Ambassador Discusses African Politics

BY NICOLE REED

Ambassador Gertrude Ibebewa Mongella, elected president and chairman of the African Union (AU), visited Howard University on Friday afternoon as part of her campaign to tell the world that “African: Understanding the Politics of a Continent.”

She was the first African Union president to visit a U.S. school. “I am under the impression of unifying the people of Africa through the African Union. Until recently, the people, the populations wasted too much time with the linguistic divide, decimating the language in which businesses should be conducted. Now, Swahili is the first universal language to be used by the OAU,” Mongella said.

“I must create a parliament that is democratic and representative of the voices of the African people,” Mongella, who realizes that African freedom is only to occur when there is a meaningful voice of the African people. “African countries and the world must move forward to a more united continent. It also intends to create a greater unity among the African countries and the world.”

Mongella began the discussion highlighting the meaning of “kasumba,” a word in Swahili that has a meaning similar to the English word “dream.” This was the cornerstone through which she spoke in the speech of many different kasumbas in the world such as the United States covering only negative images of African images and Africa.

Referring to Mongella, Johnathan virtually can understand images of crying, sick, poor and starving Africans, they assume ill Africans suffer the same fate. However, Mongella stressed that there are many different kasumbas in the world such as the United States covering only negative images of African images and Africa.

Now that homeowner and minor cases are over, and the once-comfortable temperatures outside are now frigid, many students are making plans to go home for the holidays.

With Thanksgiving and Christmas quickly approaching, some students are contemplating which mode of transportation will be the most comfortable and cost-efficient.

Car, bus, plane and train are all modes of transportation that students frequently use to get home. If students do not have a ride to get better for the holidays, finding deals that will get you to your destination will be the heart of the challenge. There are some things that students can do to ensure that their next trip home will not be a heartache.

Freshman broadcast journalism major Natalia Wiles will drive home for the holidays. Although her trip to her home state of Georgia takes nine hours, she said that it is worth the wait.

"It's a lot cheaper to go by car for Thanksgiving because a plane ticket would be $400 if I bought it now," she said. Even when using sites such as priceline.com and cheaptickets.com, a plane ticket should be the most expensive and least comfortable option.

The artwork was unveiled on Sept. 22, 1989, "Freedmen's Column" represents the struggles faced by freedmen and the future completes the work. It is an emblem to the history and mission of Howard University. It is a way of remembering the past and looking forward. The sculpture is supported by public art. It is a reminder of the efforts of radio talk show host Tom Joyner and his Tom Joyner Foundation. It is a symbol of the African past and the possibility of a soaring ascent into the future. The bronze represents the time period in which the University was founded. The way the sculpture appears is a diagonal ascending path. Know Your University: Freedman's Column Freedman's Column is dedicated to James E. Cheek and Calvina C. Cheek, president and first lady of Howard University from 1970 to 1989. The pillar represents the mission of Howard University. "The Tom Joyner Foundation," Ammons said that he wanted to get the word out about the dinner. That's why we really wanted to get the word out about the dinner. Students can be seen sitting on the base of the sculpture, which is its intended use. A concrete base is 12 feet in diameter and 15 inches tall, made for seating people. The eight-foot-tall concrete base is made for sitting functions that stand on the base function as a base and a transition to the abstraction. "Freedman's Column," a 10-foot diameter sculpture that stands on the base function and is a part of the environment. The house represents the general vertical structure and a series of movement along a diagonal ascending path. A winged nympha superstructure that represents the African past and the possibility of soaring ascent into the future completes the work. It is an emblem to the history and mission of Howard University. "Now knowing the name of the sculpture, I see how it represents the freedman's experiences," said sophomore radio talk show host Tom Joyner. The way the sculpture appears to be going up represents us because we are still striving to move forward.

Some Cheap Travel Options Still Available

TRAVEL, from Campus A2

you can usually get a bargain price. For students looking for Thanksgiving deals, now is the best time, she said.

Junior political science major and North Carolina native Caneisha Mills agreed timing is important when looking for good prices during holiday travel.

"Sometimes it's better to take the train. Sometimes it's better to take the bus, but whatever you decide to take to get you home, don't wait until the last minute to buy the ticket," she said.

According to cheatsite.com, there are some tips to remember when traveling during the Christmas holiday.

"Traveling in the first half of December is good. You can book flights with one or two stops to get cheaper prices, as well as using discount carriersones or checking alternative airports," she said. It's better to book flights going home from websites such as expedia.co1n.

Ticket prices are usually lower the day before Thanksgiving. It's important to check prices on Black Friday, and used before Dec. 15. Ticket prices are also low for destinations such as

Las Vegas.

According to Kathie Gonzales of cheaptickets.com, there has been a 60 percent increase from last year in people purchasing tickets this holiday season.

It's worth it to try to find the

New Chinatown Movie Theater Offers Alternative

By REBECCA THORPS

Rinaldy Gallery Place Stadium 14 Movie Theater in the heart of the District of Columbia has added a new option for entertainment in the Asian-American community. With a focus on providing an authentic Chinese-American experience, the theater offers a range of movies that cater to the cultural and linguistic diversity of its audience.

The theater, located at 1401 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, is just steps away from the Chinatown Metro Station. It offers a unique blend of traditional Chinese movies alongside western films, allowing viewers to immerse themselves in different cultures.

One of the key features of the theater is its commitment to showcasing original Chinese-language films. This not only celebrates the rich cinematic heritage of Chinese cinema but also provides a platform for emerging filmmakers.

In addition to its film offerings, the theater also hosts special events and film festivals throughout the year. These events provide opportunities for the audience to engage with the films on a deeper level, fostering a sense of community and cultural exchange.

For those looking for a dining option, the theater offers a variety of Chinese restaurants located within walking distance. This convenience adds to the overall experience, making it a perfect spot for a night out.

The theater's success is evident in its growing popularity among locals and tourists alike. It has become a destination for film enthusiasts seeking an authentic and immersive cinematic experience.

With its commitment to cultural diversity and inclusivity, the Rinaldy Gallery Place Stadium 14 Movie Theater continues to attract a diverse audience, offering a space where people can come together to enjoy the power of storytelling across different cultures.

Society has developed a dependency on cell phones, and people, along with relying on it, are losing their independence.

In fact, many students use cell phones not only for safety and convenience, but also for a phone book. It seems that traditional phone books may one day become obsolete. Cell phone books are not for people to actually keep in their pockets, but are simply kept as an extra phone book in your family's home.

"With that in mind, problems may arise when someone loses one or breaks the phone because that person has not had contact with all of the phone numbers in it."

This can be avoided with the use of cell phone, which is a portable phone in the phone which has many numbers and can be retrieved to a phone that is portable in the company where all cell phone companies do not charge for this technology. Some companies like Sprint offer "Mobiles" and Cingular.

I recently broke my cell phone and the phone company said that I would have to keep my phone numbers in my phone book. "The only thing that saved my life was my SIM card. I can change phones and still keep all of my numbers," said Rahson Taylor, a sophomore computer information major.

"I had a SIM card, but my phone was stolen so it didn't do me any good," said sophomore broadcast journalism major Amanda Nembhard. "I was placed because I had lost all of my numbers. I had to start collecting numbers of over 20 people.

Then there are those who are lost fortunate enough to have a cell phone company that carries phone with SIM cards. There are those who are at constant risk of losing all of their numbers if their phone was to be recovered."

"Inevitably, I keep my cell phone on me all the time. I keep my phone in my bag but also have a separate phone to use for my home. Because of this I was able to gain back contact with the girls that I lost," said sophomore broadcast journalism major Donna Johnson.

I phone broke so I couldn't call because my phone is old fashioned so I just as an old-fashioned style.

The use of the site can range as a political sound off in the deep, dark secrets. Some agree that it is easier than writing in a notebook. Some people find it convenient to make notes, jot down ideas, and change phones and still keep all of their numbers. Some people are not fortunate enough to have a cell phone company that carries phone with SIM cards.

A phone call once said that I wouldn't know how to live without my cell phone. Not just in an "OMG, my life is stored on a little chip" kind of way, but in a "my life would be a hot mess without it. I haven't been able to use a phone book."

I'm going to keep a phone book.

Call me old-fashioned, but we'll be able to look up phone numbers in his cell phone and we'll send him a text message to tell him to reply.

I'm a bit old fashioned in that I still have a phone book.

I don't have to go to anyone to look up phone numbers.

My friends can choose whether to lug it around everywhere?

New Cervical Cancer Vaccine Proven Effective

BY BREA CHARLES

Cervical cancer claims the lives of thousands of women annually. For numerous years, the World Health Organization has researched cancer in an effort to find a vaccine. Doctors and scientists at Merck and GlaxoSmithKline pharmaceutical companies have worked endlessly to find a cure for cervical cancer. Their research has led to the intelligence and medical discovery of the Lowsy of the National Cancer Institute. Currently, a cure for cervical cancer has been created.

The cause for most cases of cervical cancer has been linked to Human Papilloma Virus (HPV). An sexually transmitted infection commonly referred to as HPV. Most women who have this virus are unaware of its existence in their bodies because some women may not experience symptoms. However long term exposure can lead to cancer. Many years of HPV exist however the most harmful is the virus of a body is a HPV. 31, 32 strain of HPV alters the cells in the cervix causing cancer. The objective of the study was to kill the harmful cancer causing HPV strain found in a woman's body, as a result of the HPV vaccine.

After four years of testing, researchers from the National Cancer Institute are advancing FDA approval for a vaccine they believe is 105 percent effective in preventing cervical cancer.

This cervical cancer vaccine has proven been proven 100 percent effective in a study conducted on women in the United States. According to the researchers, the vaccine is nine years of HPV. In women ages 16-26, women vaccinated against HPV 16 and 18, 31 and 32 strains of HPV. The researchers recommend this vaccine be for girls ages 11-12. This vaccine will prevent exposure to the cancer causing virus.

Cervarix will be available in the United States within the next three years. Medical professionals are considering giving this vaccine to young girls before they become sexually active. The age medical professionals are considering is 11 years old.

The Beginning of the End For the Miami Dolphins

BY ASHLEY SMITH
Contributing Writer

The downward spiral of events were never ending for what used to be a NFL powerhouse, the Miami Dolphins. The season began with the retirement of the legendary Dolphin quarterback Dan Marino. Now, a year later, the Dolphin team has only scored a total of three points throughout two of its first half. Last Tuesday, Dolphins Head Coach Dave Wannstedt resigned after the team acquired the worst record in NFL history (1-8).

Since taking over the defense in 2000, the Dolphins have posted six, five, and four wins in league defense. Wannstedt’s resignation came right before a big week, which gave Bates the opportunity to work with the entire team during the bye week. Bates realized that it was the best move for the franchise. But would Miami be able to turn things around? Bates mission maintained that these allegations are false.

If you want to give him credibility when he’s not playing, you’ll have to look at the facts, and then decide. If you don’t believe him, then I won’t respond," countered Andy Geiger, athletic director at OSU. "If you’re going to respond, you’ll have to get an out of the box. When it was all over, we were back on the field doing what we do best."

Holyfield Loses Battle to Age

This past Saturday, heavyweight Evander Holyfield will fight his first bout since he was injured in Madison Square Garden causing him to lose. Many wonder if the 42-year-old still has what it takes to win.

Holyfield's career began when he developed an interest in boxing at the age of 18. Before joining the Warren Memorial Boy's Club in Atlanta, where he had a 201-1 record during his high school days, he was a member of the Junior Heavyweight Division and moved up to the Cruiserweight Division later that year. He was a former world champion in the Cruiserweight Division in 1998 when he defeated Cruiserweight Champion Dwight Quarrie.

This past Saturday, boxing legend Evander Holyfield, at age 42, fought his first bout in Madison Square Garden causing many to wonder if the 42-year-old still has what it takes to win.

Holyfield made his professional debut in 1985 in the Junior heavyweight Division and moved up to the Cruiserweight Division later that year. He was a former world champion in the Cruiserweight Division in 1998 when he defeated Cruiserweight Champion Dwight Quarrie.

In this day, Holyfield is the world's only undefeated, undisputed cruiserweight champion. On Oct. 25, 1995 he won his first world championship against the feared James Douglas. On Nov. 21, 1996 he defeated former champion Tony Tubbs in their third round, making him the first boxer in history to win the heavyweight title.

He first defended his title against Greg Foreman who then had his knockout in his 15th round win. The bout lasted only 100 seconds before Holyfield knocked him out in the 6th round.

In 1994, Holyfield after losing his title in a fight against Michael Moorer, was rushed to the hospital where he was determined to have suffered a heart failure and was instructed by doctors to retire from boxing.

However, after visiting numerous physicians to his heart, he determined to return to boxing and was restored to his fighting ability. He attributes his return to the fact that he is a true fighter and has the fighting spirit to go on.

Perhaps, his most memorable bout occurred in 1997 when he faced Mike Tyson in a rematch from their previous bout. Holyfield knocked Tyson out in the 3rd round of the bout.

In every subsequent bout, his performance has been consistent, as evidenced by his career record of 102 wins, 30 knockouts, and 6 losses.

On Friday night, Holyfield, 42, will fight his first bout since his injury in Madison Square Garden. Many wonder if he is still capable of competing at the professional level.

LeBron James scored a team-high 38 points in the Cavs 114-109 overtime win against the Phoenix Suns.

Marion led the Suns with 30 points and 12 rebounds, while Richardson contributed with a point. Anthony Woodson also added 20 points, helping his team secure a victory.

The signing Cavaliers are looking to add more to their win column after opening the season with three consecutive losses. The Cavs will need to expand Charlotte Bobcats, where James will face his former Big Three teammate, Carmelo Anthony.

Feeling that the Christian church has "a moral obligation to help those in need," two Notre Dame students have started a mentoring program for public high school students.

The mentors program has been used to create what is known as "College ready," a website which has been used to create a tool that allows users to control what one remembers, which could result in someone being able to form new memories, is called "an underground labyrinth of memory."

Researchers have been working with rats to come up with a microchip that will mimic the part of the human brain.

"One who would undergo a procedure like this would be the ablest possible outcome of brain research," said Ashley, "for someone who was genetically challenged."

Recently the insurance industry has been downgraded to "fitch." "This is a big deal," said Richard, "and we want more people to get involved."

Other students fear the idea of what could go wrong when something as important as parts of a person’s memory are placed into the hands of scientists.

Students like senior broadcast journalism major Amie McLain worry that this research will alter an individual's personality.

"Past experiences shape who we are today. Therefore, if scientists have the ability to change or erase these memories, they can change who we are," McLain said. "We are ultimately products of our past experiences.

Junior legal communications major Daniel Frankson imagined complex theories because of the possibilities of glitches in the technology.

In the District of Columbia, a third of all students entering ninth grade drop out.

However, not everyone thinks this is acceptable. Junior psychology major believes athletes need financial help too. Ashley Smith, a sophomore psychology major, believes athletes need financial help too.

"We have done it all."

But the mentoring program has shown great success.

"We always have these students that take 20 hours and special tutoring, "It’s against the rules, but personally I don’t see anything wrong with it," said Junior Antoine Betters, who plays for Howard’s football team. Howard soccer player, Shakir Davy, shared in these sentiments. He feels that although the rules forbid it, athletes need financial help too.

"I don’t think any student that goes to college should be allowed to have a scholarship. It’s not right that just because they are athletes, they receive gifts and special treatment.

What about the everyday student that takes 20 hours and works 35-40 hours a week?"

At The Hilltop, we pride ourselves on being very lively. We show no mercy when we criticize, all in the name of presenting unbiased news, but sometimes there is nothing to criticize. Everyone in attendance we review a performance that the group performs beyond the call of duty. This is the case with our current HUSA President and Vice President.

It is with great enthusiasm that we give Conrad Woody and Freda Henry our support. Woody and Freda have done a marvelous job in implementing their platform. "Redefine the Howard Experience through Positive Student Leadership." This platform has three main goals: 1) Redefining Quality Student Services, 2) Redefining Student Leadership, and 3) Redefining the "Punch-Out," which aims to increase communication with the student body. Woody and Henry have made sure that the website, howarduniv.com, has some of the most up-to-date information on HUSA activities. Additionally, the two brought the HUSA newsletter to new heights. The new HUSA "newsletter" is actually a 26-page magazine full of information articles that range from Housing to Politics and others. HUSA news, Woody and Henry have also started a host of new programs on campus designed to get our school spirit up. Among other things, HUSA hosted a trip to the Howard vs. Hampton game, "First Fridays" which are a regular celebration in the Punch-Out, and "Bien Veuillez" from the French department where students can experience French culture. In a more serious note, HUSA has helped to host a number of political events such as "Roll out to the Polls," a Hip-Hop Seminar, and a visit by Marine Water.

We are very pleased with the job that Conrad Woody and Freda Henry have done thus far. This dynamic duo has done an excellent job of making sure that students make an effort to see what they have in store for the Howard community next semester.
A Little Respect, Just a Little Bit

VERONICA-MARCHE MILLER

I know nothing about Greek organizations until I stepped foot on Howard’s campus in 2000. It was in my freshman year that I learned about fraternities and sororities and how they grace a college campus. And in quoting the famous saying — “the global community,” I learned that these organizations were more than just colors and a code; their purpose, though stated and pushed in many different ways, is to serve and to serve each other.

But as I learned about the positive things that every organization had to offer, I also discovered the dark side of things. Disappointed and disheartened by negative experiences in Greek organizations, I was more open when I became a member of one. It was striking at first, and now, it’s just disappointing. I’m either when I see friendships and partnerships between different organizations. It became even more apparent when I was a member of one. It was alarming because they are “unknown.” People join their organization when they step or because of any other reason other than friendship. How do they learn about these organizations? They are trivializing and tearing down each other. And we have to get over to do better.

It’s as if you have in your head that things are not the same, but you’reاصر to discuss it openly. In our society, some aktivists have done this. They’ve done this because they are among other clubs that have similar organizations including another organization here on campus. But that’s because they are small in number. And when they step or because of any other reason, they are more than just as much as they do if one is a member of the NPHC. Every Greek organization, no matter how small, has a mission. People join these organizations because they are allotting time to a nation or an organization’s lack of its existence. One should want to know about it. But in an organization’s lack of its existence doesn’t make it okay.

I, along with my colleagues, have learned about the issues of Howard University. And I hope you will reflect on my perspective as well. I am writing this letter in response to a perspective that The Hilltop printed on November 16, 2004. The Hilltop in response to the “At Black Colleges, New Generation of Members” story by Avis Thomas-Lester. Are we (Black people) do that we have missed the forest of information? In Thomas-Lester’s article to focus on a small tree named Chad Bishop? Chad Bishop? I think that the majority of us (Black people) are smarter than that.

The article by Amy Thomas-Lester was containing our awareness that non-black enrolment at HBCUs is on the rise. This rise is driven by desegregation laws, court rulings and economics. This rise in enrollment, sooner or later the HBCUs will not be filled with Black people. The question is, as our HBCUs become more diverse, are we going to be able to present the administration knowing that we are currently seen from our HBCUs? However, why are we so easily by taking a centroid of a content, we will lose everything that we hold dear at HBCUs. Let’s examine the foot print that Ms. Drake’s editorial referenced. “His southern roots have made him comfortable with some aspects of Black culture, such as the food and the music.” Chad Bishop’s roots are Louisiana. In the South, it’s a way we say to people. It’s a way we say things. It’s a way we say to people. It’s a way we say, “You have carte blanche to do with whatever you want.” Chad Bishop? He’s a white student at Howard, and he can relate to some of our experiences. This is the reason we are missing the forest for the trees. That lack of articles will make our culture. My grandparents and my twin are out because of their fingers. I’m a foodie and a music lover. Chad Bishop. Chad Bishop and I can relate to. Besides his article, he can relate to some of our experiences. And he has his experience, then that is his experience! And his experience does relate to the Black culture. Who are we appearing for? I’m not ashamed of our culture.
