The members of our Howard family have such a grounded sense of confidence that they shine in any setting. People cannot quite put their finger on what it is about us that makes us the leaders that we are. What we have is not found in a brochure. The only way to understand is to step through "the gates" and experience the place called Howard University.

Grand Opening of Starbucks

The long-awaited opening of Starbucks Coffee created quite a buzz on campus. The Howard university bookstore celebrated the grand opening of Magic Johnson's Starbucks this past fall in true, "star-studded" style. Packed with the media and many adoring fans, Earvin "Magic" Johnson, was all smiles as he formally opened one of his infamous Magic Johnson Restaurant and Entertainment venues.

Overwhelmingly excited, one fan shed tears of joy as the basketball legend enthusiastically greeted her with a warm hug. English major, Melanie Pilgrim, exclaimed, "I have been waiting for this moment my entire life-this is the greatest day of my life".

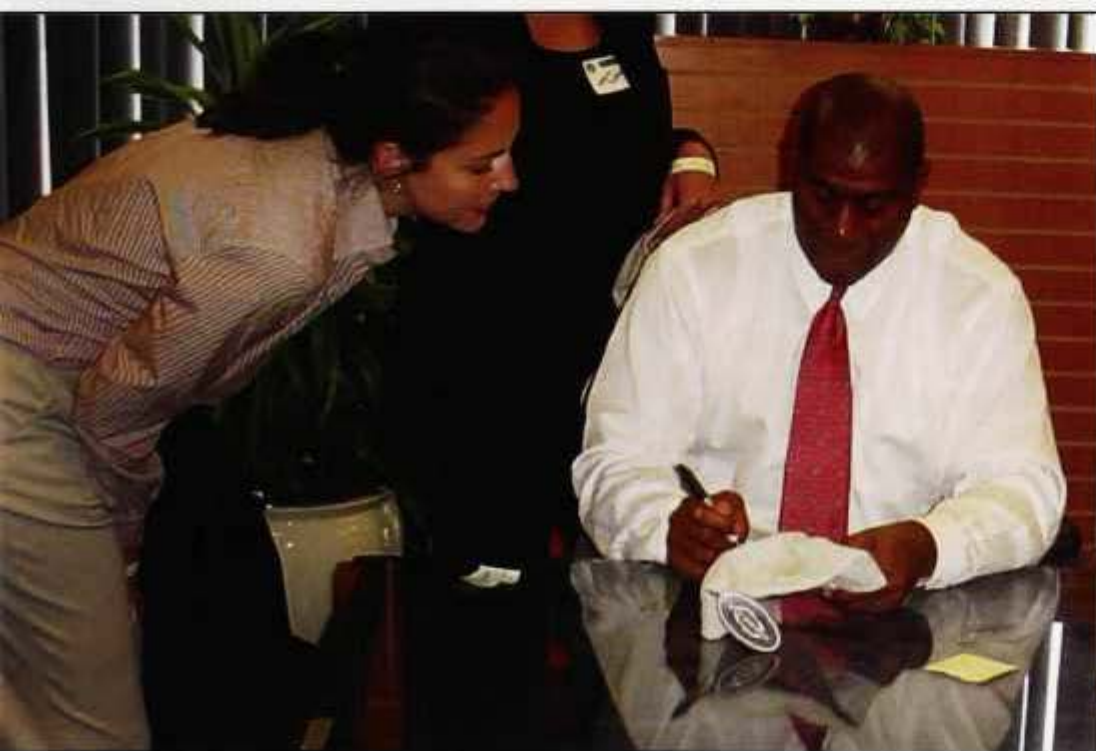

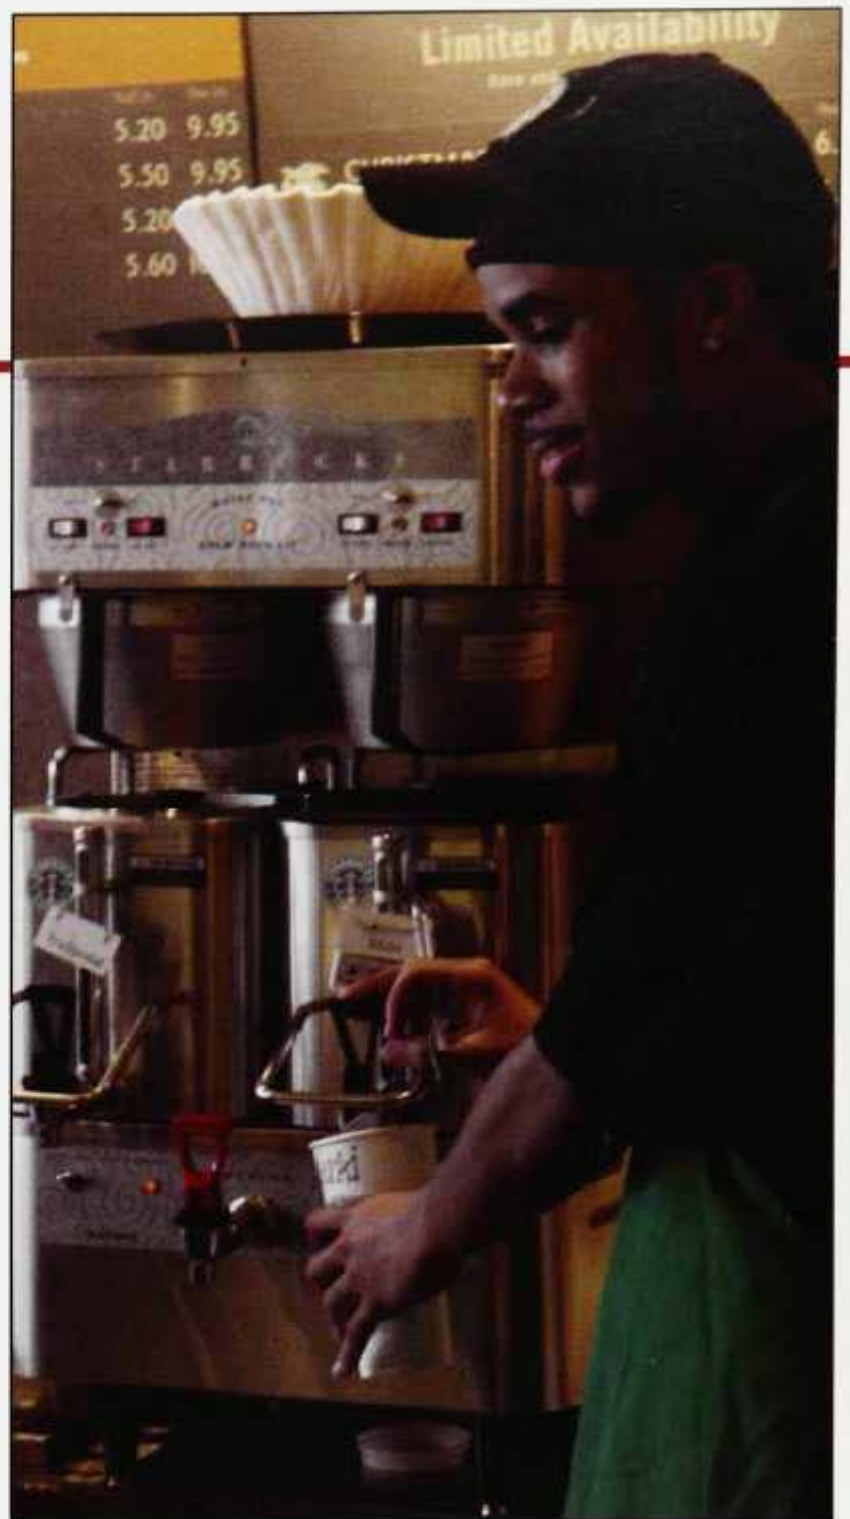

In addition to Magic Johnson Theaters and T.G.I. Friday's Locations, Urban Coffee Opportunities has joined with Johnson Development Corporation creating the only partnership with Starbucks, the leading retailer, roaster, and brand specialty coffee in North America. Launched in February 1998, these mergers were organized to endorse community development in inner cities amongst minorities. Sherry Packerfil, a 15-year-old high school student, had never bought a Starbucks product before the opening in the bookstore. "I never paid them much attention in white neighborhoods."

The Starbucks opening also provided convenience for coffee drinkers around campus. "I can now get coffee without having to go all the way to Dupont Circle", remarked sophomore, Adrienne Lee. Complete with a relaxing and charismatic ambience, students can sit and chat with friends, or study for an exam amidst the sounds of soothing jazz music and the calming aroma of fresh coffee, all while still on Howard's campus.

Howard University Afterdark

Between studying, attending class and acing exams, HU students find it very necessary to unwind, rejuvenate and forget about the stresses of their day. Washington, D.C. and the surrounding metropolitan area supply numerous activities for Howard students.

Union Station AMC Movie Theater

Okay, so you don't feel like doing much of anything. Take in a movie! "You can never lose with a good movie and Union Station is convenient if you don't have a car," says freshman Psychology major Adriana Martin. "They even offer student discounts."

The National Mall

Although there is no BeBe, Macy's or Food Court, the historical Mall still continues to exemplify beauty. It is a display of the surrealism and history that Washington was built upon.

Tryst Coffeehouse and Bar

Located in Adams Morgan, the ambiance is incredible. This dimly lit, highly popular nightspot is just what many students need to find peace. Angela Penny, a senior Fashion Merchandising major, says that Tryst is her favorite spot. "It's quiet, lots of candles and soft music; the perfect place to spend your evening."

From partying all night to chilling out with a good book and a steaming cup of coffee, Howard University students do it all and it doesn't hurt that we're located in one of the most diverse and entertaining cities.

Off-Campus Living

In an alcove in the corner of a spacious room, the moonlight cast from the night sky falls onto serene scene. The smell is that of fresh rain emanating from colorful candles burning. This quiet sanctuary serves as more than just a place to take a mid day nap; it is a place in which one can unwind and reflect.

The previously described scene is made possible by off-campus living. Howard students found sanctuaries and much more in the personal spaces that they created in their own off-campus apartments.

When Marketing major Monica Parker found herself placed at the bottom of the waiting list for campus housing, though necessity was her catalyst, she realized the increased advantages of this style of living. "I don't have to deal with restrictions and regulations on visitation," she said.

Students were strategic in planning their day, in order to accomplish all they needed while on campus. Other students were more conscious of how they utilized their gas, central air and electricity. Yashica Coney a senior English major, who found affordable housing close to campus, understands this responsibility. "I know I am capable of meeting certain expectations and now I am treated as such," she says.

It's these experiences that made students want to run out and peruse the classifieds in hopes of finding the same luck that these students did. For those who weren't yet convinced, this testimonial did the trick: "I have a place that is quiet and I don't have to pay to wash my laundry!"

The Historic Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel

Where does one find solitude after a disastrous day? Where can you find comfort when you feel your wounds couldn't cut any deeper? The answer is not the counseling center; it's the historic Rankin Chapel.

Dedicated to Andrew Rankin in 1896, the Chapel has become the center of cultural and religious activities within the campus and surrounding community. It has been graced with distinguished orators, such as the first African American president of Howard, Mordecai Wyatt Johnson, the legendary civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., educator Benjamin Mays, and historian Charles Wesley. Considered the "spiritual heart" of Howard University, the Chapel has had magnificent spiritual leaders that have guided and shaped its tenure.

Serving as "the center of diverse, active, and caring ministry of faith and service to the Howard community", it continues in its non-denominational tradition of campus ministry. The recognized campus ministries include Baha'i, Baptist, Episcopal/Anglican, Lutheran, The Muslim Students, United Methodist, The Navigators, Roman Catholic, Pentecostal, Seventh Day Adventist, and Tom Skinner Associates.

The Chapel Assistants, composed of Howard students, were organized to serve as peer counselors and as a liaison between the council and the general body. "We are an inter-denominational group of students and our goal is to make people aware that we are an open community," expressed senior, Maria Kane of Sugarland, TX, current president of the Chapel Assistants.

The Chapel has been committed to serving as the spiritual heart of the community and will keep opening its doors to those in need.

The Campus Pal Organization

"People don't realize how hard it is, but it's been fun," said Armond Mosley, senior Chemical Engineering major. Although the hard work behind the smiles and blue t-shirts is seldom acknowledged, the 2002-2003 school year brought tremendous work. Campus Pals, the university's oldest, non-Greek organization, serves as administration's most important middle-man.

During orientation, The Campus Pals introduced a new event, the Freshmen Pageant. Designed to foster pride and responsibility among the incoming students, the Pageant encouraged students to consider the mark they hoped to leave on Howard's campus. "The pageant was my favorite event. It felt special to have something just for us," said Carmen Muhammad, a freshman, RTVF major.

The Campus Pal Organization, under the leadership of senior, Chemistry major, Cameron Trimble, struggled to present meaningful programs long after their initial "coolness" had faded. "I just wanted to make sure that our presence was felt for the whole year and not just Orientation." Through panels, guest speakers, and parties, the Campus Pals showed freshmen students that their dedication was far from over. Long after visitation in freshmen dorms began, the boys and girls in blue fulfilled their purpose and made a lasting impression.

Students will remember that Pals were the first to extend a welcoming hand, to pass out a party flier, to give advice on "college survival", and the first to suggest which walls to stay away from. To Pals, it's simply their commitment: "No job is too big or small. We will always give our all. We will because we must!"

Giving Back to the Community

What do you do in your spare time? Have you ever heard the saying, "Help someone else get everything they need and you will get everything you want?" Several organizations on campus understood the pressing need for community service and took action.

According to the Assistant Director for Student Leadership and Community Service, Nyla Lyons, their job is to create partnerships between the students and community service organizations nationwide. "Howard needs to provide leadership in giving back to the community and provide a forum for partnerships," said Lyons.

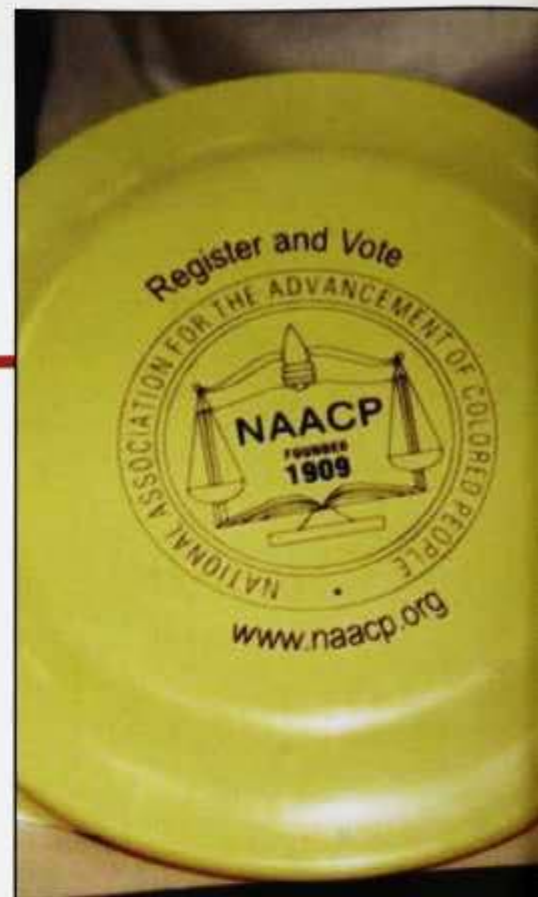

Howard Organizations definitely made time to prepare volunteer programs for the community. The Howard chapter of Circle K is an international community service organization that prides themselves in service, leadership, and fellowship. Krystie Robinson, current President of Circle K, explained that "the organization is volunteer based and community centered." America's Promise focuses on five promises; Caring Adults, Safe Place, Healthy Start, Marketable Skills, and Opportunities to Serve and "they strive to instill these promises into children" explains Co-coordinator Latanya Foster. The Howard Chapter of the NAACP implemented a year-round project that mentored 12 to 18 year-old students in Northeast, DC. "We had one-on-one mentoring and tutoring," said Community Outreach Director, Chanelle Dumas. "We tutored the students in academics and also tried to encourage them to travel and attend college."

As the need for outreach in the community continued to grow, so did the amount of participation from Howard students, which demonstrated leadership on campus and within the community.

Homecoming

You've heard about it. Read about it. Anticipated it. Bought the "flyest" gear. Skipped classes. Had all your people from home fly in. It's without a doubt, the most live event of the year.

Comedy. Fashion. Talent. Stepping. Stars. Good grub. Partying, partying, and more partying. Beautiful, Black people from the past to the present.

It's Howard's HOMECOMING! What more needs to be said?

In Howard's very own "Cotton Club", stood ten dynamic representatives of various schools and colleges on Howard's campus. Fittingly adorned to match the theme of the Harlem Renaissance, the annual Mr. and Miss Howard University Pageant was a complete showcase of the finest blend of talent, intelligence, and eminence that emulates the standard of a Howard student.

The opening dance by the contestants, reminiscent of the popular dances circa 1920, gave the eager audience a taste of the creative and outstanding performances to come. The contestants were decked out in flashy "zoot" suits and bright and colorful flapper-style dresses of the era. Each contestant introduced themselves along with their platform, displayed an individualized talent, modeled evening wear, and answered a variety of questions, testing their knowledge and opinion on political, social, and economical issues.

Judge, and Former Miss Howard University 2000-2001, Vallyn Smith, expressed her excitement at the level of quality competition. "This is some very stiff competition. Who ever takes home the title truly deserves it."

While each of the ten contestants were marvelous, the blessed male and female to take home the title of Mr. and Miss Howard University were Mr. Jamal Jowers, Mr. College of Computer Sciences, Engineering and Architecture, and Miss Tiffany Sheree Gainer, Miss School of Arts and Sciences.

Pageant Coordinator, Steve Mobley, remarked on how stressful organizing one of Howard University's most important functions was. "It has been such a challenging and fulfilling experience. My contestants were wonderful sports about everything."

When asked how they expected to execute a successful year as the reigning Mr. and Miss Howard University, both Mr. Jower and Miss Gainer responded with a firm smile and reassuring words that, "this will be a year unlike no other".

This Joint is Jumping...

Written by Horecee St Cyr

(Center) What an exciting view of the ball attendees doing the night away on the, oh, so elegant dance floor and scenery. The coordinators of this year's ball really out did themselves.

(Right) Mr. and Miss Howard Tifeny and Jamal were featured with their court. Each school's queen represent with excellence, beauty and intelligence.

Like all good productions, the grand finale must be a “jammin’ and jive dancin’” after party, and to no surprise, that is exactly what the 2002 Coronation Ball was. It began with the formal introductions of Howard University dignitaries and alumni, and the 2002-2003 Mr. and Miss Howard University, Jamal Jowers and Tiffany Sheree Gainer. The dimly lit room accompanied with the sultry, jazz music softly playing in the background gave the feel of a seductive Harlem Cotton club, appropriately decorated to match the theme: This Joint is Jumpin.

And “jumpin’” it was. Willie Carteledge, a junior Radio, Television, and Film major from Hyattsville, Maryland remarked, “this is my second year attending the Coronation Ball, and it amazes me that the music is always so lively.” From R&B and Hip-Hop, Caribbean and all the way back to the rhythmic sounds of Go-Go from our very own Washington, DC, the deejay kept the room spinning and dancing with his versatile sounds. “A lot of times the deejay doesn’t play the Midwest tunes and it was nice to hear him switch it up a bit,” revealed sophomore Makia Kambon, from Columbus, Ohio.

The Blackburn ballroom dance floor was flooded with vivacious and energetic students, who danced well into the wee hours of the morning. Freda Henry, a sophomore English major from Milwaukee, Wisconsin exclaimed, “I though it was great that a lot of students showed up to help Mr. and Miss Howard celebrate their new reign. It says a lot about the love that we have for one another.”

Mixed with a “crunk” soundtrack, dancin’ feet, and a tiny bit of decorative pizzazz and flair made “This Joint is Jumpin’” a huge success.

(Bottom left) Mr. School of Communication showed his musical talents on the piano. He brought a wonderful change of pace to the ball.

(Bottom right) Don't you wish you were him. The Ball attendees had the time of their life.

(Right top) This student was not going to take the funk, he just wasn't entertained. Don't you think that the signs were perfect for the Howard student to try to show how they feel (Above) Lazy Lament hosted the comedy show. Outside of introducing the guest he also added a spice of entertainment.

(Right) Sendman, the original idea of Showtime at the Apollo kindly escorted everyone. the audience wasn't feeling.

With DJ Sixth Sense spinning the latest beats on his turntables, Lazy Lamont of the Russ Parr morning show prefaced Howard Homecoming's Apollo at the Mecca Comedy/Talent Show by calling it "a Homecoming people will not soon forget."

The fourteen acts in the show varied from poetry, dance, singing and rap. Prizes were given based on audience approval and were awarded in each of the categories.

Within the first few seconds, many of the less impressive performers became victims to the hisses and jeers of a tough Howard audience. As the crowd waved signs declaring the acts "Way too Wack!," a mock HU "sandman" slid onto the stage and whisked offensive performers away.

Kelly Carter received the first standing ovation after reading a poem in which she declared a need to "Testify." As she criticized those who "intellectualize when high" the audience roared with approval.

Among the first place winners was vocalist LC Harding, singing Luther Vandross's "A House is Not a Home," making the ladies swoon. Omari Degrey's spoken words were accompanied by the soft sounds of jazz greats. "Vizion Performance Team," a co-ed dance group and vocalist Tina Torres also received prizes.

BET Comedian, Damon Williams, joked about everything, from music to airplanes. He seized the audience with laughter when he described women with flat behinds as the reason "why Asian men squint," and the disturbance that he felt when seeing signs for "handicapped parking at the roller rink."

"He was hilarious," said senior Marketing major Joy Adams of his performance. Chocolate closed the show with a prayer ending this year's display of Howard's talent on a positive note.

(Bottom Left) Damon Williams amused the crowd with his antics. I guess ya have to be a Pro to win the Howard crowd.

(Dominant) Yes, Yes, Jarret Jackson... need we say more except...seconds please! Howard men look, learn and take notes.

(Bottom right) Do-it girls, walk that catwalk. The fashion show was full of fashion and skin.

Individuals dressed to impress could only mean one thing. The 2002 Homecoming Fashion Show: Pimp Harder. Style, beauty, poetry and music were all woven together to create an exotic fabric of fashion.

Laced with three large plasma screens, lighted pillars and the infamous catwalk, extended into the audience where Howard University models would be transformed into "fashion pimps," Cramton Auditorium became "fashion central."

Large movie screens displaying scenes from Pimps Up Hoes Down, Dolomite, and various pimp documentaries added to the show. "The movie clips were effective in conveying the ambiguous message of pimp harder," says junior Kerel Thompson.

The vision of the coordinators, Megan Moore and Jessica Lima, was clear. The vivid scenes were composed of all types of pimps, such as, smooth pimps, tough pimps, and classy pimps. From exotic sportswear to intimate swim wear, all facets of fashion were represented. "The key to style this season was confidence," said junior Joshua Grey, "Therefore the all-empowering pimp look made a come back."

Many students agreed, such as, junior Broadcast Journalism major, Ashley Traynum. "Pimps have a certain confidence and all the models on stage embodied that confidence."

As tradition calls, this years fashion show featured the trendiest clothing designers, as well as our very own Howard University designers. Freshman Katrina Neale said, "This was my first Howard Fashion show and I enjoyed every minute of it, the outfits that caught my attention the most were the simple mens shirts the ladies modeled as dresses. It was so innovative and trendy."

Live poetry by Olu Burell, Droopy and Liberty kept the audience at the edge of their seats. Just the same, models moved on beat to live performances by Frenchi and Joseph Hawthorne, making the show a success.

(Top left) Fashion is about attitude and confidence. You definitely have to have both to be a Diva in the braless swimsuit.

(Right) First place winners, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity Inc. captivate the audience with their cones for the first time in some years.

The stage was set and the crowd was ready! The Homecoming Step show, "The Divine Nine," made history, having all nine members of the Pan-Hellenic council and the Roosevelt High School Steppers.

The Iota's came out and shut the fraternity portion of the show down! Using their extraordinary tricks and theatrics, they amazed the crowd and judges tying for first place with the Kappa's.

The Nupes entered from all sides of the arena, showing coordination with canes, stepping with afro-wigs to the Jackson Five. The Alpha's used props to display their knowledge of the break-dancing culture, while the Sigma's told the history of the Pan-Hellenic council wearing blue wigs and giving respect to all the members. The nasty dogs of Omega Psi Phi were also pleasing, showing their toned bodies, wearing purple togas.

No sorority could out step the Divas of Delta Sigma Theta! Taking first place, the Deltas came out to the theme music of Austin Powers, taking less than twenty seconds to change outfits during the show. They sent the crowd to their feet by proclaiming that "it's not that hard to step in suits."

The AKA's followed the pink and green road to find their "Alpha excellence." The Zeta's took it back to the twenties by using costumes and mature sorors to pay respect to their founders, and the Sigma Gamma Rho's brought it to the courthouse to defend their reputations.

The show ended with a wonderful performance by the Alpha Omega Steppers for Christ, leaving the crowd entertained and blessed!

(Center) Doesn't the yard look alive? It always is.

(Right) Exhibit turned it out on Friday. The yard will never be the same!

With the sun beaming, vendors cooking an array of international foods and plenty of alumni, family and friends, the environment was set for two days of socializing and entertainment. There was something for everyone, including blow-ups for kids, games and famed, celebrity hair stylist, Oscar James was cutting and curling hair under the Essence tent. The event promised to keep the yard moving with headlining performances from Fundisha, Ray Luv, Gza, Lil' Flip, Killer Mike, Pastor Troy, Jade, Twista and the legendary, LL Cool J.

Girls were decked out in their stilettos and Tims, mini skirts and jeans and guys had the fresh jerseys and matching hat. Those returning "home" were enjoying the familiar faces and nostalgic feeling of being on the yard again. Visitors took in all the action and good fun, while trying to spit their best lines to the "Howard girls."

The festivities went into full swing when the artists hit the stage, including Lil' Flip performing his hit single, "This Is the Way We Ball." The crowd was singing along at the top of their lungs. Also rocking the stage was the newest member of the R.O.C., Twista. He performed his classic, "Get It Wet," and his verse on "Is That Your @$%*?". But the moment of hysteria was when the "lip licker" himself, Mr. LL Cool J, breezed through the crowd to quickly remind everyone he had a number one single out, "Luv U Better." He teased the crowd with one verse; just enough to get everybody ready for the after party!

If you missed it, don't fret because it's going down next year, same time and place, bigger and better.

(Bottom) Mr. and Miss Howard carried on the tradition of opening the ceremonies of the game.

Heading into the 2002 Homecoming game against the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference-rival, Bears of Morgan State University, Howard had every reason to be confident. The Bison hadn't lost a Homecoming since 1989, and they had embarrassed the Bears, 41-15, the previous year in Baltimore.

But, despite playing in front of an over-capacity crowd of 13,500, the Bison fell to Morgan State, 38-20, ending a seven-game winning streak over the Bears and stunning players and fans alike.

"They just came out and executed," said Bison linebacker and two-time MEAC defensive player of the year, Tracy White. "They just gave the ball to that little tailback (Stallings) and let him run with it."

Howard got on the board early, when senior quarterback, Donald Clark hooked up with junior wide receiver Jonathan Brewer for a 79-yard scoring bomb to make it 6-0 just 20 seconds into the game. It would be the last time Howard led.

Morgan responded quickly, as Bears running back, T.J. Stallings capped a four-play, 38-yard drive with the first of his five touchdowns, a 6-yard run to give Morgan a 7-6 lead.

Later, with Morgan leading 14-6, Howard had a chance to regain the lead when Clark found Brewer for their second touchdown of the game, but the Bears put the ball in Stallings' hands the remainder of the game, as the speedy running back helped the Bears nail the coffin shut on the Bison. It was costly turnovers that spelled trouble for Howard.

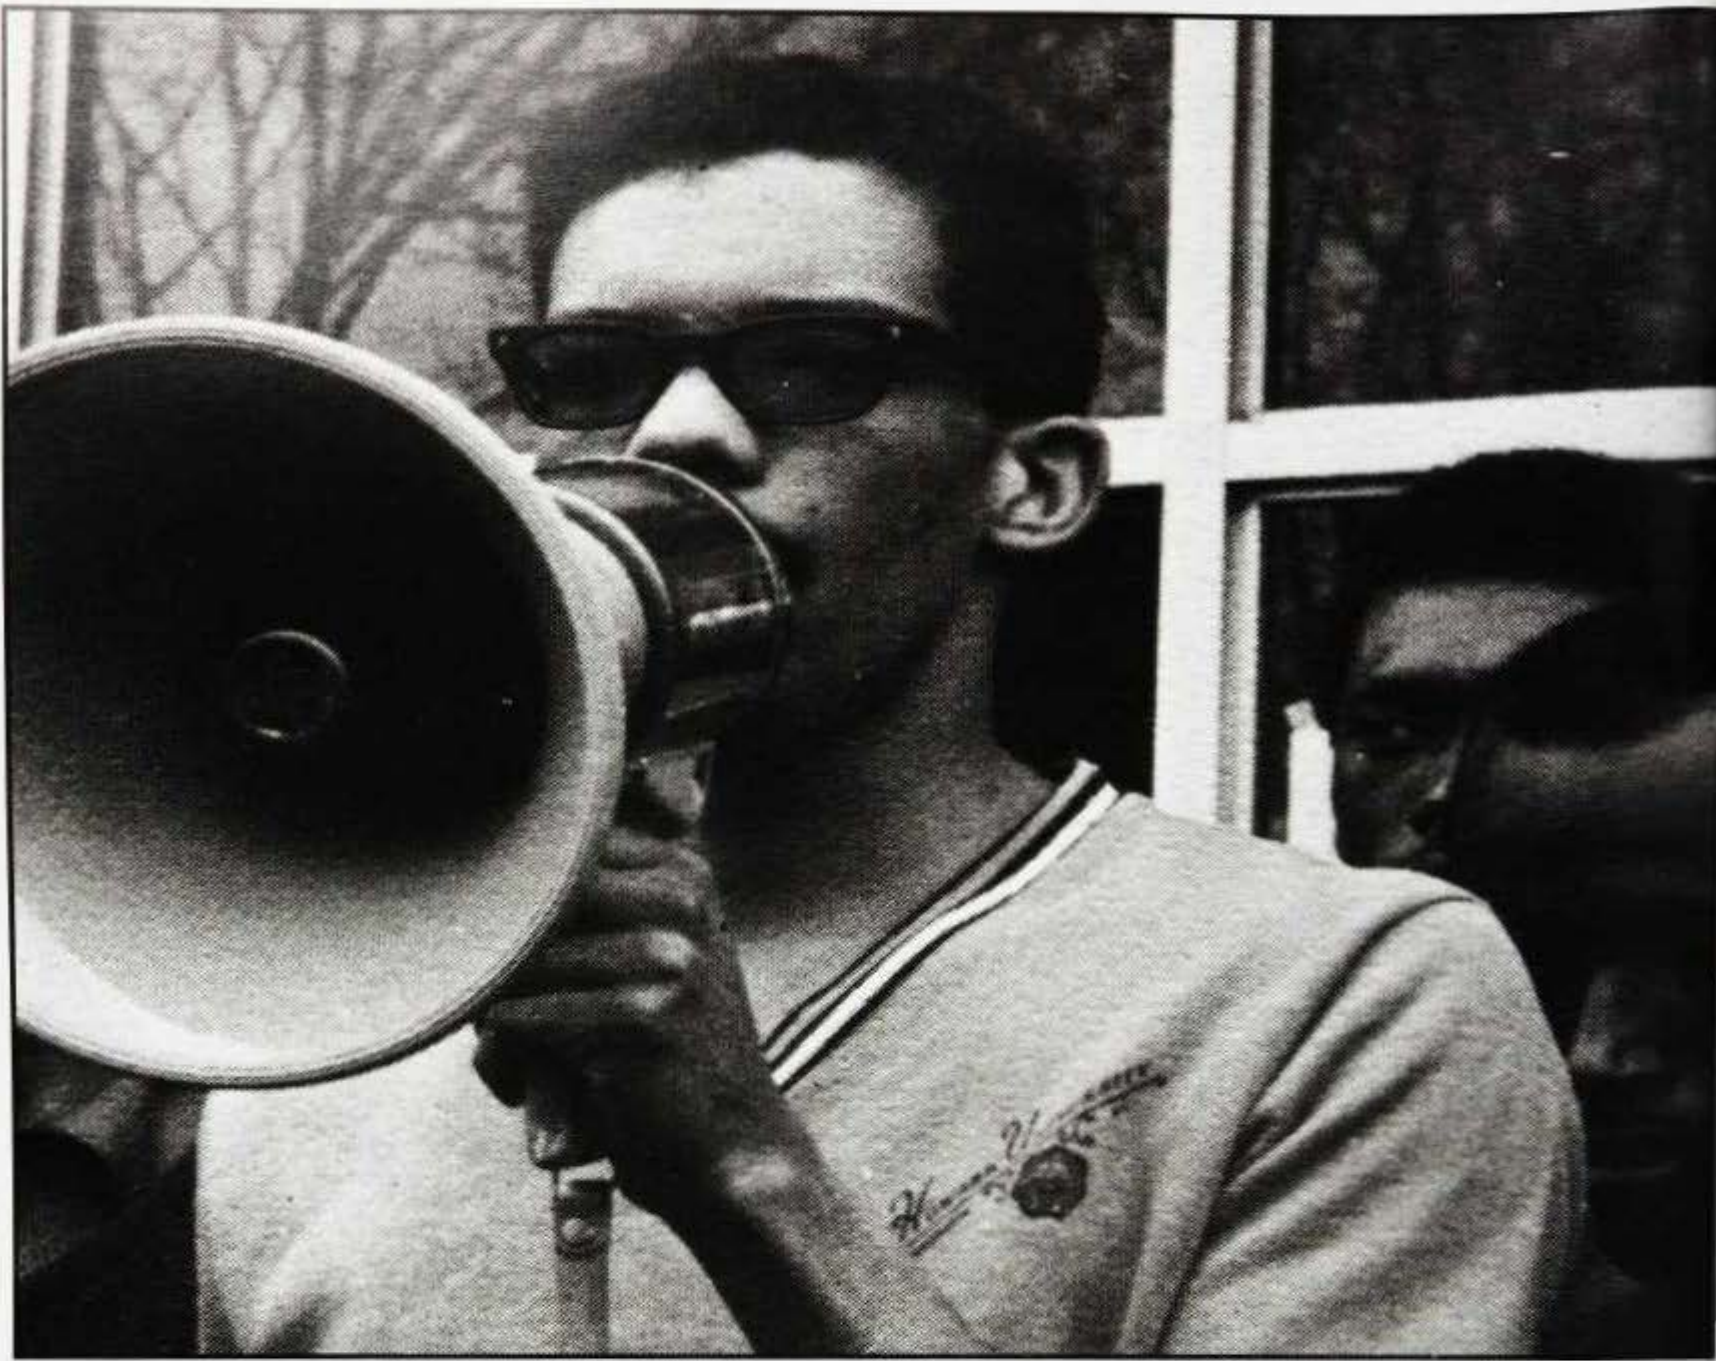

"I still can't believe that we lost," said junior Tracy Jackson. "I thought if we didn't win any other game this season, we should have won our Homecoming game. You should always be disappointed when you lose your Homecoming."

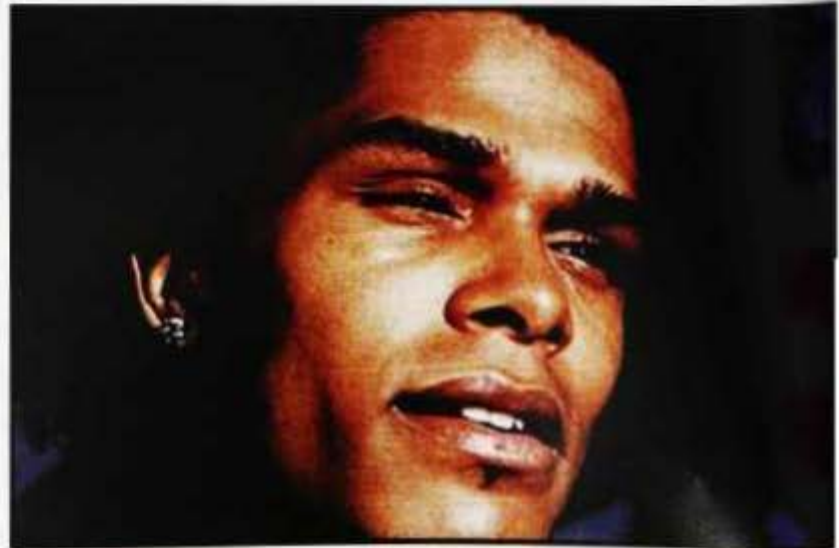

(Bottom left) There is not crowd like the Howard student crowd. Win or lose, we cheered on and on and on.

Get Involved!

While driving home last night at 11:00 pm from a long rehearsal in the Department of Theatre Arts, I began thinking about student involvement. For a long time, I thought student involvement meant joining all types of campus organizations, and being seen everyday of the week. In other words, being that man or woman on campus. But my feelings began to change. Student involvement is student action. Student involvement is conscious activity, and should go far beyond the list of groups, organizations or Greek affiliations one can run off.

In an age where countries attention are focusing on acts of terror, and the balance of power slowly begins to disappear into a sea of Republican faces, student involvement must be continuous and extend far beyond the confines of the Hilltop. Essentially, I believe that student involvement must equate to action as community.

For many years before I became a Howard student, I heard stories of the great minds and "change agents," all whom emerged from the Mecca. Thurgood Marshall, L. Douglas Wilder, Ossie Davis, and Amiri Baraka. I wondered if my generation of scholars had the same quest to elevate the community. I felt almost as if the world of "bling, bling" and fast cars was deterring our focus as black intellectuals. However, a good friend reminded me that in the true sense of Howard University, nothing has changed. Young black minds are still being challenged and new voices and opinions are strengthening themselves. The problem presents itself in whether or not we are being heard. Something tells me that we are not. So, in short, why not get involved? Its time for us, as a community of scholars, to stand up, move forward, and speak louder. Get involved! Peace.

My Perception...

Finding "The One"

College is where you supposedly "find yourself", and in turn, you also find out who you best fit in with. Now, your future husband or wife comes in. Ultimately, your past relationships will merely serve as stepping-stones leading to the person who you will share the rest of your life with. When you find him or her, you'll think back to all the time that you seemingly wasted on relationships gone bad. This is where you need to stop yourself and realize that everything you experienced was preparation for "the one."

We are not human beings, au contraire; we are human beCOMings. Everything is a process. So, those heartbreaks are experiences that you use to help, not as a hindrance. But in the meantime, how do you deal with the past hurt?

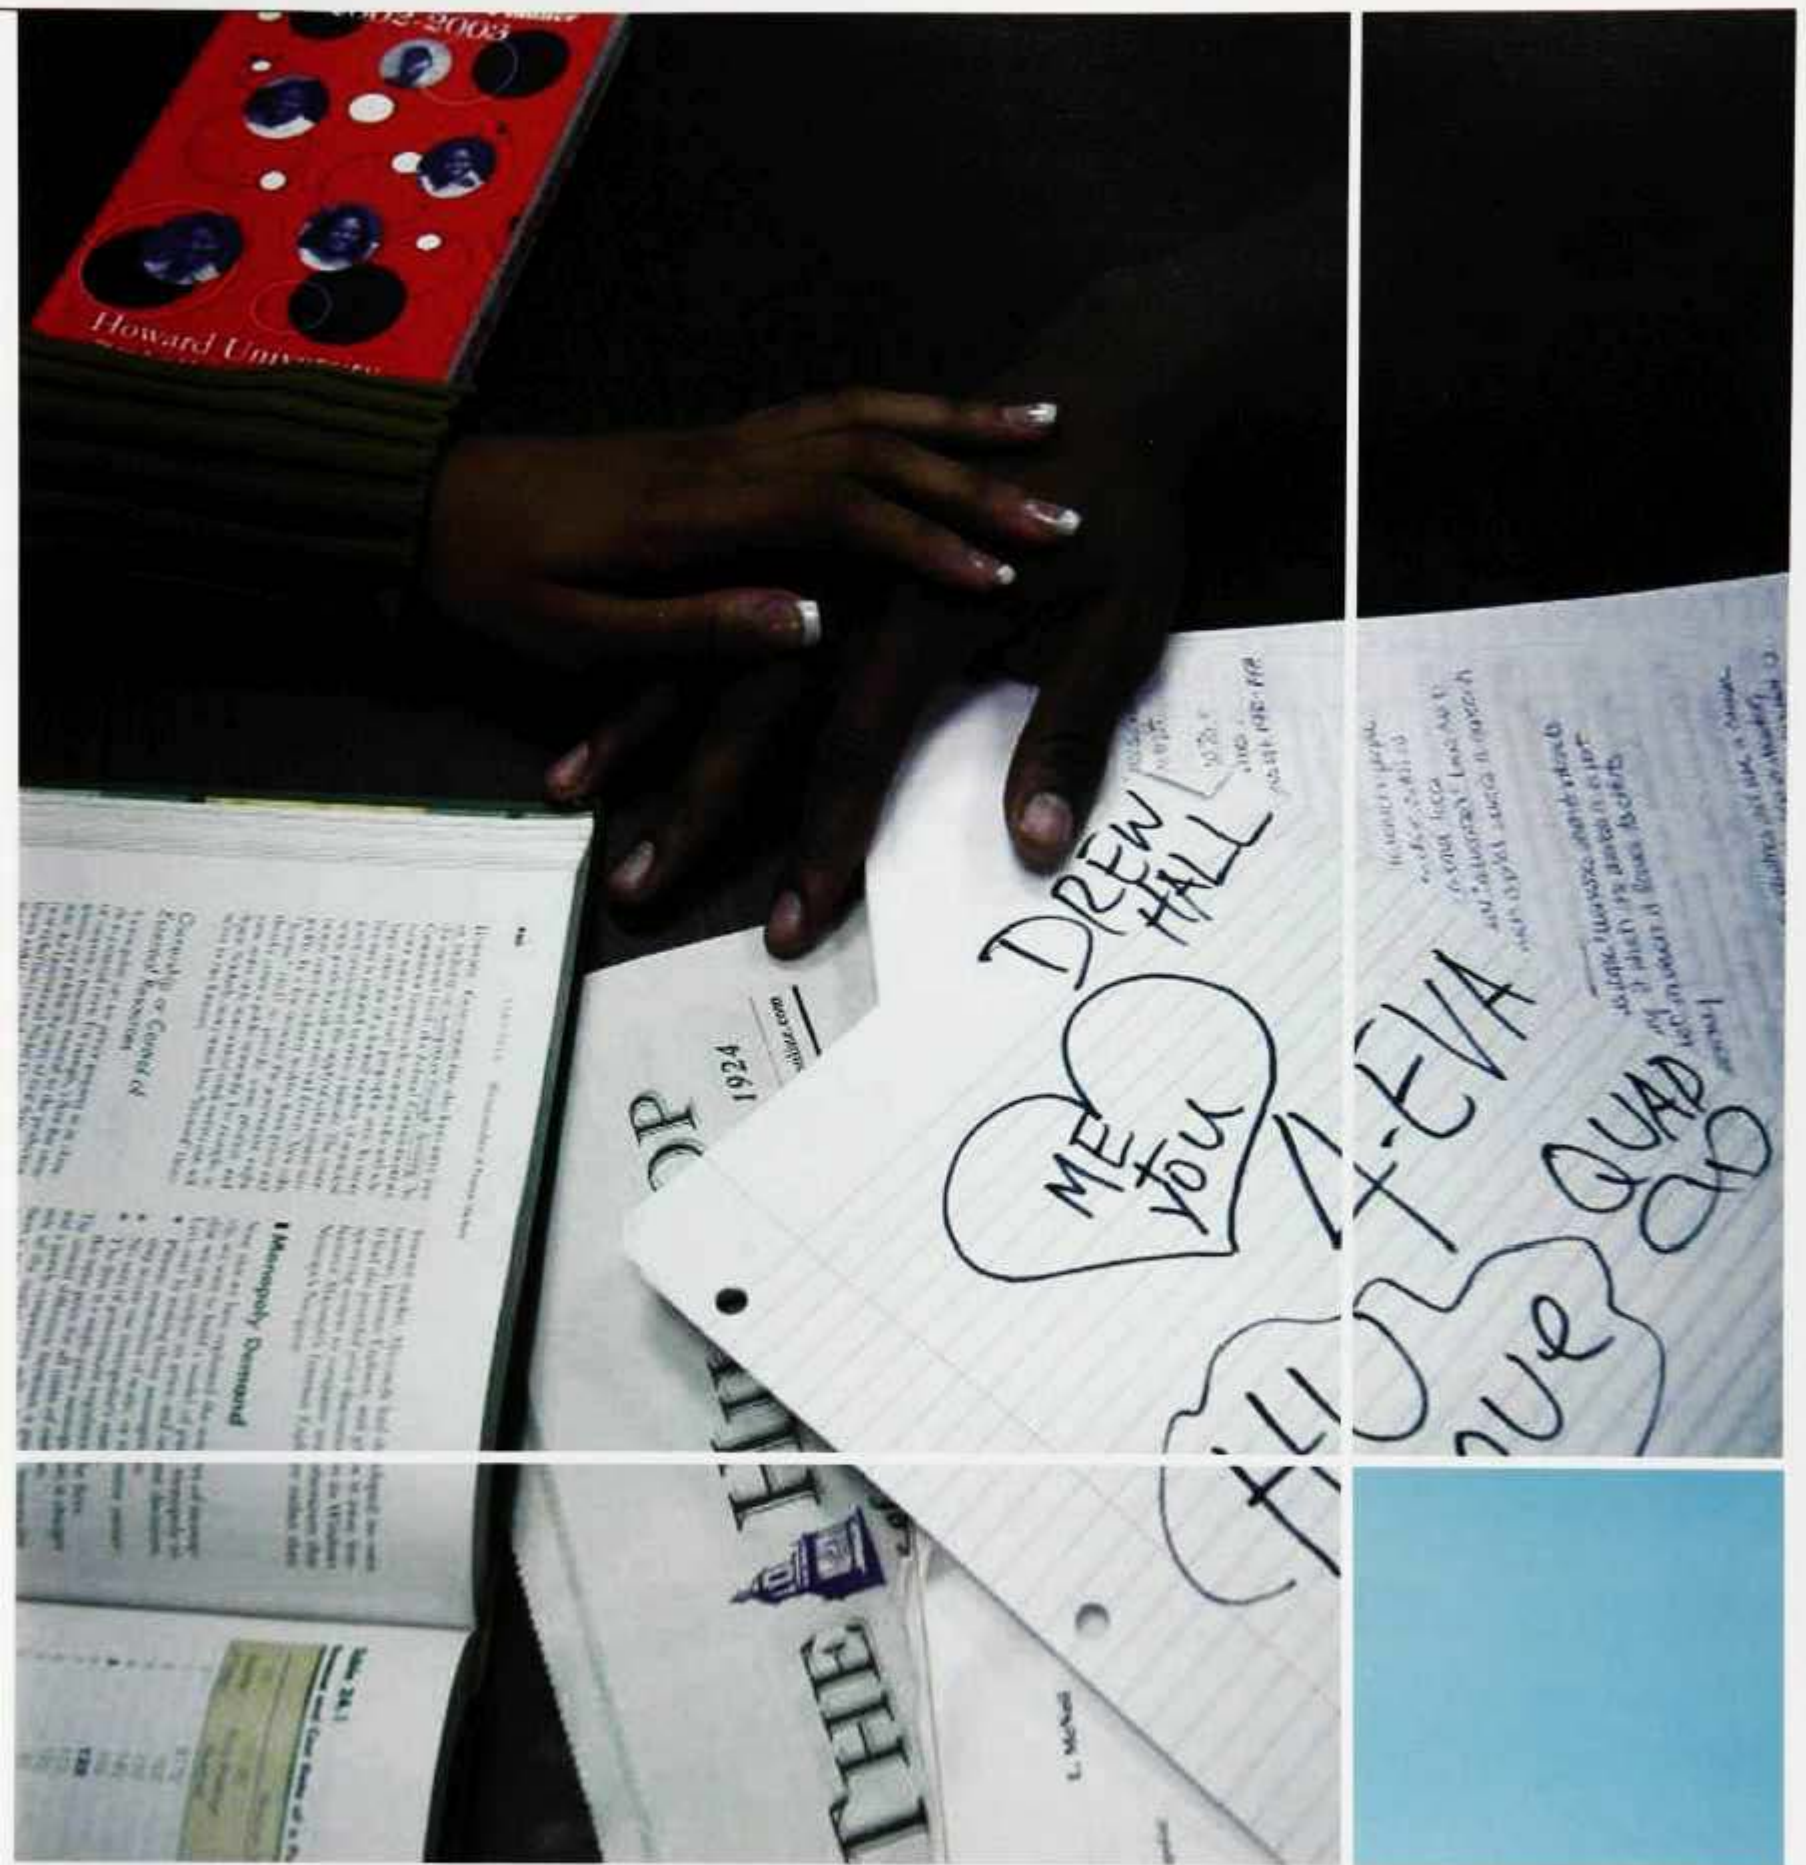

There are some instances where people have never been hurt. Lucky you. Your time will come if you keep living long enough. I would say skip what I am about to say next, but read on for future reference. There is a quote that I keep dear to my heart about healing:

"You must learn to let go that which you cannot have, in order to keep that which you cannot lose." You have to move past things that hold you back, so you can appreciate the things that God places in your life. Once you can heal and forgive, then you can begin preparing for the one you are meant to spend the rest of your life with. This is the foundation on which long lasting relationships are grounded in.

While you are waiting for this person to arrive, pray (I'm sorry if this infringes on anyone's personal beliefs; this is MY method) for God to make you ready and to open your eyes. Because sometimes your heart WILL lead you astray... but ultimately HE never will.

The Duality of Consciousness

Ready? Set? Go! Okay, I got the thug swagger going on, the fresh fitted, Gucci Uptowns, I'm rocking the Barry Bonds Throwback, and I've been waking up early every morning to work out to my new exercise program, LL Cool J's "Luv U Better" music video. Watch out world, here I come. "What's really Good?!" "Knaaameaan!" "Word! Okay, lingo is a bet, now let's make it happen..." [Watch as our hero traipses across the yard, bumps into someone on accident, and addresses the situation] "My bad, son...its all good...holla" [Now watch again as he brushes into an attractive female, again on accident]

"Oh, excuse me sweetheart. I didn't mean to bump into you, but I don't regret it. I'm feeling you like contact and I long for your companionship, so maybe this "contact-high" will allow me to get it.

What just happened here? Well, our hero has entered what so many of us Howard Men (it varies) enter on a daily basis. Welcome to "THE CHI-LITE ZONE!"

"Have You Seen Her?" or him, rather, around Howard's campus? We are not hard to find (I also fit the persona). It happens on campus or in local nightclubs. You spot a guy walking around with an ice-grill that looks ready to kill when walking through throngs of guys, just to see his face break down into a seductive smile when encountering a lady. Being pulled into two different directions is common and sometimes necessary. You have to look "hard" enough to avoid others thinking you're a punk, and "sensitive" enough so others won't think that you're too hard. It's a phenomenon that is widely practiced but never observed until now.

The bottom line is stay true to you. No one can teach you how to be yourself. So when you find yourself coming to the cross-road of your character, pick the one that best fits the situation and the one that your mother won't embarrass you too much on. "Baby, you know your voice isn't that deep...do you need a lozenge or something?"

The True Essence of Greek life

As always, the Greek life at Howard University is a controversial subject. It seems that if you're not "down", you're either trying to be "down" or you're gossiping about those that already are. Don't get all offended; obviously I just wanted to get your attention.

Contrary to popular belief, the Black Greek fraternities and sororities are not social clubs. Discussing the number of women that we want is not on the agenda at fraternity chapter meetings. It's more like a discussion of how we are going to raise funds to give a young man a computer. Sororities here do not spend their meetings complimenting each other on how cute their outfits are. It's more like complimenting each other on a job well done at the homeless shelter.

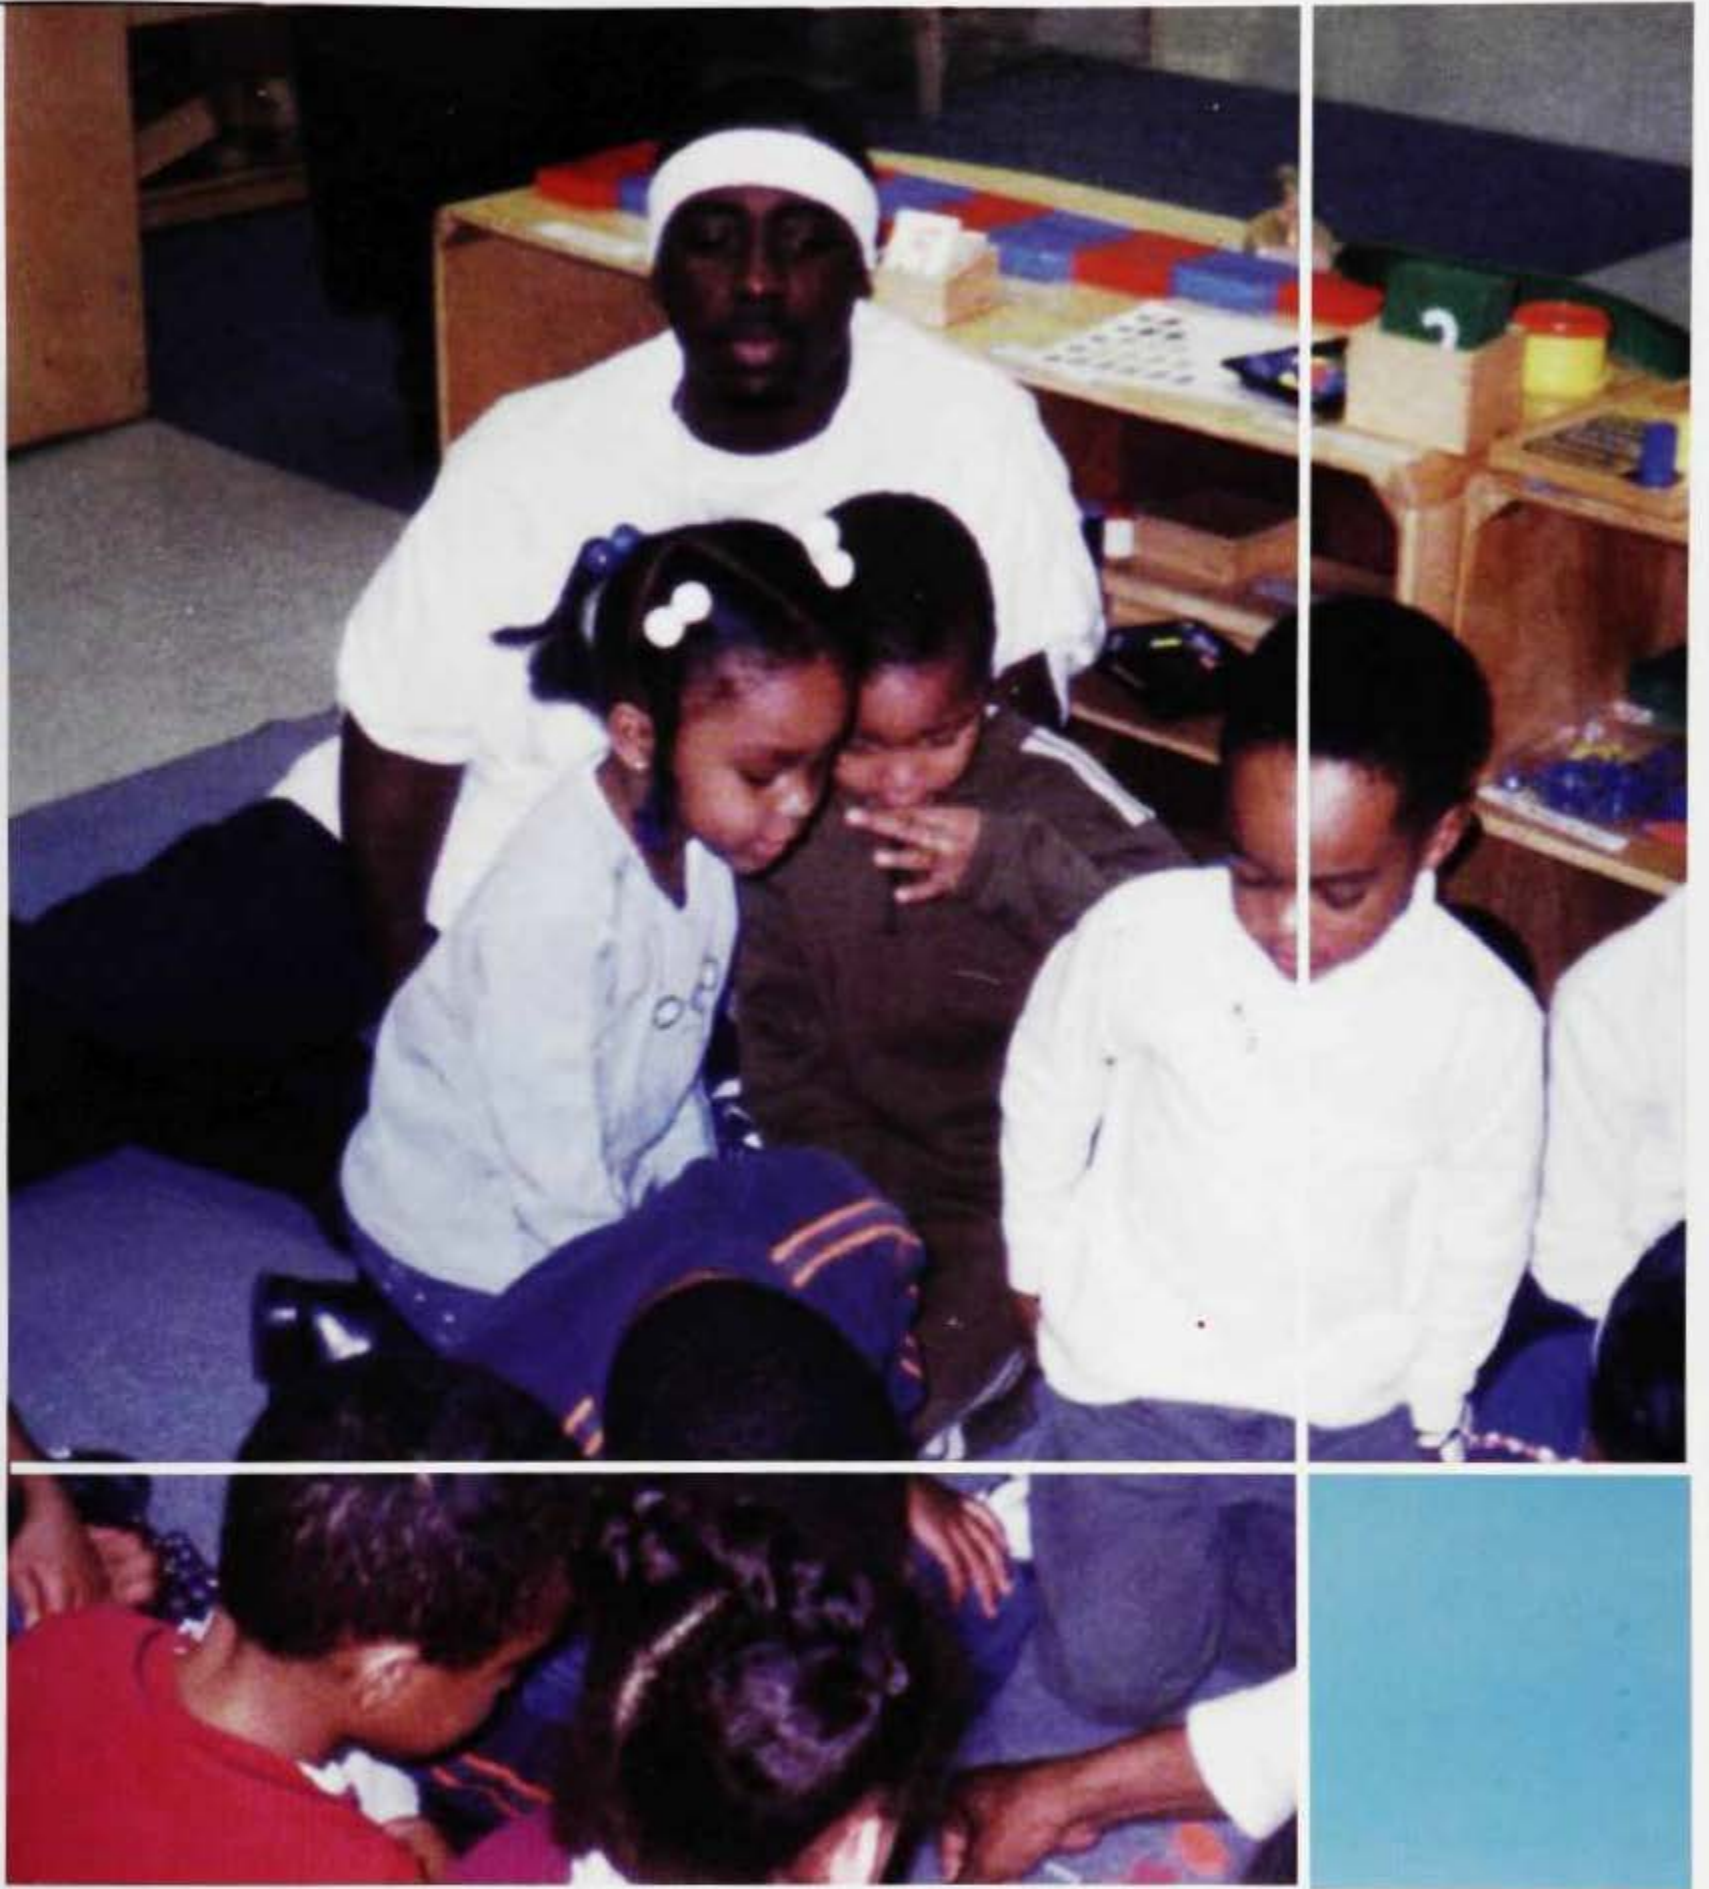

Speaking from experience, how many other organizations will have a community service project at 8:00 in the morning, step practice at noon, an executive board meeting that afternoon, and a committee meeting that night. How rare is it that ten to twenty black men are individually doing well, collectively supporting of one another, and at the same time, making progressive strides toward helping the community? And how rare is it that a group of females actually strive to uplift women worldwide, stay active on campus, and help pave the way for the next generation of strong black women?

The point that I'm making is that Greek life on this campus is hard work! I'm not complaining, just informing. For all of those who think that we're only good for throwing parties and wearing nice colors, please try researching the history. And for all of those who just want to be a part of something, remember that the real work begins once you are in the organization, so stop worrying about a "process" because Greek life isn't for everyone.

When Friends turn into Haters

Remembering my first trips home from Howard, my high school friends and I would joke about how 'thick' we were from the freshman fifteen.

Somewhere along the way we realized that our carefree high school lives had become complex and reality set in. We all had to deal with the shock of the change in our own ways. But, I was growing and determined to distinguish myself among the masses.

For some of my friends, the freshmen fifteen gradually grew into a new addition to their family. Other friends could not handle the freedom and pressures of college. Slowly, my high school friends left college to pursue other courses in life. I realized college wasn't for everyone.

As someone who barely got validated each year, I was truly sympathetic to my friends who did not make it. Their priorities and roles had changed. They were now parents, people with jobs, and "grown ups." But, somehow these new found roles changed their perceptions of me. All of a sudden I was bourgeois because I dressed more conservatively or because I "talked white". But the "problem" was that I was a college student and they no longer were.

My actions towards my friends were supportive, regardless of the path they decided to take. However, despite the security I felt in the friendship, their insecurities and covetous actions were making friendship nearly impossible. I struggled to remain friends, but what good is a friendship when there's no reciprocity? Some friendships are worth fighting for, but there are also those that aren't. I had to stop thinking emotionally and start thinking logically. Why keep a person in your life that is waiting for you to fail or trying to hinder your progress? One would expect their friends who decided that college was too big of a challenge for them to be your main supporters. But what are you to do when friends turn into haters?

Whose fault is it?

Once a single size and now a double size, how did this happen? I worked out everyday in high school, drank 64-ounces of water, and even watched my carbs and sweets intake. Once at Howard, I was slowly pulled in by the buffet style dining halls and unlimited portions of any food that I desired. Then I got lazy and tired of the cafeteria food and indulged myself in fast food and delivery restaurants.

The moment of truth came when I couldn't fit my jeans and tops anymore, and then I couldn't fit my PROM dress! Something had to be done. How about blaming Howard for having minimal workout equipment and facilities and forcing food down my throat with those expensive meal plans. Not to mention the crazy work-out hours of operation, which don't fit a full-time students schedule.

SO IS HOWARD TO BLAME FOR THE FRESHMAN FIFTEEN OF ITS STUDENTS?

It depends on whom you ask. Better yet, ask yourself. When was the last time you participated in any type of physical activity, besides walking to class? How much do you frequent McDonalds, Chipotle and Pizza Hut? How many health and fitness periodicals do you keep up with? How pro-active are you when it comes to maintaining your health?

I asked myself these questions and I realized my thighs are bigger, my butt is bigger, and I am the only one who is left to deal with that. Don't get me wrong, I don't mind being "thick", however, the truth is that I am a member of the Black community and we are more susceptible to "suga", high blood pressure, and heart disease.

We need to spend more time investing in our health and not our wardrobe. There are many ills that plague our race and with education and preventive planning, we can tackle these issues and get rid of that freshman fifteen.

I'm a Hip Hop Republican...

I am a BLACK REPUBLICAN. You may wonder how this happened. Once upon a time, I was a moderate Democrat. Things changed, the clock turned, and I saw the light. The GOP light! Lazy people taking advantage of the government, an unreasonable amount of government regulations and high taxes taken from my minuscule part-time job paycheck frustrated me. I needed a change.

I am known as a "Hip-Hop" Republican. Part of the new generation of young, blacks who are concerned about economic independence and full access to a quality education, rather than being totally dependant on the government and wanting everything handed to me on a silver spoon. I never follow the crowd and because politics is such a sticky issue, it is something I had to personally pursue and educate myself on. I became a member of the College Republicans at Howard this year and have never felt more comfortable.

For too long, Black Americans have been taken for granted by the Democrat party. They feel as though they OWN our vote because they are the only party Black enough to connect with us. With 85 percent of African-Americans voting Democrat, who wouldn't think our vote is automatic?

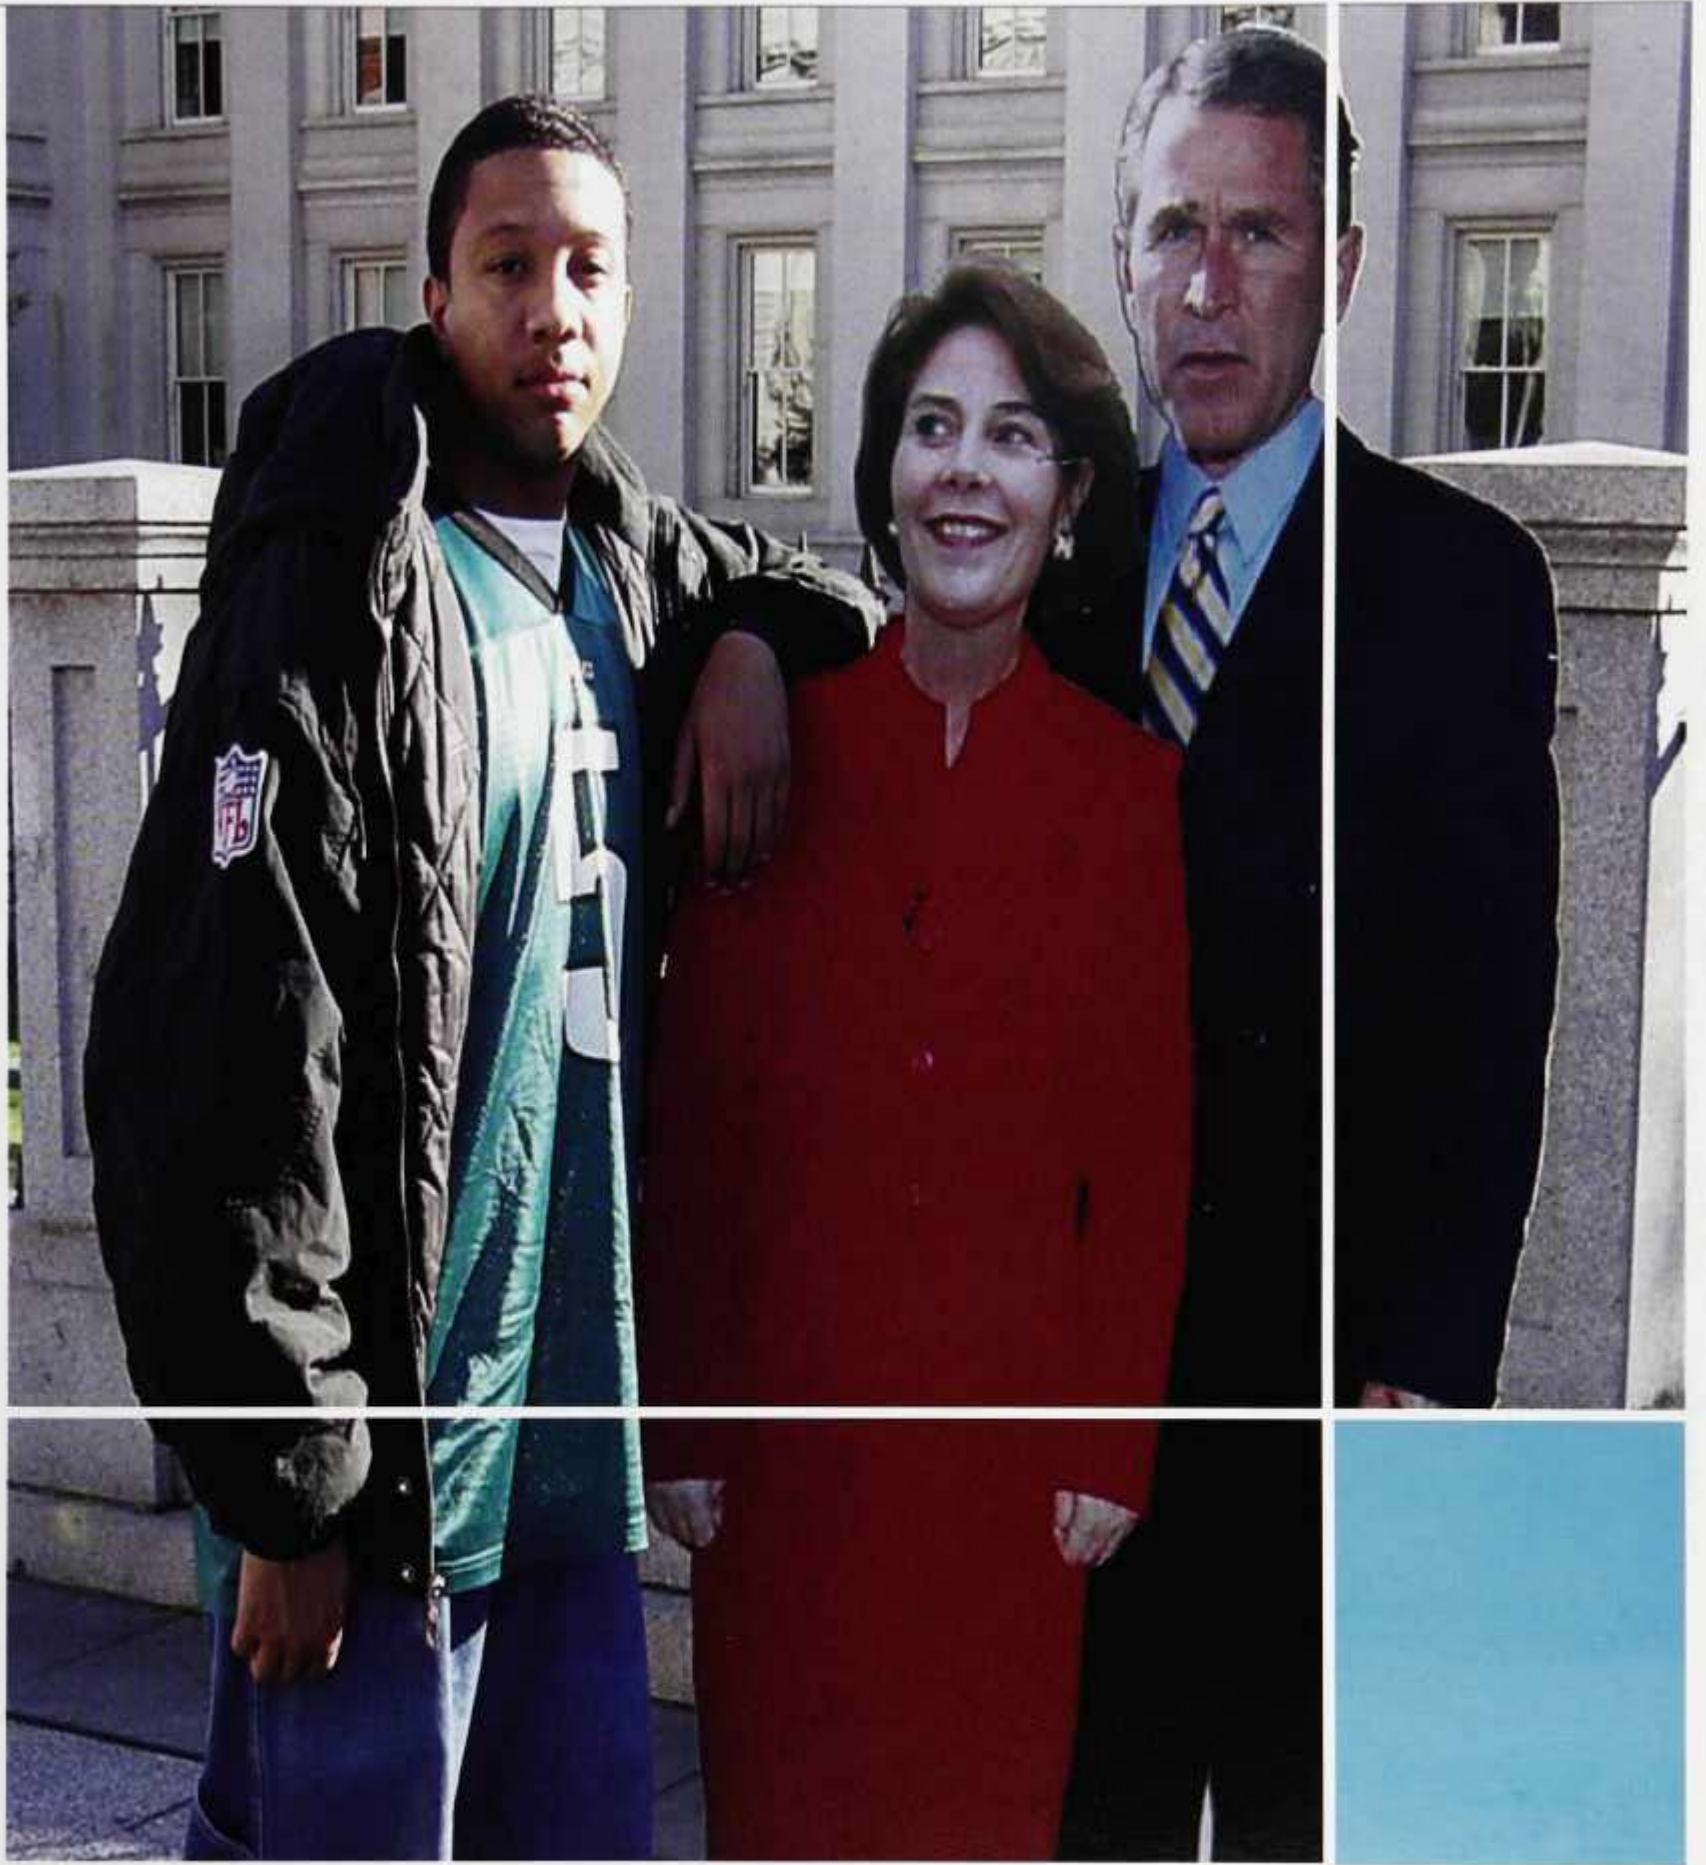

Did you know that there are similarities between the teachings of Conservatives and Conservative MILITANTS such as Malcolm X? Conservatives believe each person is to blame for their own failings, while Conservative MILITANTS refuse to continue to blame White people or institutional racism for the personal failures and problems of Black people.

Many Blacks have paved the way for me like Frederick Douglass, Jackie Robinson, Colin Powell, Richard Roundtree, J.C. Wyatts, Clarence Thomas, Dr. Condelezza Rice, Rod Paige and my newly elected Lt. Governor of Maryland, Michael Steele. Blacks are taking the GOP party by storm, so watch whom you vote for and vote for who knows you!

Stop! Think About It...

The Howard University Student Association has taken the lead of politics on Capital Hill by being involved in scandal after scandal. Power Hall has become a mockery and students have lost faith in their student leaders. Student leaders now are nothing more than puppets that work for paychecks to buy new Coach bags and Kenneth Cole shoes.

"Shady" elections in the spring of 2002 only foreshadowed what the fall would entail. As the school year began, HUSA failed to get their budget approved, which resulted in campus organizations not receiving necessary funding. The budget could not be approved because General Assembly could not reach quorum, revealing that student leaders do not take their positions seriously.

So what is a student to do when they see that politics on Howard University's campus is not working for them? Get involved! But is getting involved that easy? The answer is, "no". During special elections, the Policy Board, whose job is to interpret the constitution, closed the election while the H-Book clearly states in Article 1, section 5, clause A, item 2, "Special elections shall be held no later than the fourth Wednesday of September to fill vacancies left from the general election held in the spring."

How is it they closed elections so only the two candidates in question could run? But hey, if it follows Roberts Rules of Order, everything is A-OK!

With all the scandals and controversies what is a student left to think? Is getting involved worth fighting the Howard System and pulling your hair out just to have your grievances ignored? The answer is YES! Howard University is known for student activism and being a student leader does not mean you have to walk down Power Hall. Being a leader can mean working as a tutor, feeding the homeless, and volunteering in activities outside the Howard University campus. Think about it.

As the sun rose over the Hilltop, clear skies and a cool breeze set the mood for a day of celebration. It was a day when Howard opened its gates and set free a new class of graduates into the world. Saturday, May 11, 2002, would mark the 135th Commencement for Howard University.

As the bells struck 10 a.m. and the graduates poured in, the feelings of joy and pride could be felt by everyone present. Following tradition, fist rose for the singing of the Black National Anthem before a heart-warming invocation was delivered.

The keynote speaker, Shirley Clark Franklin, Mayor of Atlanta, GA, and Howard alumni, reminisced on the leaders that have come out of Howard, "Your mission, just like ours was in 1968, is to find a way out of no way." Franklin went on to explain that the struggle for justice is not over; we must each fight for our freedom and peace. She challenged the graduates to go out and find their direction and be the best at it.

During the ceremony, Mayor Franklin, who is Atlanta's first female mayor, received a Juris Doctorate, honoris causa. Other honorary degree recipients included: Dr. Mark Dean, Doctor of Science; Houston Mayor Lee Brown, Doctor of Laws; and The Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater Artistic Director, Judith A. Jamison, Doctor of Humanities. Tennis champion Venus Williams also received a Citation of Special Achievement, and noted this day as one of the best days of her life.

Fall Play: Old Settler

As the audience gathered in Ira Aldridge Theatre they were transported from the threshold of Washington, DC 2002, into the living room of two bickering sisters in Harlem, New York, 1943. John Henry Redwood's "The Old Settler" captures the audience and tosses them into the everyday lives of Elizabeth "Bess" Borny (Daphne Sharp) and sister Quilly McGrath (Nakiea Washington Dade and Patrese McClain) as they attempt to maintain their sisterly bonds.

The sisters, who appear to have a hard enough time living with one another, have taken on a "roomer," Husband Witherspoon (Steven Butler), who finds himself in a different world far from his home of Frogmore, South Carolina. With dynamic acting and realistic scenery, "The Old Settler" reveals the plight of the African American in various aspects. It transcends the historical framework of the World War II era by personalizing the experiences of its characters and providing a glimpse of what everyday life was like for the migrated "Negro".

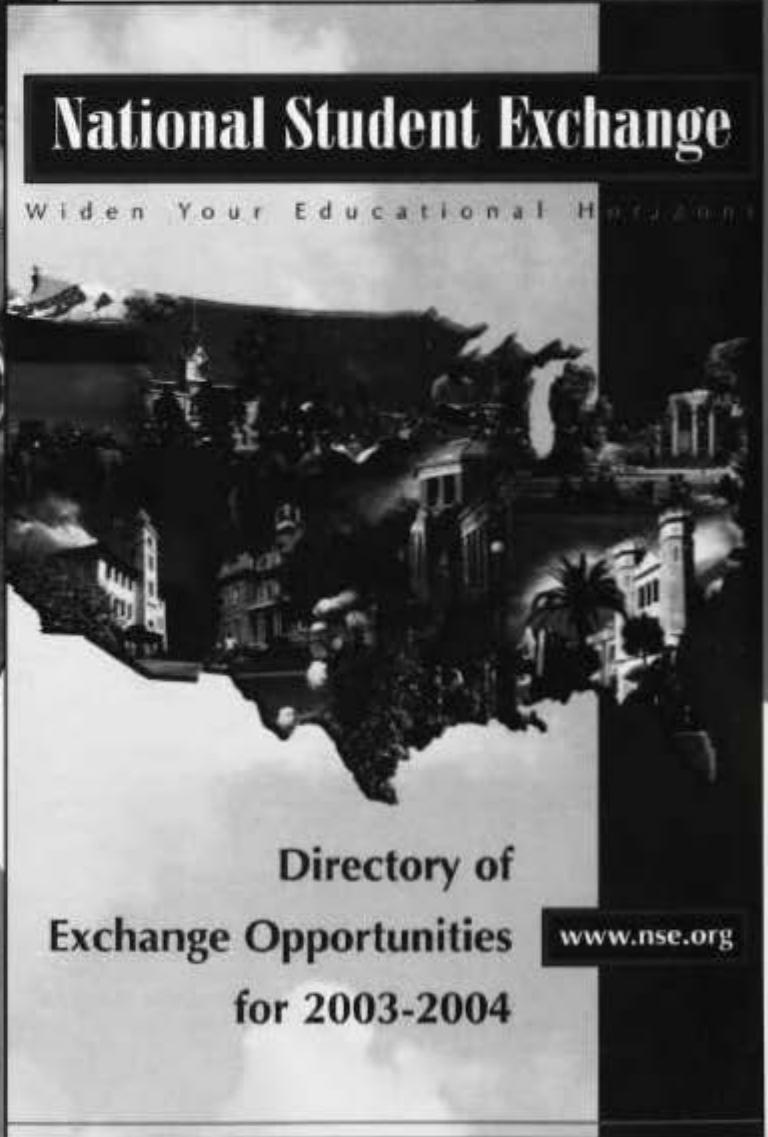

The play lends itself to the structure of the African American tradition by exploring black love, friendship and family. It vividly describes issues that transcend all timelines, expressing conflict between loved ones, the quest for happiness and the ability to be content with the little things in life. On a more concentrated level, "The Old Settler" speaks to the constant re-invention of the African American as the quest to solidify a sense of identity continues.

With its allusions to religion, racism and survival, "The Old Settler" is a necessary contribution to the quilt of African American history. It tells more than just a story of Bessy and Quilly, it tells the tale of every black mother, sister, and daughter. It exists in every living room in the black community, not just the one represented on stage. "The Old Settler" is synonymous with the reality of the black family, a positive reality that was performed eloquently.

The "Old Settlers" have a heart to heart.

Domestic Exchange Program

How about attending another university and fulfilling Howard's academic requirements? To ensure the Howard student is well-rounded and diverse, programs such as the Domestic Exchange Program give students a unique opportunity to expand their horizons while learning at other universities in U.S. cities.

The Domestic Exchange Program provides Howard University students the experience to attend leading universities around the country, such as Rutgers, Columbia, Stanford, and the University of Southern California. Participants are still considered Howard students and in most cases pay the same tuition. With many benefits, including being exposed to different college campuses and developing inter-personal skills, students conveniently investigate prospective graduate school programs. It also helps students gain an edge in a competitive job market.

Wanda Jones, Consortium Coordinator of Domestic Exchanges at Howard University, encourages students to participate in the program if they are assertive and love to travel. "The Howard University Domestic Exchange Program is a valuable tool that provides students with a wonderful opportunity to travel and experience different environments and cultures. It not only promotes personal growth and independence, but also can be used to investigate future career and academic opportunities throughout the United States," said Jones.

171 colleges and universities participate in the Domestic Exchange Program and it operates on a semester or yearly basis. Students must possess a 2.5 GPA, be in sophomore or junior standing, and have lived in a Howard residence hall. Don't miss out on the chance of a lifetime to explore all that Howard University has to offer.

Internships for Experience

Written By Horecee St. Cyr    Photos By Heather Hairson & Erin Smith

The ultimate goal of a college graduate is to advance directly into a well-paying job. But with the number of college graduates steadily rising and the percentage of available jobs steadily decreasing, an average of a mere 10 out of 40 graduating college students will have a job lined up post-graduation.

While stellar grades and academic performance matters, the majority of business owners and employers admitted that students with experience and training from internships weigh heavier in deciding which applicant will actually get the job. Suzanne Madison, owner of Allegra Marketing and Consulting Company, revealed “the majority of my employees are hired not based on academic performance, but by previous experience in the field”.

With a mass variety of internships available worldwide, students can intern in virtually any career field, whether it relates to their major or of an entirely different interest. Ethan Zagore, a senior, Marketing major from Chicago, had the opportunity to intern with several successful companies such as, the Chicago Bulls, Chicago White Sox, and the Washington Wizards. “I believe my internships will definitely help down the line. Employers have more confidence in hiring me because I have previous experience working in a corporate sports environment.”

Nearly 65% of internships created for college students went unnoticed. Nellie Bradley, a sophomore, Public Relations major, worked in the Internship department of the School of Communications. “Our office recieved so many internship notices each day, but the majority of students only applied for the big name jobs.”

The School of Communications Job Fair, along with several other Career Fairs held on campus, provied open forums that allowed students to network and discuss opportunities with a vast array of company representatives. These front men and women were looking for interns to train, but more specifically, eventually hire, making internships open portals to great career opportunities.

Japan America Student Conference

Written By Hannah Peterson-McCoy    Photos By Hannah Peterson-McCoy

Howard University illustrated its dedication to the global community and development of future leaders this summer, as it hosted the JASC for the second time since 1992. The annual conference has been held alternately in Japan and the United States since 1934. Since Howard's first participant was accepted to the Conference in 1989, the number of delegates has increased annually to rank Howard one of the top participating Universities.

The weeklong 54th JASC brought 35 American college students representing 28 Universities and 35 of their Japanese contemporaries on Howard's campus. The theme of the 54th JASC, Redefining the Roles of Japan and the United States in Contemporary Social Issues, focused on Human Rights and Global Security Issues. The Washington area was chosen, in order to, provoke thought and discussion pertaining to the roles of Japan and the United States in the wake and horizon of Global Security challenges.

Conference activities were planned and organized by the 54th JASC Executive Committee, including Howard's own, Hannah Peterson-McCoy, a School of Business senior, who served as the Vice-chair to the 54th JASC delegation. Site fieldtrips, guest speakers and panel discussions incorporated the theme of the Conference.

A special reception at the Old Residence in the Japanese Embassy hosted by the Honorable Ambassador Ryoza Kato provided an overview of future Japan-U.S. relations. It also allowed students the opportunity to discuss the future of the U.S.-Japan relationship.

The hosting of the Conference at Howard University not only provided 70 American and Japanese college students an introduction to Historically Black Colleges and Universities, but also demonstrated Howard's continued commitment to diversity and global leadership.

Convocation 2002

Written By Monica Almond      Photos By Chris Wall

On the commencement of Howard University's 135th academic year, the gloomy weather did not prevent the Howard community from continuing a tradition. The Convocation, amongst other things, helps students mentally prepare for the academic year and find a place not only on campus, but to find their ultimate purpose in life.

This year's message was orated by The Honorable John Lewis, who found his purpose in life many years ago during the struggles of the Civil Rights Movement. Recognized as one of the "Big Six" leaders of the movement, Lewis "has dedicated his life to protecting human rights, securing personal dignity, and building the African American community. President H. Patrick Swygert affirmed him as "an exemplar of the University's core values of truth, leadership, and service," as he presented him with the degree of Dr. of Humane Letters, Honoris Causa.

After acknowledging the "real HU," Lewis focused on the problems that affect our nation and the world. He charged the audience to become more involved with the community and the nominal ills that continue to plague our people. "You must find a way to get in the way and do more than spend a little bit of time at Dream and the V.I.P.," he admonished. "You must dream a dream and do whatever you can to make our society a better place."

Lewis garnered positive reactions from the audience as he criticized President George W. Bush's relentless attempt to gain America's support for a violent attack on Iraq. "We do not win battles with guns, tanks, and missiles, but with values, ideals, and principles." Lewis noted that the administration has shifted its focus and forgotten about its own people. Despite the Presidents' actions, Lewis charged the audience to caress non-violence and to use power, education and influence to become leaders among the nation.

The ceremony concluded with the audience arm-in-arm poetically reciting the University's alma mater, brought to life as it was eighty-six years ago by the class of 1916.

Are you walking around on Howard University's campus wondering, "Why am I here?" "What's after graduation?" If you are fortunate enough not to be in this situation, you probably know someone who is. The Career Services Office, which is located in the CB Powell Building, is the facility with answers. Your excuse for lack of success is now over.

Under the direction of Mr. Kim Wells, Career Services has made extreme efforts this year to make students aware of their office. The CSO offered a helping hand to those who needed assistance in choosing a career or finding an internship. With access to a plethora of companies, both local and national, the CSO was equipped to meet every student's needs. "We are not just for the School of Business," notes Wells, "we provide services to all students on the campus and everyone is aware of that."

With a Career Fair held in October and several seminars throughout the academic year, Career Services wanted to help students utilize all of the connections and resources offered right here at Howard. Phallon Kempson, a freshman transfer student, who took advantage of CSO notes, "I found out about Career Services from one of my professors and they are helping me out tremendously".

Providing information on over 400 companies, strategies on job searching, networking, resume writing and interviewing, the Career Services Office imparted that extra push that many students needed to stay motivated and focused on their career goals. "We are moving into a new era," commented Wells, who was excited about the many students the office helps on a yearly basis said we are an office dedicated to encouraging students to challenge themselves and make the effort to invest in their futures.

The next time you find yourself wandering, make an appointment or stop by the Career Services Office. Your future is waiting.

Bison Student Leadership Program

Written By Horecee St. Cyr   Photos By Kelley Givens

The esteemed Mecca on the Hilltop has produced several leading figures from P. Diddy to Debbie Allen, to our very own President H. Patrick Swygert. With Howard University students at the forefront of leaders in our global community, one must ask the question that scholars around the world ponder over: How does Howard University produce such successful leaders in every field? Amongst other things, BSLP is molding our leaders.

Begun in the summer of 2001, the Bison Student Leadership Program sprung from a desire to facilitate leadership development in first and second year students. With the research of over 20 university and institute leadership programs under his belt, Director and creator, Rasheem Rooke sat down to outline a program where students' holistic development could be nourished.

With an average of 70 to 80 applicants each September, BSLP takes on the task of monitoring leadership skills of 65 freshman and sophomore students through three components: interactive workshop participation, practical experience through team building activities, and community service. Rooke emphasized the importance of community service, "Any student who claims to be a leader has to recognize his or her responsibility to the community."

Kimberly Stubbs, a sophomore Sociology major, and now Community Service Director of the Howard University Student Association, participated in the program last year. "It has definitely given me a step up on dealing with many situations and it taught me to remain humble."

As a trainer and facilitator of the workshops, Janelle Stiell, a junior Broadcast News and History major, expressed her admiration for the program. "BSLP is a tremendous opportunity for anyone, whether they seek leadership positions in the future or not. It is a win-win situation." And win these students do! The Bison Student Leadership Program will continue to prepare Howard leaders as figures of guidance and intellect.

Ralph J. Bunche International Affairs Center

Written By Derrick Nayo      Photos By Harvey Jenkins

One of Howard's "hidden treasures", the Ralph J. Bunche International Affairs Center, was erected in 1993 to become the primary enterprise of international affairs activities at Howard. Former Botswana ambassador, Horace G. Dawson, directs the center and his staff of six worked feverishly to design new programs and construct panel discussions frequented by pundits in the international field.

Some of the exciting programs offered include, the Patricia Roberts Harris Public Affairs Program, which seeks to prod students into public affairs and The Charles B. Rangel International Affairs Program, which facilitates learning in international affairs with course work and internship opportunities. The domestic and international exchange programs allows students to study for a semester at another university. Nicholas Williams, a diplomat-in-residence representative from the Department of State, is a visible asset in the center. "My goal is to make students aware of other career possibilities with the Department of State and other government agencies," said Williams. "The perception is that government careers are not as interesting as other careers in the private industry. I hope to dispel this myth."

Named after former United Nations diplomat, Ralph Bunche, the center seeks to adorn a force of young, black diplomats, and future Foreign Service officers. Bunche received the Nobel Peace Prize for his success in brokering a peace accord during the Arab-Israeli War and he also created Howard's Political Science department. "It's like a second home in there," said Christina Pardo, referring to the Bunche Center. "I am always conversing with the Ambassador (Dawson), receiving advice." Pardo credits the center with opening her eyes to public health through the Patricia Roberts Harris Public Affairs Program.

"Our vision of the Ralph Bunche Center is grounded in the belief that African-Americans and others of color should have unlimited opportunities to participate meaningfully in all aspects of international affairs," said Deputy Director Harold Scott.

Senior quarterback Donald Clark pulling back for another Bison touchdown.

New leadership was the subject of Howard University football in 2002. After finishing last season with a disappointing 2-9 record, the team underwent some drastic changes during the off-season. The most notable was the announcing of former Norfolk State Assistant Head Coach and Defensive Coordinator, Rayford Petty, as Head Coach on January 25th, ending former coach Steve Wilson's 12-year career with the program.

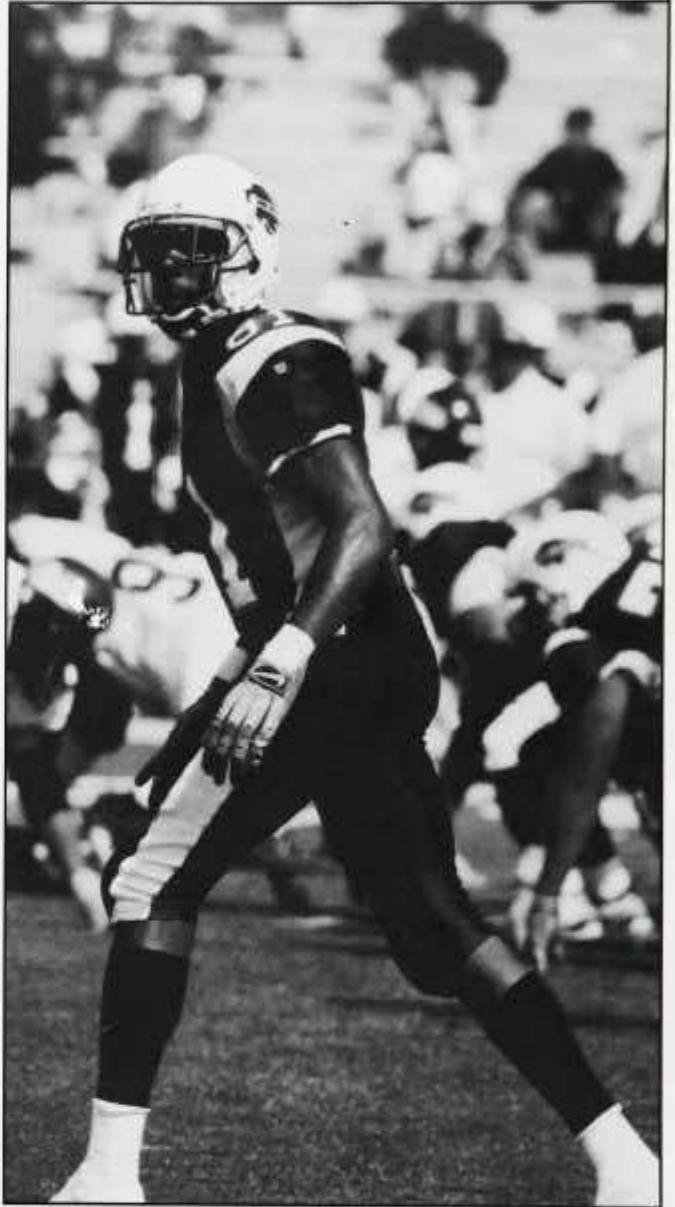

"It was a job I wanted," said Coach Petty about his taking of the head coaching position. "I thought it was a great opportunity to take advantage of and I was looking forward to it."

Many were optimistic about the season, especially after the Bison won their season opener against Texas Southern. But, the hope soon turned to embarrassment the next week in the "Battle of the HUs", against Hampton. Things began to turn around, as the team picked up one of their most notable victories in Howard's football history, knocking off Florida A&M in Tallahassee, where they've NEVER won.

"That was a great win for the university," said coach Petty. "To win there for the first time was exciting, everybody played hard, and we got the victory."

The Bison gave fans something to cheer about this season, with an offense powered behind senior quarterback, Donald Clark. Running back, Tauric Rice, wideout, Kevin Simmonds, and All-American linebacker, Tracy White, also made for another action packed season of Howard University football at the Mecca.

Women and sports is a fiery combination, which many critics scorn and mock. But the women's teams at Howard are not trying to hear all that. Specifically, the Women's Soccer team continues to set the pace for stellar athletic performance on and off the field.

Beginning with the newly revamped soccer field, changes are being made not only to improve the game, but also to keep the women athletes physically healthy. The old field was replaced two years ago with a synthetic field turf. The grass-like plain has a consistent surface and is much more conducive to the aggressive nature of soccer, producing far fewer injuries than in past years. While the team is adjusting well to a new playing surface, Coach Michelle Street elaborated on the accessibility of the new weight room located in Cook Hall. "The new weight room is for athletes only, which is really helpful because the players can use it whenever they like."

Aside from the abundance of new equipment, there was an important addition to the staff. Along with Assistant Coach, Cecily Powell, Keith Comaforo, the new strengthening and conditioning coach added new methods and strategies to improve the teams' endurance and overall performance. The hard work of these coaches was evident in many star players, such as the impressive record of sophomore Raneika Bean. Bean was recognized in the NCAA's Division I top scorers list. Nationwide, she ranked in the top five scorers list for the past two seasons.

With several leading playmakers, this women's soccer team is sure to advance as a leading collegiate soccer figure.

In the face of censure, several injuries, and the absence of starters, the Men's Soccer team persevered to become one of the most respected soccer teams on the collegiate circuit. Facing adversity since the controversial disqualification of the team in '71, the Men's soccer team is accustomed to winning even in the face of criticism, as was displayed during their triumphant season of '74, making them the National NCAA soccer champions of that year.

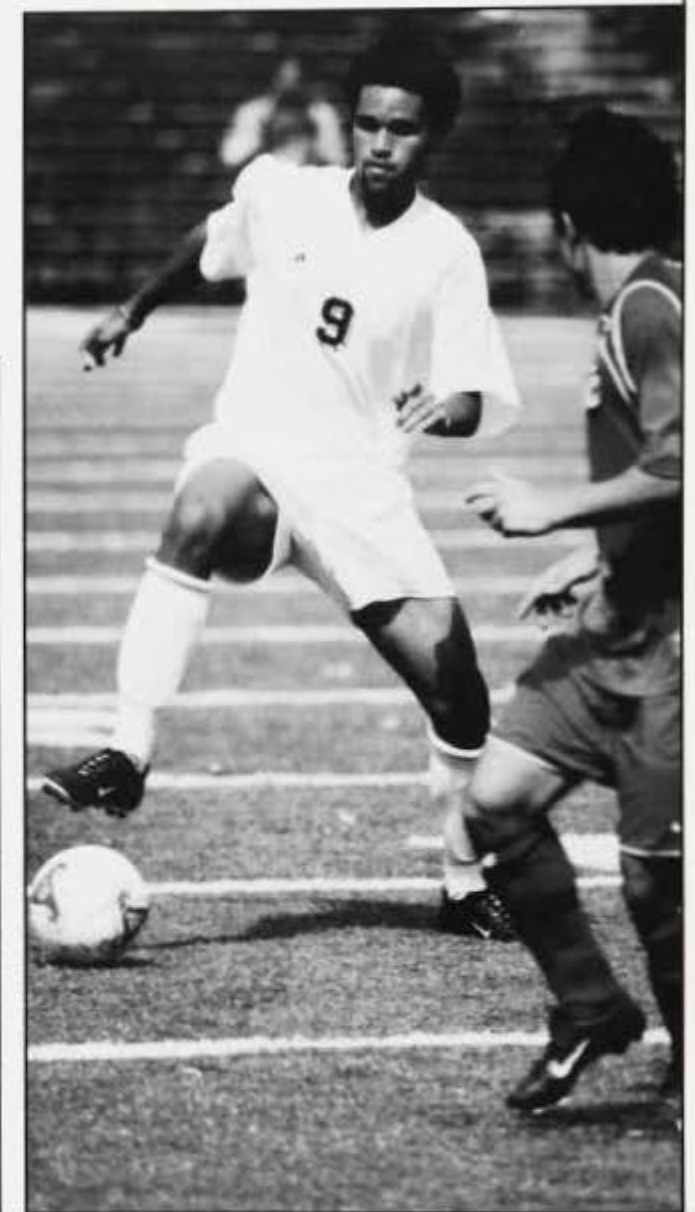

Similar to those turbulent times, the team was thrown for a loop as various problems arose throughout this season. Under the guidance of Coach Keith Tucker and Assistant Coach Curtis Landy, Howard used this season to surprisingly upset many opponents with the strength of numerous key players. Freshman goalkeeper, Jason Williams, aiding in several important wins against teams such as, the Drexel University Dragons, had a very impressive season, and was awarded the 2002 Most Valuable Player Award.

Assistant Coach Landy acknowledges his "anticipation for the upcoming season of 2003 when all starters and injured players are expected to return in full working condition." Although the team has not taken another title since their '74 victory, they continued to blossom into a hardworking, and consistently positive group of young athletes.

Mario Groves gets down and dirty in the triple threat position.

Howard University's Men's Basketball program has dramatically turned their output over the last two seasons. Lead by two main senior players this year, Kyle Williams and Ron Williamson, the Bison set their eyes on the prize.

Ron Williamson has been considered to be one of the deadliest marksmen to navigate through Burr Gymnasium in quite some time. Evidence of his assassinating jump shot was apparent when he scored a career high against North Carolina A&T, shooting 52 points, including a record setting 11 three point field goals.

Carrying the load right along with Ron, was Kyle Williams, who proved he is a force not to be reckoned with in the MEAC by cashing in on 41 points against Coppin State University. These two seniors standing at 6-1 and 6-6 respectively, scored their 1,000th collegiate career points this past season.

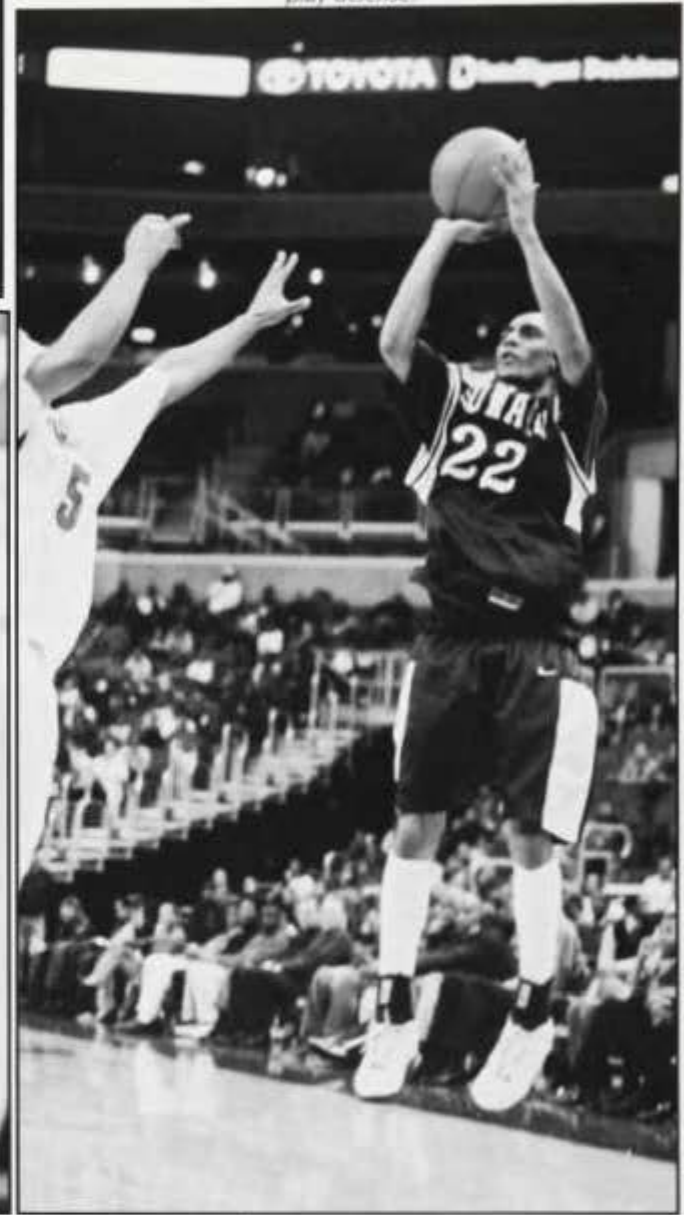

Coach Frankie Allen felt his senior leadership mixed with the formula of discipline, structure, organization, and selective recruiting resulted in a winning environment. In addition to a successful Head Coach, the Men's Basketball squad boasted a strong assistant coach threesome, Aki Collins, Daryl Butler, and Howard L. Pride. These guys set the tone for every practice.

The Howard University community definitely appreciates the student athletes on the Men's Basketball Team for their valiant efforts in representing our University in the 2002-2003 season.

Although the season got off to a rocky start for the Lady Bison, they were able to achieve notable accomplishments. Senior and court dominator Asia Petty was named the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference Player of the Week twice and scored a career high of 34 points. The ladies first win of the season against Norfolk State University brought a season best shooting of over 81% from the free throw line. Despite all the achievements, this was one of the toughest season starts in Head Coach Cathy Parson's coaching career while at Howard.

The team continued to shine in the midst of tough times, including Courtney Kirk, a senior forward, who became the 14th player in school history to reach the 1,000-point plateau, adding to the Lady Bison's list of achievements for the season. Coach Parson, now in her third year, hoped her team could control the MEAC once again and remain strong throughout the season. "We are as talented as anyone else in the league and with Asia Petty and Courtney Kirk stepping up and taking leadership roles, we grew tremendously."

In deed, the Lady Bison definitely stepped up to the ball and remained a cohesive unit to bring the pain to the competition. Senior guard, Ayanna Ball, showed her team spirit. "We had enough trust in our leadership to know that we had all the ingredients to come out on top at the MEAC." With many seasoned players and a few new tools to the team, including three freshmen starting, the women vivaciously showed what it takes to be a Lady Bison!

The Swimming and Diving Team is riding high on the ripples of optimism as they embark upon a season to remember. The men and women Bison swimmers have vigorously geared up for a season they intend to dominate with the help of their new freshman recruits. Accounting for two-thirds of the men's team and over half of the women's team, the freshman are a new breed of talent that were recruited to give air to the breathlessness of last year's season.

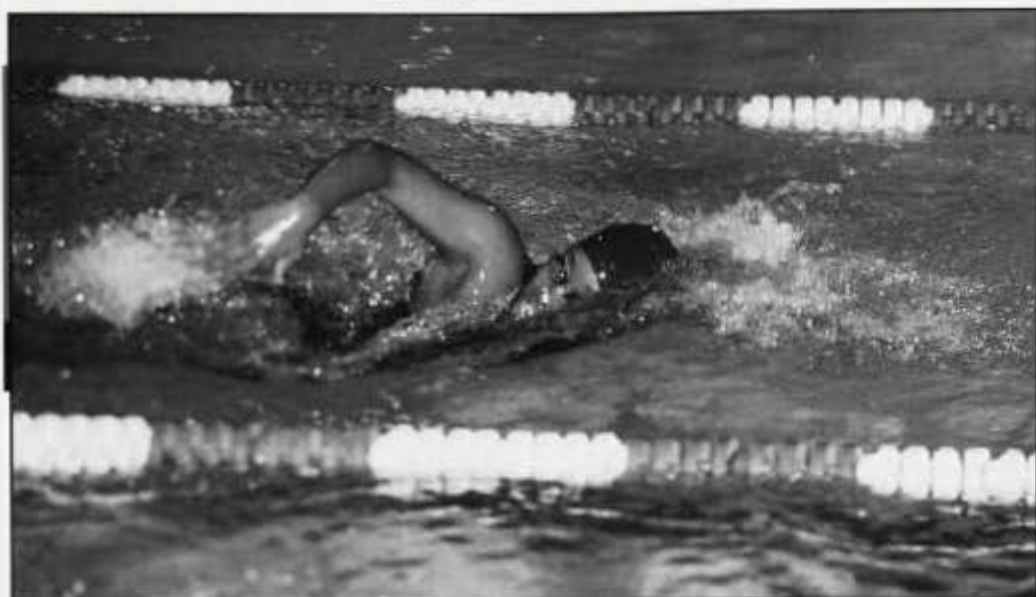

"We have one of the strongest teams that Howard has had in recent years as far as quality, academics, and athletics," said Head Coach Solomon Robinson. "We've recruited freshman from all over the country, as well as, Canada. We'll go wherever it takes to get the quality that we're looking for."

One of the major issues the team faced last year was the quantity of the athletes they had. "This year the coach has recruited a lot of freshman so the numbers have gone up since last year," said third-year swimmer, Olufolahan "Lubo" Oluwole. Last season, it was difficult to compete with other schools that had a bigger team because a certain amount of points were allocated to each swimmer in a particular competition, resulting in Howard often being left unplaced.

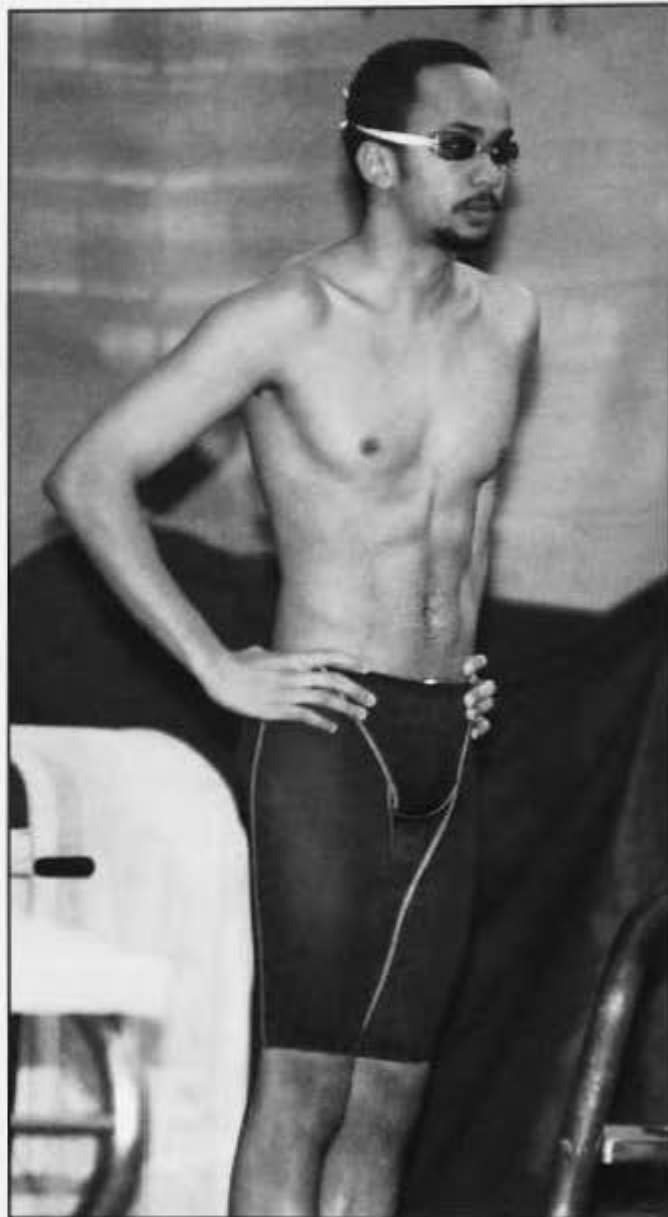

Despite the pitfalls of previous seasons, the new team is excited to begin their record-breaking careers. One of their goals is to place higher in the Northeastern Conference, where last season they placed fourth. With practices twice every day, the team is sure to have the success they desire. However, with success there's no time for rest and instead of counting sheep, these athletes will be counting strokes.

Lady Spikers set up a defensive wall against opponent.

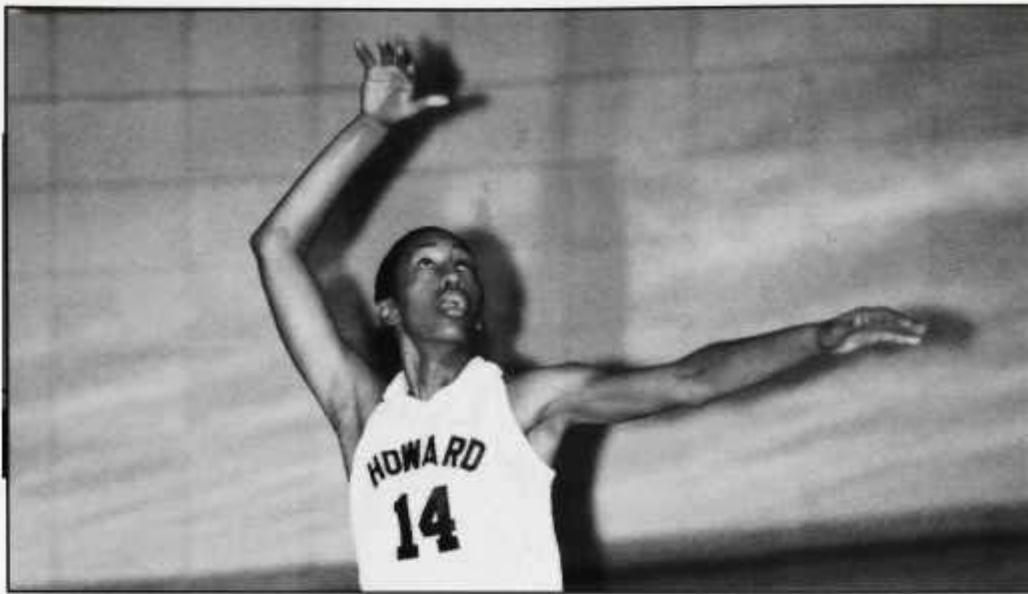

Situations don't change expectations. That is what the women's volleyball team proved this year. The Lady Spikers began 2002 with four returning starters and a promising outlook on the season. The injuries of key players, however, forced them to make some adjustments, while still performing as a united team.

Head Coach, Linda Spencer stayed positive through this season's distress and was proud of her team's ability to come out on top. "We still have a winning record in our conference," she said. At the beginning of the season, Spencer stated, "Players have to show their versatility." The Lady Spikers met that challenge, changing positions to fill the spots of injured players, Markezia Jennings and Brittany Williams. "We're modifying everything," says Coach Spencer, "and they're adapting very well."

The team's success can be also be attributed to versatile players, such as senior outside hitter, Dawn Thomas and sophomore Crystal Amedee, who played both outside hitter and setter positions. Junior Jerri Hayes added skill and brought a "no-fear" approach to the game. Freshman Mercedes Posey displayed a wealth of experience, and was named MEAC Rookie of the Week in September.

Others would have cracked under the pressure the Lady Spikers endured this season. Yet, Howard's volleyball team showed their resilience and determination. "Even though you have adversity to overcome, and we have had adversity to overcome, you still have to have a positive outlook," explained Coach Spencer. Don't count these ladies out, because there's more to come.

Under the direction of Head Coach, Curtis W. Butler, Jr., the 2002-2003 bowling team is eagerly anticipating an outstanding performance in their upcoming tournament at Delaware State University on November 7-9. While the team took an unexpected turn for the worst, losing the first three games of the regular season and ending with a win-loss record of 4-5 due to a lack of experienced players, they soon regained footing with the help of Ms. Devin Dufauchard, a sophomore from Los Angeles California, who is also a member of the Bison Swimming team.

The Eastern Pennsylvania/ Maryland Intercollegiate Bowling Conference gave the team a chance to redeem themselves with a win-loss record of 3-1 during the midpoint of the conference. As time progresses, the team members and Coach Butler expect to push ahead of the remaining five teams in the Northern Division of the MEAC Conference, to the number one ranked spot. With the exceptional performances of the bowlers at the Pennsylvania Classic tournament, there is a strong possibility they could easily do just that.

The five Bowlers that make up the team continue to carry on the legacy of phenomenal bowling at Howard University for this season, but are also expecting some dazzling talent for the upcoming season. "All of the current members of the team are expected back for our 2003-2004 season. Two outstanding prospects are being recruited and are expected to join the team", assures Coach Butler. With these new additions and the excellent guidance of Coach Butler the remaining 2002-2003 season as well as the upcoming 2003-2004 season looks very competitive.

Don't tell any member of the Bison cheerleading squad that she is not an athlete.

Whether it was practicing in the wee hours of the morning, conditioning, or training for stunts, the cheerleaders showed dedication and athletic ability. "There's so much athleticism," said Jordan Chatman. "We run, do crunches to work on our abs, and we practice our jumps to work on the proper technique."

Operating with little to no funding, the cheer squad performed at both, home games and as many away games as possible during the football and basketball seasons. But since the squad is not considered a sport, they didn't benefit from funds from the athletic department. Instead, the cheerleaders had to raise their own money for uniforms, travel and other items. "The little funds we do get are hard to come by," Chatman said. "It's frustrating. They want the cheerleaders to be there for the games, but we don't have the money."

Due to the popular belief that cheerleading is not a sport, some members of the squad feel that they don't get the same amount of respect afforded to other athletes on campus. "I feel that we aren't respected due to a lack of knowledge about the sport of cheerleading," said junior Charlett Samuels. "If people came to just one of our practices they would realize why we are so passionate about being recognized as athletes."

Without the benefits of athletic scholarships for books or tuition, the team put in all the hard work and time for one reason alone: the love of the sport. "We get up for practice at 6 a.m.," Chatman said. "Athletes are on scholarship. We don't even get books. The only thing that keeps us on the team is our sheer love for it."

Determination pushes this Lady Bison to continue for the win.

New talent paved the road to a successful and exciting year for Howard's lacrosse team. With the addition of seven players and a new head coach, the Lady Bison looked forward to a promising season. Last year, Melinda Vaughn served as an assistant coach to the team before being named the new head coach this year. This season the goal was to develop her ladies into a nationally recognized squad.

Four recruited freshmen, two of which were high school All-Americans, and three walk-ons brought a fresh batch of talent to Howard's team. Goal-keeper, Shatarah Ramirez contributed good intensity on the field, while freshman Brittany Merritt brought poise and talent. Vaughn says her squad became a thinking team. She witnessed the ladies become more skilled, and was impressed at how quickly the walk-ons were able to contribute to the team.

Women's lacrosse spent most of their time on the road this season, and performed well to be regarded as a formidable opponent. Did the Lady Bison's status as the first African-American lacrosse team bring added pressure? "It put an added expectation on the team," says Coach Vaughn. "And I think that they accepted it and walked in it very gracefully."

Overall, Vaughn believed her squad would make the best of this season. The team became more and more dedicated, and the new talent gave the Lady Bison an edge. "I think this season, Howard began to get the recognition it deserves."

Coach Vaughn hoped that 2003 would bring a winning year. The Lacrosse team played hard to achieve two things, gaining national recognition and setting a tradition of excellence. Well-done ladies!

The Howard University Men's Tennis team is one built upon the quest for growth. Under the guidance of Coach Larry Strickland, the Men's Team was under constant transition in order to develop the best mixture of individuals and skill. The major focus of the team was to execute dedication and hard work in order to attain natural improvement. "Right now the Men's Team is in transition," noted Coach Strickland, "we are constantly developing a strong team." The Bison exhibited extreme efforts in regards to the promotion of the success of the team as a whole.

Coming off an 8-8 overall season during the 2001-2002 school year, the Men's Team had been working diligently to make this year an improvement. With intense practices and team dedication, the Bison moved into the 2002-2003 school year with a new mission, to utilize the knowledge and experience of the past and build on a more promising future. The team worked tirelessly to foster team skill while maintaining team unity in order to mature this year. "There weren't any necessary changes in strategy," noted Strickland, "we were just trying to build upon what we had".

With a positive frame of mind and a strong confidence in their ability, the Bison worked hard to attain immeasurable success this year. The conscious efforts to work hard and play tough proved to be definite keys to maintaining the team's success. "We were looking forward to a great year," said Strickland enthusiastically. "I enjoy my job and the team's dedication is a great part of that". Both Coach Strickland and the Bison Tennis Team were excited about the progress made and look forward to future success on the court.

With fifteen games this past season, the Women's Tennis Team had a long road ahead of them. With individual and team matches, the Lady Bison made grand moves on the road to excellence. The year was extremely promising for the Women's Team, who did not make many changes to their lineup. "We have some of the most talented players in the country here at Howard", boasted proud Coach Larry Strickland. With extreme dedication and daily practice, the women's team was in great shape for their competitors in both the fall and spring seasons.

The fact that the team had not encountered many changes allowed for consistency amongst the players. "The ladies have a good relationship with one another," noted Strickland. The unity amongst the team was shown both on and off the court, even at the daily practices it was obvious that the team was working hard to make Lady Bison a success. They exuded a definite chemistry that allowed for each of their athletic talents to contribute equally to the overall success of the team.

The competition was fierce, but the Women's Tennis Team was ready for anyone who wanted to "swing their way". As members of the NCAA Division 1 with a record that includes the title of "All Americans for 2001", the Lady Bison are accustomed to being on top. With emphasis on teamwork, high intensity and dedication, the ladies definitely "served it up" to the competition.

The Men's Track team is planning to take the MEAC Conference Championship by storm this year. With a blossoming team, full of dedication and optimism, the outlook is exceptionally good for a successful season.

Head Coach Merritt strongly feels his team is ready to set new records. "We take a lot of pride in being competitive with the elite." With sophomore, David Oliver, one of the Top Hurdlers in the country and junior, Taj Alvaranga, one of the Top 400 Intermediate Hurdlers, the elite are here on the Howard University Men's Track team.

The team is gearing up to prepare themselves mentally and physically, according to senior, Lance Gross, who is one of the Top Long Jumpers. "We practice everyday because we are trying to get our heads right and stay focused on accomplishing our goals." Last year served as a learning experience for the men, who had a great deal of freshman runners. Just ask up and coming freshman, Adetola Adewodu, who is a proud second best 400 Meter Runner.

With a new maturity and focus, the men are bound to bring home the MEAC Championship. Hard work and dedication is definitely going to pay off for these talented runners.

The Women's Track team is building success upon a new system of more support and togetherness amongst one another. With a better focus and commitment to winning, the women are aiming high for the number one spot at the upcoming MEAC Conference Championship. With top players like freshman, Erica Day, who is the best 400 Runner and ranking third in the Eastern Indoor Track Conference, these ladies are bound for happy days.

This year's team has a new confidence in themselves and their ability to place at meets. The women have realized their full potential and just how much they can achieve and "hang with the best of them," according to junior Sprinter, Phakiso Collins, who is in the Top 60 and 200 Meter Runner. As proof, the women have already won their cross-country conference and have a few secret weapons. LaClaire Carter is the top Long Jumper and Kendra Smith is the Top Triple Jumper.

So, what's different this year? Collectively, the team is noticeably coming together more, supporting one another, and even praying at the end of every practice. The team is focused on winning, but they also believe that being a stronger cohesive unit is going to be crucial to their success this season. With a unity this tight, nobody can stop these ladies from the number one spot.

Desire, Determination, Dedication, and Discipline, better known as the 4 D's are the core principals of the Howard University Softball Team. Coming off of a turbulent first year, the Lady Bison look forward to their approaching season with hopes of capturing the schools first MEAC Softball championship. So what's going to make this coming season different than the last?

The answer is a new coaching staff, new recruits, and returning players who refuse to be second best. Tonia Braxton, new head coach of the Lady Bison comes to us from Bowie State University, where she held down a winning record of 126-82. Coach Braxton feels that her team, "will be highly competitive and should finish over 500." With thirteen returning players, experience and unity promise the necessary drive for what's to come in the spring. The Lady Bison also brought in six recruits who will force the other MEAC teams to step their game up a notch. The Lady Bison strengths stem from their speed and dominating defense and development of aggressive bats.

The Lady Bison will play over thirty-five games this spring, and finish up at the MEAC tournament in Orlando, Florida in May. So, keep your eyes open for these ladies as they upset the competition. Batter Up!!!

Howard University Intramurals has always been a strong tradition amongst the faculty and students. Students are able to find relief from strenuous studies in any one of the numerous activities that Intramurals hosts. Men and women's Basketball takes place annually during the spring semester of each school year. There was special excitement this past year when students were able to participate not only in 5 on 5, but also in a three-point shooting and dunk contest. Competition was intense and fierce.

Howard University's Intramural Table Tennis teams are also part of this tradition, having participated in many regional and national tournaments. Three years ago they won the national championship and are presently rated amongst the best of The United States Table Tennis Association.

There was also Men's and Women's Flag football, which reached a record number of teams this past season as students flocked at the opportunity to display their talents. Howard also boasts a very successful Intramurals bowling squad that has participated in national tournament play over the last twenty years. They are current members of the Eastern Pennsylvania Maryland Intercollegiate Bowling Conference, which puts them up against schools such as Penn State, UMASS, and Temple.

Numerous activities, such as the spades tournaments, billiards, wiffle ball, and men's soccer were also open to students and faculty members. Howard University's Intramural Department successfully created a great social community for students and a better, healthy competitive environment for Howard.

Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc.

On January 16, 1920, Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Incorporated was founded upon the campus of Howard University. Our five beloved pearls, Arizona Cleaver Stemmons, Myrtle Tyler Faithful, Viola Tyler Goings, Fannie Pettie Watts, and Pearl Anna Neal, chose not to embrace the tenants of the established sororities. Instead, these five dynamic young women create a new sisterhood based upon the principles of service, scholarship, sisterly love, and the ideal of finer womanhood.

Howard University
Student Association would like to wish the Graduates of 2003
GOOD LUCK!

Awakening the Legacy...

Graduates

Those who are happily closing out one of the most exciting chapters of their life and embarking upon new journeys.

The students who have climbed the ranks of Howard University and are prepared to apply the things they've learned to earn a living.

The Howardites who are smiling from ear to ear, walking around with a boost of confidence and a feeling of great achievement and pride.

These are the proud Graduates of the Class of 2003.

Kudos to you!

Howard Students

They are your friends...They are your classmates. They may even be your tutor.

You might see them cruising the yard, making a fashion statement, being "superstars". Or they might be bummin' in sweats just trying to be a regular students.

They are your student leaders, Campus Pals, honor students, classmates, group partners and roommates. They are from all walks of life and some of the most diverse people you know. They add color and personality to the campus. They are the many faces of Howard University.

You pass through the gates of Howard University and you meet many people during your journey here. Your girl from the "Quad" and your boy who lived in "DREW...Hall" turn in to the people who shape your college experience. Four years will pass, you will look up and realize that your face is not in this section of the yearbook anymore. But as people come and go, you can look back at the "Students" section and remember where you were and who you knew...

Put on your best smile and picture yourself...that's just what WE DID!!

From chilling on the yard, in the dorms, and just out and about. This is how we do it at Howard University! The "Punch out" is where we hang out with your crew. The Towers is where we kick it with your friends.

The sight of students being themselves is what makes HU what it is...the Mecca. Visitors, "come see what we do..." Howard family members...

I believe, that God brings certain people

into our lives for a reason.
Sometimes, it's to help us see something new and wonderful.
sometimes, it's to encourage us
and strengthen our purpose.
and sometimes
it's just to remind us that we are never truly alone and that it is important to share
our smiles, our dreams,
and even our tears...

Whatever reason He had
in bringing us together
I'm very glad that He did.

You have been a real source of understanding and happiness in my life and you matter very much to me -
more than any words
could really say.

I love you,

Milton B. Yates

Happy Graduation!

*First I would like to thank God for this opportunity.
My mother for her dedication to keep a brother on the correct track (Ma, I love you like no other thing on this earth).*

My Pops, you were always a role model for a young brother (even when it didn't look like I noticed).

*My Grandmother, you were and still are one of my best friends.
My brother, we made it through all the troubles we put ourselves into (congratulations on yours).*

Now Howard; Ms. Latricia Simpson, my bestfriend in so many ways, you will always be in the innermost part of my heart.

(I could not have done it without you by my side and pushing me).

My roommates and co-d's, Scooter (Rougar) and Dud, the friendship that you two provided for me can never be duplicated or replaced.

(Anything, Anything, I'm there for ya'll man 4 real).

Grandma you are the backbone of our family. I know you are still watching over me & proud of my progress. You & Grandpa told me that I would Graduate & become successful in whatever I choose to do in life, I won't let you down, I promise. I love you Grandma, you will always be in my heart and you can Rest In Peace, don't worry about the family I'm gonna hold everything down for you.

Mom you have gave me strength and loved me as much as I think any Mom could since day 1. This degree I am receiving is for you. Dad, even though you were not there physically while I grew up, your words of wisdom, strength and guidance gave me the tools I needed to survive in the streets, hanging wit the homies & in the classroom. You have helped me to become what a complete Black Man is. Jarel whatup lil bro, I know u have a temper like me & dad but don't let that get in the way of your dreams I Love you fam & u know if u need anything just holla at me. I love you Mom & Dad 4sheezy my neezy. Magic, you have looked out for me since I've been in college. No matter what it was, even a laptop so I could do my work. Me & Andre really appreciate you showing us the ropes & having you in our corner. You are our big homie as well as someone we look up to, we got mad Love for you. Kenny you & Bryce are my big brothers & I appreciate ya'll holding me down, its only a matter of time before we are all on top of the world. R.I.P. to my homeboy Mann, who was down wit me since we was young bucks running wild around the projects with Mook & Skip. Don't worry Mann you made it out the hood I'm bringing you with me Fam. To all my family and friends, I love you. And I will always stay real, Peace...

In Loving Memory of KiShawnda Maria McRoyal
December 15, 1980 - June 9, 2002

Our Dearest KiShawnda,

No amount of words can express our love for you. We thank God everyday for your creation and for the opportunity to have known you here at Howard University. We thank you for giving so much of yourself. You spread friendship, courage, support, and most importantly, love as you touched lives across the campus and even throughout the city.

To many you were a leader, to all an inspiration. In a world that wasn't ready for you, you were a walking example of everything you believed in. Though we sometimes cry because we miss you, we are comforted with the joy of knowing that you reside in the sky with the most high.

For those of us who will graduate in May, we will carry you in our hearts and celebrate that moment with you. Even though you are absent in the flesh, we know that you are rejoicing with us in spirit as we continue to live out your legacy.

As for now, let us part ways until it is time for us to happily reunite in heaven.

We love you and will miss you always.

We, the friends of KiShawnda Maria McRoyal, dedicate this page to our risen angel, who died of malaria on June 9, 2002 shortly after returning from a study abroad program in Legon, Ghana. A Radio, Television and Film major from the School of Communications she was a member of the Annenberg Honors Program in the School of 'C', a resident assistant in the Tubman Quadrangle and a co-founder of Howard's first and only African dance ensemble officiated as an organization, Nsaa. KiShawnda's love of African culture and desire to explore her roots drove her to spend her junior year in Ghana, where she immersed herself in African culture and the African experience.

Though KiShawnda passed away at the young age of twenty-one, she accomplished a lot in such a short lifetime.

We are definitely proud of our angel, and will continue to strive to give to others what she has given to us.

We love you Ki!!!

The friends of KiShawnda Maria McRoyal

JESSICA

Sak Pase, tout moun!
 (What's up everybody)
 It's the #1 Haitian-hottie
 Checking out for the 2002.

To the man in my heart, Papi, I have been pledging my life to your honor and with this Howard Education I wil continue to carry your name with dignity & integrity as you did. Rest in Peace. I love you unconditionally and forever. To the woman who carried me for 9 months and is still cleaning up my mess today. I can't thank you enough mommy. Sisters: I love you, keep making Papi proud. To all my girls in Beantown and my family in Brooklyn: I Did It! And lastly to my Howard sisters: Erica (Eca) , Cooke and Zakiya Roberts, I miss you ladies already. Ama & Bry: LETS GET THIS MONEY!!

Dadi, you are my protector & savior. Where would I be without you. I've been misrepresented by false "revelations" but I've been blessed with your strength to fight my way through it. Mommy, I love you. My HU Brothers & Sisters past and present. I love you all. I will never forget the good, the bad & the ugly of it all, and how it made me stronger in character.

BRYNIA

To the woman who stood as my mother, father, sister, friend and confidant. I look up to you and admire your strength. Thank you for all of your support and believing in me, you told me my time is now and now is where I shall flounish... and become that great actress, dancer, Hip-Hop Lyricist I was born to be. I thank you for instilling the love of God in me because without him there is no us. I thank my little brother and big brother for holding me down. I also would like to thank my Step-Father for stepping in as my father, to Pebbles and Shamis, its time to let the world know whose really running it. To all of my Howard girls, Tracy, Trina, and Stephanie, I love ya'll. Ama and Flex (Jessica), Lets get it. Lastly the love of my life, Dudley/ DudBloud Irvin, keep ya head up and know that your mom watches over you.

Alex Dixon

Congratulations on your graduation from college and all of the wonderful things that you have accomplished along the way. We love you and are so proud of you. Keep up the good work and keep giving back. Trust in God, believe in yourself, aim high, and follow your dreams. Always remember that if it doesn't seem right, just say, "No thank you."

Love Always

Mom, Dad, Maurice, Grandma Dixon, and Grandma Cooks

The Saga Continues

*Four years ago,
We bonded on Howard's grounds.
Such deep friendship would be found*

*Because there were nine,
They thought we would die.
But never would separate,
Our bond is just too tight.*

*Men have come and gone
And still nine of us remain.
Don't you wish amongst your crew
You could claim the same?*

*And alas the haters came Angry at what they saw
Using cowardly tactics, persistence and deceit,
You tried to make us fall.*

*Sugarcoated, but not sweet
No fakeness you saw.
Just some LA, NC, NJ and NY girls
Tryna get ahead....PAUSE*

*Now its 2003
And we're standing still.
Don't be mad at resilience
You could never break our will.*

*People swore they knew us
With judging eyes from afar.
Until they got a glimpse
Of the down chicks we really are.*

*Rah thinks she's always right
And never has to ask.
Kyn is such a character
She always makes us laugh*

*Cece goes with the flow
And Bri is "So L.A."
Candy's the studious one, you'll find strutting down the runway.*

*Cle is as cool as they come and Mone is straight from the heart.
Lindsay has a quick temper,
So please, don't let her start.*

*Juju loves to party,
And we're all down just the same.
There's need to mention our newest addition;
Candy's baby boy Jermaine!*

*So peoples get ya mind right
As we move to bigger and better venues.
And just in case you're still sleeping,
Wake up!
The Saga Continues...*

WE ARE SO PROUD OF YOU

Congratulations Aurellia - Our Howard Grad

"REMEMBER now thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

Ecclesiastes 12:1

Your name in Spanish means "golden" a ray of sun(shine), bubbly, joy. God has blessed you to be beautiful and smart. He's blessed you to be an unselfish, energetic (full of life and energy) and joyful person. We've watched you grow up to become a lovely young lady. Thank you for enriching our lives and others with these wonderful God given attributes.

"And whatever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men."

Colossians 3:23

Simplify Your Life - D.I.V.N.E.

Aurellia, always remember we're born in this life to Give the Almighty God Glory and Honor in all we do and say. And, Now God's Goodness brings you to this "golden" opportunity to share in this Great Experience of being a Howard University College Graduate.

CONGRATULATIONS on your college graduation, Aurellia!!

And always remember to keep the faith.

With all of our love,
"Your" Family

the nation we serve.

Virtually any job you can imagine is available within the CIA, plus some you can't imagine. As the premier agency responsible for political, social, economic and technological intelligence worldwide, the CIA has never offered more exciting and challenging career opportunities for new employees than now.

An agency with our wide scope of duties needs a work force with the rich diversity offered by the multicultural nation we serve.

This is especially true today when the dynamic global community is changing faster than ever before.

Visit our Web site to find out about the exciting challenges that are open to all Americans — www.cia.gov

Because of our national security role, applicants must have US citizenship and the ability to successfully complete medical examinations and security procedures, including a polygraph interview.

The CIA is America's premier intelligence agency, and we are committed to building and maintaining a work force as diverse as the nation we serve.

Please apply online by visiting our website at www.cia.gov, or by sending your resume to: Recruitment Center, L100 LF7, Dept. AHOW0403, Washington, DC 20505.

Congratulations to the class of 2003.

Established in 1946, the Office of Naval Research (ONR) coordinates, executes, and promotes the science and technology programs of the United States Navy and Marine Corps through universities, government laboratories, and nonprofit and for-profit organizations. It provides technical advice to the Chief of Naval Operations and the Secretary of the Navy, works with industry to improve technology manufacturing processes while reducing fleet costs, and fosters continuing academic interest in naval relevant science from the high school through post-doctoral levels.

The technological superiority that the United States Navy currently enjoys was built on the brain power of the best and brightest of yesterday's scientists and engineers. To continue our legacy, we must continue to invest in the best and brightest of tomorrow's scientists and engineers.

The Office of Naval Research is committed to obtaining and maintaining a diverse workforce of the highest caliber. We value the participation of employees from diverse groups in all levels of our organization.

NASD Careers

NASD is the world's leading private-sector provider of financial regulatory services. Created more than 60 years ago, it has long been the primary self-regulator of the U.S. securities industry. Today, NASD's mission of bringing integrity to the markets and confidence to investors is more important than ever.

NASD registers member firms, writes rules to govern their behavior, examines them for compliance and disciplines those that fail to comply. We provide education to industry professionals and investors, and support member firms in their self-compliance activities. With a staff of 2,000, we touch virtually every aspect of the securities industry. Roughly 5,500 brokerage firms, nearly 90,000 branch offices and more than 650,000 registered securities representatives comes under our jurisdiction. We also monitor all trading on The Nasdaq Stock Market and other selected markets worldwide.

In addition to a competitive salary, comprehensive health & welfare benefits, and an incentive bonus, NASD offers immediate participation and vesting in a 401(k) with company match; a company-funded pension plan; tuition reimbursement; and many other benefits. If you would like to contribute to our important mission and work collegially in a professional organization that values intelligence, integrity and initiative, consider a career with NASD. EOE/AA. # THE BISON YEARBOOK STAFF

They make this look easy. They make things happen. They make history every year. They are the Bison Yearbook Staff.

THE E-I-C YOVAY MEYERS

The one with the plan.

made sure that we had plenty of snacks and music, all while keeping a calm and cool disposition, except that one time.

Dana, I cannot write enough to thank you! When I was falling apart, you were there to help pick up the pieces. You have been true strength and inspiration. You taught me so much about publications and life, you are

I cannot believe it's over! All the tears and long night have finally come together to form the 2003 Bison Yearbook. It took a lot of work and I have to thank God for bringing me through this experience.

I want to first thank my staff for being there for me. Without all of you, this would have never come together. All of you brought something special to the office and made the yearbook office the fun place that it was. Tiffanie, you were truly down for "the team". You helped me with anything you could, along with everything else you did for the office. You have been a wonderful co-worker, prophete, and friend. I love you to death! Kelley, one song describes our relationship, "Break up, to make up." I admire your creativity and uniqueness. Call me in about 5 to 10 years when you have a "Kelley" on your staff! Erin, you are such a sweet person. I have enjoyed working with you and I'm sure we will have lots of time to kick it this spring. Tina and Tanesha, OO-OOP! Linesisters, you guys really came through for me this year. Thank you both for doing a wonderful job. Tanesha, good luck next year! Erika, you are the best! You needed a place to kick it and I needed a co-worker. You managed to work hard and play hard in your "oh-so-fabulous" pimp style. Co-Co, you kept everyone up to date on the latest news! Hip-Hop or Wall Street, you kept it covered. You spent more hours in the office than anyone I know, and I truly appreciate it! Mike, you are so chill! You like a teacher and big sister wrapped into one beautiful package. You and Kendell are lucky to have each other and I can't wait to cry at your wedding. Nikki, you have also been a blessing! You and Dana are the only two people whose opinion of this yearbook matters... Do you like it?

To the Fantabulous 4 (Tanesha, Erika, and Lindsey), seems like yesterday, we lived in the Quad (Baldwin, 2nd floor). I love you guys. No one can have your back like your best friends!

To those DevaStating Divas of Alpha Chapter, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Incorporated, thank you for turning my office into Delta Central! I love you guys so much! OO-OOP! Happy first birthday, Solicitous 43 Spring 2002!!!

To my family, thanks for the calls and support. I would not be a validated student (or eligible to be Editor-In-Chief) without my Mom's money. Love ya!

I am blessed to have been the Editor-In-Chief this past year. The experience is one that I will cherish for years to come. For everyone who has enjoyed the yearbook, thank you for your support. For those haters that don't like the yearbook, stop pretending you're pretty and get active on campus! Then maybe you can be in charge of the yearbook. A piece of Howard University history, The Bison Yearbook Volume 80. God bless.

YOVAY MEYERS

THE MANAGING EDITOR TIFFANIE NOWLIN

The one with all the money.

I must say I am happy and sad all at the same time. I am happy because IT'S OVER and I am sad because...it's over. Just when I thought my life as "little Miss active on Campus" was ending, little did I know it was only just beginning. I will always cherish my new friends Erika, Co-Co, Mike, and Kelley, who made me realize that friendships are forever revolving. Man, now I'm mad I didn't join the staff earlier. I can honestly say that no student organization embodies family-like qualities like the yearbook.

To my Three Babies:

Tanisha- I love you so much, Tears and all. I am so glad to have had the opportunity to spend more time with you, to laugh with you and to find out the little things about you that I will always remember: FOR EXAMPLE Never talk to you or call you first thing in the morning. I know you will do great next year and just remember the extra year is like icing on a cake.

Tina- Girl, you have so much heart, so much ambition, and so many odds against you but I must say you have truly persevered and shone through. I will always remember our little moments talking about you know what or you know who. I know you are going to be doing big things next year. Because you wouldn't settle for anything less.

Yuvay-My little Dress!! You did it! You managed to balance a yearbook, Kelley and your grades; I think she deserves a Round of Applause (Clap) (Clap) (Clap) (Clap) (Clap)!

Just playin! But what I did want to say is that I think the world of you and you have really touched my heart in a special way. I consider you a more than a soror but a good friend. I know that the future looks scary, but just do what I am doing and that is whatever your heart desires. I love you Dress and Congratulations.

To My Best Advisor: Dana! Dana! Dana! Whoop! Whoop! Whoop!

I feel like I have finally found someone who loves and understands the science of shopping like I do. I would like to give us the title of SHOPOLOGIST. I truly admire your style, work ethic and willingness to truly ADVISE. Everyone says you are On Point and now I see why and I think no matter what goals you have in life or business ventures you pursue you are going to be successful because you possess this quality that demands excellence and I have decided to make excellence my own life long goal.

To My Milton: You are my love, my counselor and you truly are my best friend. Whenever life takes a turn for the worst I know that I can always count on you to be my hero and save the day. Our love has been like a fairytale and with each chapter it keeps getting better and better. I just want to tell you thank you for supporting me mentally, spiritually, emotionally and of course that other way, you know then one that requires the giving of money, because without you I don't think this journey would have been so smooth. For this I Love You.

And last of all My family: Mama I can not thank you enough for loving me, supporting me, praying for me and for allowing me to do create my own destiny. I know that I am blessed to have a family that loves me and who is there for me despite the situation. I just want you to know that because you blessed me God is going to truly bless you. To my Heavenly Father Up Above, who sits on High, You had a plan for my life and what a plan it is, I can't thank you enough for bringing me to Howard University and I hope I did you proud.

THE DYNAMIC PHOTOGRAPHY DUO

Well, finally my time has come. I'd have to say that it's been an exciting 4 years. It's been very momentous. I won't forget the good times and I surely won't forget the bad times. But what can I say? They only made us stronger.

To my Roomies on Elm Street: I'm gonna miss you guys. Heather B. ("Dr. Hairston") - Thanx for getting me up on Sunday mornings. Good luck with med school and all that doctor stuff. H ("Skinny Heather") - Thanx for being there when I needed someone to laugh with and for being the only one to watch Jackass with me. Kahlana ("P. Diddy") - Thanx for always being a friend. I'm so proud of you!! I'll leave you some of your favorite iced tea in the fridge! 422, It's been real!! Lots of memories in that ghetto house. From falling cabinets, to a fireplace with no remote (because it was "too expensive"), to falling closet poles, to no electricity on the 3rd floor, we definitely have had our times. But luckily, NO RATS (knock on wood). I'm gonna miss you guys. And, oh yeah, do we need sugar?

To the Crew - Nicole, Chondra, Charm, Melinda, Jocelyn and Tiff too . . . I love you guys. No more trips to the Penn Relays, Howard vs. Hampton Games, & All-Star Weekends for us. No more VIP status, renting SUVs for the weekend, piling 10 deep in the Acura. Through everything, we've grown stronger. I'm gonna miss each and every one of you as we all go our separate ways. Can you believe it. WE DID IT, IT'S OVER!!!

To the Yearbook Staff, it's been fun. Yuvay - thanks for putting me on. Good looking out. Kelley - stay your crazy self. Things wouldn't have been the same without you. Dana - you've been a wonderful adviser. Best wishes with married life. Erika, Tina, Tiffanie, Mike, & CoCo . . . you guys are the best. Good luck with everything. Tanesha - hold it down next year. I know you can do it!!

Last but definitely not least, Mom and Dad. I did it!! Thank you for all the love, support, and money. I couldn't have done it without you guys.

Howard U, It's definitely been real.
I'm Out.

Hey! I did it, phase one of my life is complete. I would like to take this time to thank my family: you'll provided me with the foundation to come to D.C. and get things done and I love ya'll dearly.

Congratulations to my favorite cousin, who is like a sister to me, Kenya, on the wedding and baby!

To my best friend in the whole world and Soror, Eva Cook, b.k.a. Redrum..you are the best! Deanna Donahoo, you are the homey and I am glad that you came to Howard because I never would have visited my future Alma Mater!

I have had some of the most wonderful experiences at this school and I am grateful for all the friends who have encouraged me to stay strong and BE MYSELF. I have met some very cool people and I really value all of you. Pals, Phi Sig and my Linesisters of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated- ya'll can always call on me for whatever!

To the yearbook staff- it's been real ya'll. The work was hard and the hours were long, but it was one of the most fun "jobs" I've ever had. Dana is the number one Adviser- you didn't know???

Finally, to Mr. Muiyiwa "Mudamoo" Bamiduro, words cannot express what you have come to mean to me. Whatever God has in store for us, it was meant to be. Thanks for being there.

TINA MARTINEZ

First and foremost I need to give thanks and respect to my mother Edith, and father Godwin Azoro for doing the best they could do and living their lives just to keep us happy. I love y'all! Next of course I have to send much props to my sis, Nurse Cheeks holdin' it down in NY with the '03 Honda Accord Coupe doing it big, without your guidance I wouldn't be where I am today. Also shout to my lil' sis doing her thing in H.S and my cousin, Dr. Francis pimping the Pharmacy game for all they got, do your thing cuz! What's good to all my peoples holding down in QU Mont Mont, Abdul, Big J in BK and the rest of the click'a, and to everybody else, keep it movin'!

Academically, I would like to say thank you to Dr. K in CEACS for helping me see where I need to be in the future and helping me in my journey to get there. I would also like to thank and send a shout to Mr. Harris for being not only my first employer on this campus, but also for being a friend, and comedian with his lame gecko jokes (hah, hah, got the last laugh!!).

Now to the yearbook, I most definitely need to need to thank Ms. Dana Williams, and Nikki Young who let me volunteer and hang out with the YB staff in the past years and let me hone my skills for this year. Yuvay, Coco, Erika, Tina, Erin, Tiffanie, Tanesha and my soul sista Kelley, it has been my pleasure putting together this yearbook with you all.

Now to my HU Familia, shout out to B-Tizzle, Jarobi, Matty-Boy, Vetti-Veasey, Slow-binna, J Johnson, B Harris, Mr. Jones, Ike, a shout out to my boys at 1800 and Bosey; holding it down in Drexel, and the rest of the SCS set holding it down. Also to all the graduating seniors in the crew, congratulations, and stay focused on the bigger plan.

Peace to my brother Meka, someday my nig.

Stay true to yourself, because at the end of the day the mirror will.

THE ASSISTANT TANESHA RICHARDSON

The one on the come up.

I can't believe that you guys are leaving me! I am scared, sad, and happy at the same time. Scared and sad because I will be the only one left in the office next year and happy because each of you have reached a milestone in your life.

Yuvay-

You can leave but you cannot go to far. You have been a loving soror, roommate, boss, and above all, a friend. However, next year you will play a new role in my life....Advisor! Yes, a sister will be calling you. But wherever you go next year I am sure that you will prosper because God has a magnificent plan for you.

Erika- You are a crazy mofo but I love you. You have been down for the start. Even when you took ill freshman year it did not stop you from opening and closing 2K9 with me. However, I cannot figure out how you managed to get bit by that spider.

Lindsey- To my favorite Bison Cheerleader. I am at a lose for words. I will miss you so much. I have always been protective of you and now my baby is leaving the nest. If you ever feel lost or helpless utilize your natural pimping skills and you will be okay.

Tiffanie- I love you so much. On the days that I didn't feel like being in the dungeon, your big smile and loud echoing laugh would change my mood. You have a beautiful spirit and I will miss your presence in G06.

Tina- The slow poke that always gets the job done. I don't know how you do it but you are the best. You hold down, an internship, copy editor, classes, campus pals, have a boyfriend and find time to learn all the party walks. I love you.

Kelley, Erin, Mike, and Coco- Getting to know each of you has been wonderful. I can't believe that you fools will be official grown-ups.

Dana- "Dana's Great"

To my adored Sorors of Delta Sigma Theta. What can I say, I love ya'll broads. It takes a lot of hard work to consistently be the tightest sorority on campus but we do it and make it look easy. Here is a long thunderous OOOOO-OOP for each member of Solicitous 43, it's real.

TANESHA RICHARDSON

To the yearbook crew, we made it you guys!!! Thanks for giving a brother the chance to decipher all the stereotypes about "Baggy Jeans New Yorkers". My experiences at HU will definitely go down in my record books man 4 real. Remembering days of "SugarHill" and all the good times, so I must take the time to thank Howard for all the pleasant memories given to a brother that never really saw a college campus before enrolling here. ONE LOVE to everybody I encountered, and I almost forgot BROOKLYN STAND UP!

THE OFFICE ASSISTANT ERIKA JORDAN

The one who gets it done.

If nothing else, be confident because its better to shine than reflect. You will be loved and envied for...that is what I have learned. I love Howard!! It has truly been a place for me to grow and expand my knowledge both of self and in academics. Thanks to everyone that has made this journey complete. To my family, I love you and thank you for everything. None of this would be possible without you all. The fantabulous 4, Tanesha, Lindsey, and Yuvay, I could not have found a better set of friends. Tiny you are one of the most honest people I have ever met, I love you. Lindsey, dawg I can simply say you are the best, keep pimpin. Yuvay, you are one of the busiest people I know, thanks for everything, I love you! You each have stopped for nothing to achieve your goals. I'm so proud! Oh yeah, keep those heads turning! HU Softball team, you will always be my family. Never forget, we were the 1st. Viva la Calzone! Summer Rain, our storm is so turbulent, and will never be stopped. YB, its been a great year. Ya'll are about the silliest bunch of people I know. Thanks Dana! To: Shelby, Reese and dem, Ant and dem, Nikki, Yannie, Kyle, Lala, Tee and Bee, love you and I'll miss you! Anyone that has been a part of my life thanks for everything. Peace!

ERIKA JORDAN

I can't believe a year has gone by so fast. Creating a yearbook is like an elephant giving birth. It doesn't take 22 months, but it takes a year to make this happen. People seem to the think the yearbook staff goes to Kinko's the night before they decide to have books out, but the process is way more intricate than that. As the Adviser, I feel like a proud grandma watching her child struggle through the hardest process of their life. Knowing, I've been through this before and I'm here to lend my help and support when needed. Its been a wonderful year and I will miss all my students that are graduating this year. You all have brought me great amounts of laughter and only a few tears here and there. Yuvay, you did it. I know you didn't believe you could in the beginning, but you made it through, just like Nikki and I knew you would. Your dedication and love paid off and hopefully you've learned how not to bog yourself down with too many commitments. Kelley, you are a unique work of art. No one can ever duplicate you, and I would never want them to. Tiffanie, you've been a bright light this entire year. Thank you for always making it happen. The entire staff was great and I've enjoyed working with you all. You have kept me laughing the entire year, and you made the yearbook office feel just like the old days. To my husband-to-be, thank you for your undying support and love. I make it through the long days because of you. Good luck seniors and to next year's staff...I'm ready for you!

THE COLOPHON

What the book is made of.

Taylor Publishing of Dallas, Texas published the Eightieth edition of the Bison Yearbook with the help and guidance of our Taylor representatives: Joe Wenzl, Juila Jordon, and Tami McConnell. Portraits and organizational photos were exclusively contracted by T. D. Brown by Lifetouch Photography with the help of Tim Rosa, our T.D. Brown by Lifetouch representative, and Segall Majestic by Lifetouch. Richard Burg of NFP Campus Publications solicited all non-campus advertisements. All on-campus advertisements were solicited by Tiffanie Nowlin of the Bison Yearbook.

The Bison Yearbook was designed using PageMaker 7.0, Adobe Photoshop 6.0, Taylor YB Pro, and Microsoft Office. All body text is Athena Roman 12 point. The cover is a 4-color lithicoat cover. The concept was developed by Yuvay Meyers, Kelley Givens, and Dana Williams. Photographs are by Melanie Nesbitt.

All typeface in the book are from the Adobe ATM library. Athena-Roman was the primary font used in the book. Athena-Italics was used for captions and credit. Texas Hero and Princtowne-D fonts were used for headlines.

All opinions expressed in the Bison Yearbook are not necessarily those of the administration, trustees, faculty, staff, students, or alumni of Howard University.

The Bison Yearbook Office is located in room G-06 of Armour J. Blackburn Center on the campus of Howard University. All other comments or inquiries should be directed to the Bison Yearbook at (202) 806-7870(phone), or by fax at (202) 234-5181, or by email at bisonyearbook@hotmail.com.

Crossing the Gates

is a family...

The struggles, love, and dedication of this family make it unique and memorable. Think back to all the dining dollars you have borrowed from your friends and all the textbooks you didn't have to pay for because somebody passed them down to you... and don't forget the countless times a friend has opened their house or dorm to you when times were a little shaky. Remember the late night pep talks from your supporters who were constantly encouraging you. Think about those who were there to wipe away the tears from that big heartbreak and all the fun times you enjoyed with them just "kickin" it. All of these things and so much more make Howard University an experience that only the family can appreciate...

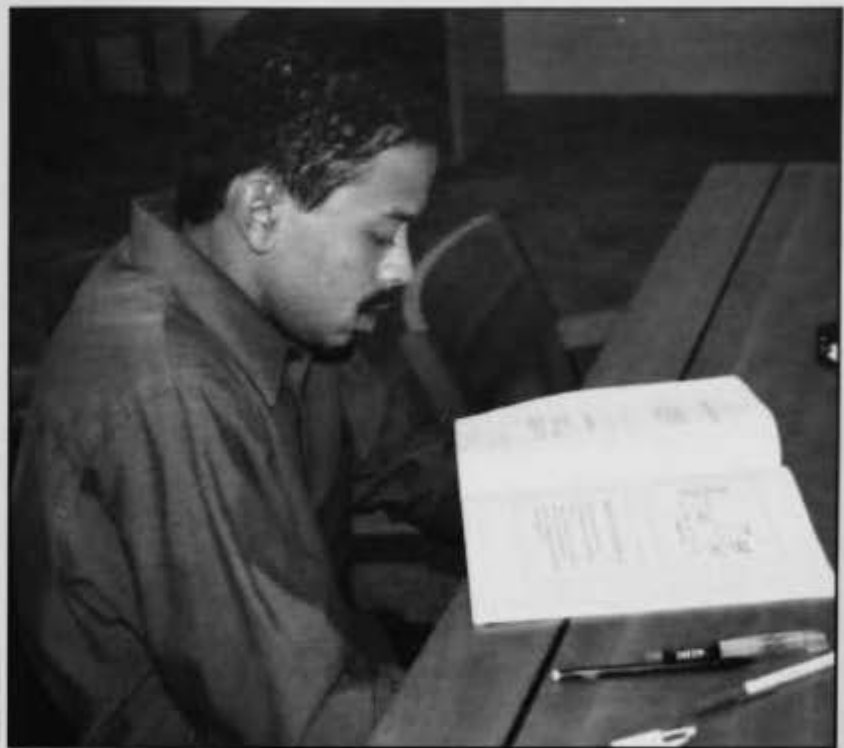

The friends you've met, the classes you've tackled, the fashion shows and pageants you've participated in, the offices you've held, the professors who've helped you along the way, the knowledge gained, the maturity you've grown into, and the diversity you've been immersed in can all be categorized by two beautiful words:

The Mecca

EVERYDAY experiences here at Howard University become LIFE CHANGING experiences. From enduring the food in the cafe' to waiting patiently for your refund check, Howard has prepared you for real life. Maybe you don't appreciate it right now, but you will in due time. The real world has been in the palm of your hands, from dealing with all of the politics of the University, juggling classes and leadership positions, and constantly struggling to be the best in everything you set out to do. It's not about being stuck in the past legacy of Howard University...you are leaving your own mark, living up to your own potential and achieving new heights. The sky is the limit...

Through the Gates
