Students seek onlookers to confirm brutality claims

By Natalie X. Moore

Six area college students are looking for witnesses to step forward in the case of police brutality against students at the Howard University Homecoming Weekend.

Four George Washington University students and two University of Virginia students said they were given an ‘unnecessary’ excessive force’ Oct. 17. The night of the J-Zak Cup parti in the Tammany Inn on 10th Street.

In front of Popes Fresco Fried Chicken near the busy corner of 14th and N St., the men say three Metro police officers and a Secret Service officer wrongly accounted at them during a 90-minute period.

One was punched in the head, left his left and right shoulder with the back of his hand. They were shot at by the officers who were not accurated at by the officers. Our witness, there was a huge crowd running on the streets. We turned our back to the police force.

The police force was very irregular, we left our hand on the street. We were hit by a huge crowd of officers. The officers did not account to the police force.

Because of the beating, they all told us they were very strong. We just told them you are not allowed in the streets. They told us we had to do something.

Due to the beating of people and traffic on the streets, they were put in the police station with their accounts. Martin said many officers were running on the streets.

They did not take the people to the police station and brought back. They said they were not instructed in this. We want them to be stopped for what they were doing. By the police force.

Goshen sophomore Brian Smith suffered from bruising on his shoulders and aches on his children. They came, comforted and washed their hands. We want the police force to be stopped.

I was given a police ticket and asked to report a crime. But we are not allowed to do anything.

The police officers lost it after showing university IDs. The students were required to show their university IDs at the District Three Metro Police Department.

They are not given any information about the university ID. The police force did not check the university IDs. We want them to be stopped for what they were doing.

Swygert unveils computer labs in ceremony

By Anna French

When Bill Swygert joined a student in cutting the ribbon to a new computer lab in the Tammany Quadrangle.

The cutting of a blue ribbon is the 15-minute ceremony at the opening of the new computer labs, signaled the spirit of which Howard is trying to move on the information superhighway.

A group of 20 students and staff members around a 45-foot ribbon on Aug. 4. 1996. Swygert and administration unveiled the first computer lab improvements in student life: 20 computers in Tammany Quadrangle and 10 computers in Corcor Hall with accompanying lab printers.

"This is just a small part of the continued commitment to the students of the future," said Swygert as he dedicated the labs to the students who have faced the downturns of the years past.

In early September, a computer lab was open in Dree Hall (then McMillan Hall). The project, which included a textbook distribution center in the first-floor area, would be extended to other dormitories by the end of the academic year.

Said student Tina Hill said she was excited about the opening of the computer lab because "it's pretty amazing." Hill said, "I am especially glad that it's in the room where I was in the ceremony when it was unveiled."

During the legislative session, Sen. John J. Spano of Easton was unanimously re-elected as the 17th President of the Senate. He has served in that position for the past two years.

Spano, a Democrat from the 10th District, was nominated by his colleagues and elected by the full Senate. He succeeds Sen. John P. Miller of Elkton, who completed his second term in January.

"I am honored to serve as President of the Senate for another term," Spano said. "I look forward to working with my colleagues to advance legislation that will improve the lives of Marylanders."
Prospective May 1997 Graduates

Each candidate for graduation is personally responsible for obtaining clearance for graduation. You must consult with your academic advisor to determine if you have met all academic and financial requirements. If you have not been financially cleared, you must report to Financial Aid and Student Employment and Student Financial Services to settle your account to be eligible for graduation.

If you have not met all academic and all financial requirements, you cannot receive your degree nor can you participate in Commencement Exercises.

See your academic advisor now or not later than 10 January while you can still register for classes you may need to fulfill graduation requirements. Add/Drop ends 15 January 1997; retroactive registration and retroactive program changes are not permitted.

Appeals Process
(Students Failing to Meet Financial Aid Satisfactory Academic Progress Standards)

Students who fail to meet satisfactory academic progress standards are not eligible for financial aid. (Academic progress is reviewed after every second semester of enrollment and is based on grade point average, cumulative hours earned, and number of semesters enrolled.)

Within 14 days of notification, students who are determined ineligible for financial aid have the right to submit to Financial Aid and Student Employment a written appeal for reinstatement of aid eligibility. (The appeal should include a statement citing the reason(s) for failure to meet progress standards and any pertinent supporting documentation.)

Students receive written notification of the decision (approval or denial), and if they are not satisfied with the decision they may submit a second appeal (in writing) to the Chairman of the University-wide Financial Aid Committee. (Requests are reviewed the first and fifteenth of each month.) The Committee’s decision is final.

If your appeal is approved, you cannot use the decision as the basis for registration if the registration period has ended.

Once an appeal has been approved, contact Financial Aid and Student Employment regarding aid eligibility.

MAKING THE GRADE

Anthony Edwards

Howard University's D.C. campus is often a playground for Metro riders. Last year, a 43-year-old man was robbed at gunpoint in a Red Line train between Takoma Park and Lanham. The victim, Peter DePree was stabbed when a group of men attacked him while he was sitting on a Red Line train at the Woodley Park Station. The victim was taken to a nearby hospital and is in critical condition.

Ward 8 Council member Ericka Mayes introduced a resolution calling for increased police presence on the Metro system, in response to the recent increase in crime on the system.

The Metro system has been under increased scrutiny in recent months, with reports of increased crime on the system. The Council has called for increased police presence, as well as additional security measures, to ensure the safety of riders on the system.

Metro rail robberies alarm HU students

District teacher gives students a real-life taste of life in court

By Zerline L. Gilmore

A Howard High School teacher gives his students a real-life taste of life in court. The teacher, John Johnson, has been involved in the legal profession for many years and has worked as a lawyer and judge.

Johnson says he has always been interested in the law and decided to become a teacher to help students understand the legal system and its impact on society.

Johnson's class includes a legal simulation, where students play the roles of attorneys and judges, and learn about the courtroom process.

Johnson says he has always enjoyed teaching and helps his students understand the legal system and its impact on society.

"Just when the nation is trying to ease their pain, give them some drugs, now they're being told that marijuana and other drugs are, in fact, the best thing for the patient," said McCarthy. The trend to just claim that they are curing every disease is degrading.

The cannabis in marijuana was crucial to President Clinton's decision to allow medical marijuana for patients suffering from AIDS, Parkinson's disease, or multiple sclerosis. Clinton's decision on this issue was in part due to pressure from the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML) and other advocacy groups.

CENTRAL CAMPUS TRAFFIC CHANGES

Changes in the vehicular circulation pattern of public streets within the University have been approved by the DC Government. These changes were requested by the University to increase control over private vehicles entering the University.

When the changes become effective, all traffic for the upper campus will enter the University at the intersections of Georgia Avenue and Howard Place or Georgia Avenue and Girard Street.

- The Girard Street entry will be one way east to Sixth Street and then one way south on Sixth to the Fairmont Street exit to Georgia Avenue.

- The Howard Place entry will be one way east to Sixth Street. At the intersection of Howard Place and Sixth Street, traffic can proceed one way down (south) Sixth Street or one way up (north) Sixth Street. The northbound traffic will exit at Fairmont Street, one way west.

In this plan, the parking lots between Architecture and Engineering (Lot F) and Engineering and Wonder Plaza (Lot G) will be entered and exited only from Georgia Avenue, eliminating the vehicular traffic on Sixth Street generated by these lots.

The Department of Public Works will provide a three-day notice prior to changing the signage accommodating the new traffic pattern. The student, faculty, and staff leadership of the University have been briefed on this situation and agree with the security benefits of this plan.

Speakers discuss religion's role in global politics

By Akile Heyliger
Staff Writer

At a recent luncheon on Monday, April 19, a group of students from the International Affairs, International Relations, and Religious Studies departments gathered with the Sudanese Ambassador to the United Nations, Salma Haidar, and a senator to discuss the role of religion in global politics.

Ambassador Haidar spoke about the influence of Islam on traditional Sudanese society. She explained that the Sudanese constitution is based on the principles of justice and national unity, and that the government aims to promote peace and stability through religious harmony.

Sen. Richard J. Durbin (D-Ill.) emphasized the importance of religious freedom and the role of faith in promoting social cohesion and human rights. He mentioned the challenges faced by religious minorities in some countries, particularly in the Middle East and North Africa.

The discussion was facilitated by Professor John Horgan, who highlighted the importance of understanding the role of religion in international relations. He noted that religion can be a source of conflict and cooperation, and that diplomacy can be used to promote religious tolerance and understanding.

The event was organized by the International Affairs and Religious Studies departments, and was open to all students and faculty. The aim was to foster a greater understanding of the role of religion in global politics and to encourage dialogue on this important topic.

Aimed Kathrada urges reconciliation and revitalization in South Africa, discusses imprisonment

By Akile Heyliger
Staff Writer

Aimed Kathrada, a former political prisoner in South Africa, spoke to Howard University students about the importance of reconciliation and the need for a new spirit of cooperation.

Kathrada, who served 18 years in prison for his political activism, emphasized the need for individuals to take responsibility for their actions and to work towards a peaceful resolution of conflicts.

He highlighted the importance of education and the role of the media in shaping public opinion. He called for the creation of a new generation of leaders who are committed to building a democratic and inclusive society.

Kathrada also discussed the challenges facing South Africa, including poverty, inequality, and unemployment. He urged the government to take action to address these issues and to work towards a more just and equitable society.

He concluded his speech by urging students to follow in the footsteps of the pioneers of democracy and to work towards a better future for all.

Professor's departure puzzles faculty, worries students

From PROFESSORS A1, "I am really looking forward to having you all back with us next semester." A1 is the professor of history and is known for being an engaging and enthusiastic teacher.

Students are excited about the prospect of returning to the classroom and are looking forward to working with their professors again.

However, some students have expressed their concern about the possibility of the professor leaving the university. They have been asking for more information about the professor's plans and future employment.

The administration has been reassuring the students, but the uncertainty has caused some anxiety among the faculty and students. They are hopeful that the professor will remain at the university and continue to inspire their learning.

An African student's complaint about discrimination in letter to Sawyer

By Akile Heyliger
Staff Writer

An African student has written a letter to the University's Office of Diversity and Inclusion, expressing concern about discrimination and the lack of support for African students on campus.

The student cited several examples of discrimination, including being denied access to certain events, receiving unequal treatment in the classroom, and facing challenges in finding housing.

The student asked for support in addressing these issues and for the university to take concrete steps to ensure a welcoming and inclusive environment for all students.

The administration has acknowledged the student's concerns and has promised to investigate the matter and take appropriate action.

African students feel more welcomed

African students at Howard University feel more welcomed and supported on campus than they did in the past.

They have noticed an increase in the number of African students enrolled at the university, and have seen a greater diversity in the student body.

They have also reported a more open and inclusive atmosphere, with greater opportunities for social and cultural exchange.

The administration has been working to improve the university's international student programs and to create a more welcoming environment for all students.

The student body is a diverse and vibrant community, and the university is committed to promoting diversity and inclusion on campus.

"Internet cafe" opens at the presentation of student center

The new student center, which includes a coffee shop and a computer lab, was officially opened to the student body.

Students have welcomed the new facility, which provides them with a dedicated space to study, work, and socialize.

The computer lab is equipped with state-of-the-art technology and is open to all students, regardless of their major.

The cafe, which is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., offers a range of food and beverage options, as well as free Wi-Fi.

The new center has been well-received by students, who have praised its convenience and the variety of services it offers.
Black businesses need to embrace racial diversity

As Howard students, we are trained to get a job. We want to be able to live in a nice neighborhood, drive a nice car, and generally have a good life. The best way we can achieve this is to get a well-paying job. Much of corporate America is concerned with diversity, even the law mandates that the people we will be working with up and down the line will not have face discrimination. And employers who refuse to do so are "Black jelly beans." Or, in other words, we deal with people who will not serve us.

This is an ancient game. Since the hardship cases of the Civil Rights Movement, Black people have been fighting cultural change at corporations, alleging unfair treatment and promoting Black literature. Since then, the more successful Black-owned businesses have been in the form of small enterprises. But discrimination and corporatism do not end with nice jobs, house and car. The bottom line is that we need to diversify our institutions where such things are not a factor. Efforts must be made to encourage discrimination or harassment. Usually the companies that while Black-owned businesses will not solve all of discrimination. And employers who refuse to do so are "Black jelly beans." Or, in other words, we deal with people who will not serve us.

The Brady bill presents challenges that cannot be ignored

Howard needs to focus improvement efforts on the professoriat. The new improvements to campus this year include brick, bricks, and, if possible, in brick. During this time, the Howard administration and students have been discussing the need to improve the professoriat. This is an ancient game. Since the hardship cases of the Civil Rights Movement, Black people have been fighting cultural change at corporations, alleging unfair treatment and promoting Black literature. Since then, the more successful Black-owned businesses have been in the form of small enterprises. But discrimination and corporatism do not end with nice jobs, house and car. The arts are no longer the exclusive domain of the painter or the composer. The Howard University painting of the coming season shows students and teachers posing with artists and other forms of media to create a more diverse landscape. The arts are being integrated into the everyday environment of Howard University, and the students are now seen in a new light.

A computer lab has been added to the Student Center, and the staff has been working hard to help students and faculty. The staff is made up of students who have taken on different roles, from technical support to administrative tasks. The lab is equipped with computers and software to help students with their coursework.

In addition to the computer lab, a new art gallery has been opened on campus. The gallery will feature works by students and faculty, as well as works by visiting artists. The gallery is located in the_gtower, and is open to the public.

Howard University has also been working to improve its online presence. The university has established a website to provide information about the campus and its programs. The website includes news articles, photos, and videos of campus events. The website also includes a calendar of upcoming events, which is updated regularly.

Howard University is also making strides in the field of technology. The university has recently purchased a new server for its computer science department. The server will be used to run the university's online courses. The server is located in the tech center and is accessible to all students.

The university is also working to improve its existing technology infrastructure. A new network is being installed to connect all buildings on campus. The network will provide high-speed internet access to all students and faculty. The network will also be used to support online courses and other digital services.

Overall, Howard University is making great strides to improve its technology infrastructure. The university is committed to providing its students with the best possible learning environment. With the new computer lab, art gallery, and network, the university is well on its way to achieving this goal.

Jordan jams to different ‘toon’ in new movie

By Tachlea Roland

As basketball season gets heated up with the NFL's Super Bowl in full swing, the Looney Tunes are gearing up for a new adventure in their latest animated movie, "Space Jam: A New Legacy."

During a television press conference, Warner Bros. announced that the film will go into production this year and is scheduled to be released in 2023.

The film will feature the returning cast of Looney Tunes characters, including Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, and Taz, who will be joined by new characters played by celebrities and athletes, including Michael Jordan and LeBron James.

"We are thrilled to bring the Looney Tunes back to the big screen with a new cast of stars," said Warner Bros. Pictures chairman Kevin Tsujihara. "This movie will be a celebration of the iconic characters and their timeless appeal to audiences of all ages."

Jordan, who is known for his charitable work, has been a frequent collaborator with the Looney Tunes gang, having starred in the NBA-themed "Space Jam" series in the 1990s. He will now reprise his role as Michael Jordan, as well as lend his voice to a new character in the film.

James, on the other hand, is making his debut as an on-screen Looney Tunes character, and is excited to bring his unique style and sense of humor to the iconic group.

"I've always been a huge fan of the Looney Tunes," said James. "I couldn't be more excited to bring my own twist to the classic characters and to work with such a talented cast."

Exchanging sleep for study time does not guarantee good grades

Fr. Claire Thomas
Hilltop staff writer

The amount of sleep one needs varies in comparison to others. Harrell said that since people are different in their sleep needs, it is important to understand your own sleep patterns.

Doyle said that lack of sleep is not the only reason for her drowsiness during the day. "I don't get up early because I'm an early riser," Doyle said. "I go to bed late and get up late."

"Sleep is one thing that can clearly have an effect on your life," Harrell said. "It's very important to get enough sleep because it affects your body and your brain."

"I'm always so tired," said Doyle. "I can't make it through the day without a nap at least one nap."

"Sleep is a required activity," Harrell said. "You need to get enough sleep because it affects your brain."

Injuries slow Bison running backs

By Marcus Matthews
Hiipstel Staff Writer

Very few students on campus are aware of the fact that the Bison team has a Tae kwon do Sport Club, which hosts Tae kwon do competition and certain tournaments. The team consists of 15 to 20 members and is a part of the national Tae kwon do team.

“Tae kwon do has won many titles, but we’re never a collegiate title,” Alyah said. “This is the last year of eligibility, and it was very good for us, especially when we lost.”

Alyah stated that “Tae kwon do is a very fast and hard sport, and it requires a lot of training and dedication.”

Dear Members of the Howard University Community:

Please join me in expressing my heartfelt congratulations to the Howard University Bison Football Team, Coach Steve Wilson and his outstanding coaching staff on their completion of an outstanding regular season and for receiving the University’s first invitation to participate in the Annual McDonald’s Heritage Bowl Classic. It will be held on December 31, 1996, in the Georgia Dome in Atlanta, Georgia. The football team performed exceptionally well this season and is most worthy of the opportunity to play in this prestigious Classic. I will be traveling to Atlanta to attend the game in support of the team. I invite you to join me.

For more information about the game, contact Dr. Steve Favors at 202-806-2100, or Mr. Hank Ford at 202-806-7140.

Sincerely,

H. Patrick Swygert

It may not be great penmanship, but it's wonderful when adults who have spent years feeling inferior begin to express their thoughts in writing.

Many adults with low reading skills have found the confidence to read through a unique program called Gateways: Paths to Adult Learning.

The Gateway program is now available through community organizations in Washington, D.C.

Volunteer tutors are urgently needed. If you would like to help out, please give us a call.

You don't have to be a teacher or have a college degree. We'll help you what to do and you can help your student can make your own schedule. Give just 29 hours of your time and help change someone's life forever.
