Residents Recognize King Holiday With Control Board Protest

JAMELIA MORRISON

In your District residents, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. holiday is an opportunity to commemorate and celebrate his life.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. Library, located at 12th and U streets NW, hosted avigil on January 20th to commemorate the life and legacy of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

The vigil featured a reading of the “I Have a Dream” speech and a performance of the song “We Shall Overcome.”

The vigil was attended by community members, including Mayor Muriel Bowser and Councilmember David Grosso.

Mayor Bowser delivered remarks on the significance of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.’s contributions to the civil rights movement and the importance of continued progress towards equality.

Representatives from various organizations, including the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and the Washington Freedom Foundation, also participated in the vigil.

The event concluded with a call to action for community members to continue working towards a more just and equitable society.

City Residents Speak Out for Communities

Dawn Kelley

The city must work to ensure that all residents have access to essential services and resources to maintain a healthy and safe community.

The city must prioritize affordable housing, job opportunities, and access to quality education and healthcare.

Kelley emphasized the importance of collaboration between government and community members to address these issues.

She concluded with a call to action for residents to be proactive in advocating for their rights and to hold elected officials accountable for delivering on their promises.

Civil Rights Photographs Invoke Painful Memories

Smithsonian Exhibits Reminders of Nation’s Racist Past

BY KATHY GUTMAN

Crowds of people visiting the Smithsonian’s American History Exhibition find themselves transported back to the days of slavery in films from the 1850s.

Blacks and Whites walk through the ciricle that formed around the question from the ‘70s on civil rights.

The story is told by the people who lived it, through film, artifact, and artifact.

Many of the photographs were taken by Gordon Parks and Matt Herron.

The photographs not only show scenes from King’s march on Washington, D.C. but also a picture of the right to vote.

The right to vote is a right of ALL people, and should be a right of ALL people.

Kelso, who grew up with her two daughters, said that the question of “Who don’t you vote for now?” was a favorite of hers.

That question doesn’t really surprise me, she said. “That is a question that I asked myself when I was thirteen, and I asked myself, ‘Who don’t I vote for now?’”

The question was asked by a group of people who were not registered to vote.

The right to vote is a right of ALL people, and should be a right of ALL people.

Virus Causes Hundreds of Deaths in Kenya

By Karen Thomas

As a result of an outbreak known as the Rift Valley Fever, located in northeastern Kenya, a large number of people have been hospitalized and some have died. The Rift Valley Fever, named after a valley in Kenya, is spread by mosquitoes that bite livestock infected with the disease. Infection in people occurs by mosquito bites or by eating infected meat.

The disease is mainly characterized by high fever, severe pain, and sometimes death. In some cases, it can cause fatal bleeding from the nose and other openings.

The total number of deaths has been confirmed as more than 350, but the World Health Organization said it is "possible that the total number will be higher." According to the WHO, the disease is a potential threat to the region and the world.

Elections Mark Era of NDM

By Kenneth Russell

Hilltop Staff Writer

The Jamaican parliamentary elections, which were held Dec. 10, have called the country's most peaceful democratic process. The first time a government has won three consecutive terms in a single election.

The incumbent Prime Minister, Edward Seaga, and his People's National Party appeared to have gained victory with 47 percent of the vote.

The main opposition, the Jamaica Labor Party, won 25 percent of the vote, while the National Democratic Movement failed to win a seat in parliament.

The Free Assembly is a group of non-affiliated members of parliament, including the RLP (patriot) of central St. Andrew's, which won 11 percent of the vote, and the Jamaica Communist Party, which won 5 percent.

The two main parties, the RLP and the PNP, also called the re-election of the RLP leader.

A major factor in this election was the scandal surrounding the government's handling of the national elections. The government was criticized for suppressing the opposition and for not allowing free and fair elections.

The president is a major political figure in Jamaica, and the election results reflect the country's political landscape.

For many the anticipation is over—1998 is here. But for those who have been waiting, the new year has arrived. The Chinese New Year is celebrated with a festival that lasts for 15 days.

The Chinese festival is based on a combination of lunar and solar calendars. The festival begins on the first day of the month and ends on the eighteenth day. During this time, many cultural traditions are observed.

The new year is similar to Christmas here. We gather with family and celebrate the beginning of a new year.

Guyanese Citizen Gov't Clash Over Presidential Election

By Kenneth Russell

Hilltop Staff Writer

More than four weeks after announcing the results of the presidential elections, the Guyana government has faced criticism from opposition leaders and protesters over the results, which were announced on Jan. 17.

The government declared that Cheddi Jagan, the People's National Congress' presidential candidate, won the election with 47 percent of the vote, while the opposition leader, Desmond Hoyte, received 33 percent.

The two main parties, the PNC and the PPP, have announced that they will contest the results in court, accusing the government of fraud and irregularities.

The Guyana Elections Commission has released the final results of the presidential election, which show that Cheddi Jagan won with 47 percent of the vote, while Desmond Hoyte received 33 percent.

The opposition has accused the government of rigging the election and has called for a recount.

Enrollment Management/Financial Aid Introduces New Form

Effective 14 January 1998, all students submitting documents to EM/Financial Aid must provide a completed Document Receipt Verification Form (in duplicate).

Financial Aid retains the original; students retain their copy.

Students must keep their copy of the Verification Form.

The form is available at the sign-in desk in Room 205 "A" Building.

See enlarged copy of the form below.

The Verification Form is another element in EM’s program to improve customer service and accountability.

Tuition, Housing Increases Unwelcome

One of the biggest concerns that students at the University of every semester is the cost of education. Last week's news of a proposal to increase tuition and housing by 10 percent next year is not welcome.

In Academic Year 1994, when the graduating class left for their last time, the average student body for a private school was $7,130 and for public schools was $3,850. With the proposals from the Board of Trustees and Fiscal Affairs Thomas E. Elsberry, undergraduate tuition for Academic Year 1995 can be as high as $8,750 and graduate tuition $10,800.

In actuality, the increase from last year's tuition is modest - a 5 percent increase in undergraduate and graduate tuition. But since we must question the timeliness and efficacy of the University, we need to look over the issue. Last year's tuition is modest - a 5 percent increase in undergraduate and graduate tuition. But since we must question the timeliness and efficacy of the University, we need to look over the issue. The Board of Trustees should consider more realistic and tangible increases.

The proposals would garner a further $3.6 million. Granting the University's operating budget, this will not solve its problems. It is doubtful this orange slice will show Congress that Howard is becoming less dependent on its federal stipend.

Howard students are woefully aware of all the above concerns. But we must question the timeliness and necessity of these increases. The Board of Trustees is a reflection of the President's office and is in charge of setting general policy making in favor of the students. By raising tuition, the Board of Trustees is directly affecting Howard's students.

The Board of Trustees has raised tuition and fees to a level where Black students within the Black community are going to have to look for private schools or community colleges to pursue their education, according to Howard University's board of trustees.

Howard's tuition is ranked significantly lower than other HBCUs - Howard's tuition is ranked significantly lower than other HBCUs. But since when is University policy making in favor of the students? The University continues to charge costs that inflation has not accurately reflected. Given this information, we hope to see a substantial reduction in tuition for the upcoming academic year.

We seriously doubt it.

The Howard Faculty

In my four year tenure here, I have found Howard to be far better than I have been subjected to abuse, harassment, and intimidation. I have found that in many cases instructors and administrators either fail to uphold the Howard Mission Statement or may simply have refused to read it. I believe this is due to the fact that many do not have time to depart from their once great institution. Some problems in the offices, the tables, and the jazzy band are found in their equipment and their Ryde truck.

The recipients of RU will be summed up in two words: "Harassment Management." If mentioned earlier in this article that Howard is far from a university. I say this because of the educational structure here. It is a facility, thus I have given it the name the Howard Facility because most of the administrators and many of the faculty are in facility.

This article does not address administrative policies or academic programs (e.g., schools and colleges) regularly interact with students. I understand that they have work (we) but what about the students? Many of us have jobs, families, and other responsibilities as well in come work. But we still seem to find time to interact with our other colleagues. Most importantly, we still find time to try to administrate in our offices (or shall I say administration?)

In our case, the Howard Facility is a place where major contributors are present in this place to attend. I challenge the students at Howard to look at this place at all. The close of these functions, did the administrators you sell at the table still remember your name? I challenge students at Howard to confront these administrative at these formal functions.

Questions them in front of these contributors and address your problems and concerns. They are facilities—they facilitate money received, they facilitate office space and they facilitate delight.

This same type of attitude has been imposed on the faculty and staff. Indeed, I have had a few outstanding professors who have periodically stimulated me. They were instructors in the major (not just facilities), but instructors and innovators. One of my instructors summed it up well when she said, "In the past Howard University was the spokesperson for all of Black America.

I thought that and the current motif of Howard is "Leadership for America!"

We need funding, what are we leading and where are we leading whatever we are supposed to be leadership? What is our intellectual stimulation? Are we providing our intellectual stimulation? How much money they could spend.

Ms. Spencer, of many professors, I have had a few outstanding professors. She is a woman who has been subjected to abuse, harassment, and intimidation. We find them still time to try to administrate in our offices, a place where major contributors are present in this place to attend. I challenge the students at Howard to look at this place at all. Black-owned Temp Agencies A wide A Solution To Unemployment

JANET WATSON

Once a decade symbolizing a rebellion of the African American society has become more and more popular through organizing a protest or a boycott. Even more so than that, it is a powerful tool to create consciousness in African America. The Philadelphia-based organization, M.O.V.E. (Movement of the Black) is a leader in this movement. Boykin said that the opportunity to become gainfully employed is essential for the African American community.

"We've placed one ad since we started operating, and we're doing well," said Boykin. "We're right on track. Without a job or money, you can't do anything. People need to have a job and make money to survive."

Winston said it is an acronym for "Satisfied Customers - Ultimate in Quality - Professional Excellence - Service - Reduces Fees Placement."

Some of Superb's biggest job placements are in AT&T, Lucent Technologies and PPG.

Watson said she knows what it takes to succeed in the African American community.

"Technology is the key to success," she said. "Without it, we wouldn't be able to compete with the rest of the world."

Louie is going to try to win. Frogs Louie is rumored to compete in the Super Bowl against State University. Louie has opened up a big lead early and never looked back. During a five minute stretch early in the game, Howard went on a 20-2 run to pull away for good. The Lady Bears didn’t help themselves by shooting 37 percent from the field for the game. When Morgan State wasn’t shooting from the outside, they were turning the ball over, which led to easy fast break buckets for Howard. The Lady Bears forced the Lady Bears into 22 turnovers. Senior forward Althea Hill had another strong ball game. She scored a game high 17 points and was the only Howard wrestler to place in any meet. Howard did not lose back-to-back games to Coppin State this season, it will need its upperclassmen to lead the team. The team did not gel as much as it did last year. "In the next week or two we will adjust to the college style." said coach Mike Ashley. "I'm just glad that we got scoring from other areas. It just shows that we are starting to click as a team," Hunter said. "I think we are all starting to play better and the team is coming together now too, and adjusting to the college style." In fact, Ashley said he doesn’t believe Howard will have any more disappointing performances on the year. "In the next two or two weeks they will adjust to the college style. If the lady Bears play well and they are well off the bench, they will win," said coach Mike Ashley. "But they will be ready," said coach Mike Ashley. "I think they are all starting to play better and the team is coming together now too, and adjusting to the college style." After the road trip, Howard returned to home to take on A&M on Jan. 25 and then on the MEAC on Feb. 2nd. "We’re just taking it one game at a time, but I feel that we will be ready when we get there," said coach Mike Ashley. "I think they are all starting to play better and the team is coming together now too, and adjusting to the college style."
