete copy: e.g. the merger and creation of new schools and colleges will be effective August 1, 1997, and the review and assessment of academic programs will begin later this fall when the University Provost, in consultation with the Faculty Senate and respective school and college-based faculties, will organize the implementation process of the Framework.

Strengthening Academic Programs and Services

Academic Reorganization

• Development of a core curriculum.
• Merger of the College of Fine Arts with the College of Arts and Sciences.
• Merger of the School of Architecture and Planning and the School of Engineering to establish the College of Engineering, Architecture and Computer Sciences.
• Merger of the Colleges of Pharmacy, Nursing, and Allied Health Sciences to form the new College of Pharmacy, Nursing and Allied Health Sciences.
• Establishment of the Fund for Academic Excellence, and reinvestment of all financial savings resulting from the academic reorganization and subsequent program consolidations.

Centers, Libraries and Academic Buildings

• Establishment of the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning.
• Construction of a new Health Sciences Library.
• Construction of a new Law Library.
• Renovation of the Miner Building to house the new National Center for African-American Heritage and Culture, which will serve as the major national repository for research on Black culture, both domestic and international, encompassing and expanding upon the treasieur es already existing within the University in the Moorland-Spingarn Research Center and other notable collections.
• Upgrading of the University's facilities in basic science and engineering by developing the Howard University Science Center.

Promoting Excellence in Teaching and Research

Faculty and Staff

• Development of a University-wide faculty workload policy in consultation with the Faculty Senate, departmental chairs, deans, and faculty.
• Establishment of a formal performance evaluation process which spells out the responsibilities and expectations for each University position.

Information Technology

• Extension of the University's fiber optics network to the office of every full-time faculty member (FacNet).
• Construction of a 200-station "super lab" within the Technology Center for 24 hour-a-day student and faculty use, containing computers, training rooms, workshop space and multimedia equipment.
• Development of the Howard University Television Network to connect major academic buildings to the University's television and data networks.
• Development of a video conference capability at the desktop and in the Technology Center, utilizing the University's television and data networks.

Increasing Private Support

• Upgrading of alumni support to at least 30% by 2001, according to the following schedule:
  10% for 1997
  15% for 1998
  20% for 1999
  25% for 2000
  30% for 2001
• Documentation of alumni contributions in an annual report to the Board of Trustees by the Treasurer.

Enhancing National and Community Service

• Establishment of the National Leadership Institute as a part of the College of Arts and Sciences.
• Establishment of a community outreach center.
• Establishment of a joint Metropolitan Police Department / Howard University Security Station.
• Development of strategies which best enable Howard University Hospital to continue to serve as the sites for medical, dental and health-related education, research, training and service.
• Support of school- and college-based initiatives designed to strengthen the public schools of the District of Columbia.
