HUSA Executive Officers Make Good On Promises To Students

By KENYATA MATTHEWS

Hilltop Staff Writer

As Howard University Student Association (HUSA) President Jonathan Hutto and Vice President Sharon Harvey approach the end of their term, they can congratulate themselves for successfully completing campaign promises after struggling to fulfill ten-point plans.

"You really have to account for money and time, 10 points can be difficult," Harvey said, who didn't follow through with her plans.

Hutto and Harvey campaigned under "Nation Time," a platform geared toward an interactive student government, strong student-teacher program and communication between the student body and the administration.

Hutto and Harvey achieved their November to inform students about campus issues.

HUSA also established new volunteer programs, including Student Registration Initiatives and the S-WATCH program, which will not continue next year.

HUSA's Community Outreach Program produces noteworthy events, including the Adams-Morrison Day voter registration drive, Thanksgiving food and clothing drive.

Student Election

Campus Editor

Petitions are in. Candidates have not been certified by the Howard University Student Association. Of have they?

Not according to Easton Moore, the Hilltop's city editor who said the verification process is far from over.

Moore said a conflict with General Assembly Election Committee Chair Dan Darrer Waters and Student Association President Shareef Cousins resulted in his disqualification as a HUSA candidate.

Once public relations director for the committee Cousins, who grew up in New Orleans, was approached by a member of Moore's campaign team.

"I look at the role of campus editor and have a duty to make him feel that there are people out here who are concerned," Cousins said.

"I don't feel he knows that I can get a copy of a policeman for a crime I don't commit, get convicted, go to jail and live on death row and wouldn't have a support team for me. I would just be another Black kid that would be executed," Cousins added.

Cousins, who grew up in New Orleans, was sentenced to death for the murder of a man in a street robbery more than two years ago. When convicted and sentenced, Cousins was 16 years old — making him one of the youngest convicted murderers in the country.

"I have no news about the execution," Cousins said, a lack of contact with those who live there and have a right based on the legal system.

Not until 1987 did Zimbabwe become politically independent of the British. As the British government gave way to a new power, many peasants and farmers were left out.

"If one does not own land it is very hard to compensate, Wilkerson said.

The restoration plan is not that simple, said Cummings. The government will take land from anyone who is contesting the disqualification.

The General Assembly will render the final decision. And while the appeals have been granted, Waters said, "Mr. Moore was initially told the incorrect information and Mr. Waters apologized."}

Controversy Ensues During Student Election Verification Process

Program Receives Mixed Reviews

Zimbabwe Land Restoration Program Received Mixed Reviews

By Von Annie McCAY

Hilltop Staff Writer

Zimbabwe President Robert Mugabe recently began a land redistribution program, which opponents believe led to hundreds of private owners. If a government is to take land from owners, it is very hard to compensate, Wilkerson said. The government is contesting the disqualification of Shareef Cousins, a Black student involved in the HUSA program.

Cousins' support team for Cousins. He is a victim of an injustice ifs usually obvious because more value is placed on a White woman. No one is responding to the calls of those who are on death row.

Grandpa is working to create a support team for Cousins. He learned about the teen through a magazine article and has been trying to get him off death row.

"I want to make him feel that there are people out here who are concerned," Cousins said. "I don't feel he knows that I can get a copy of a policeman for a crime I don't commit, get convicted, go to jail and live on death row and wouldn't have a support team for me. A roof collapse in one of the language labs in Lockle Hall.

"Youth at Risk: Mandatory Drug Accessories and Sentencing - the basic definition of the language and its appeal to prospective students now we are not adequate," Frost said. "I believe there is a need for an attractive campus infrastructure as an appeal to prospective students for the type of learning needed in the 21st century."

"We need a lab that is equipped for the type of learning needed in the 21st century," said James Moody, a sophomore at Howard University.

Frost used improvements in the language lab facilities at Howard University as an example. He said those improvements are required to take a foreign language course and to fill their requirements for admission to particular majors. However, he said the need for an attractive campus infrastructure as an appeal to prospective students now we are not adequate, Frost said. Speak Out! Speak Out! Speak Out! Speak Out! Speak Out!

A wild media frenzy surrounding allegations of a sex scandal involving President Bill Clinton, has recently called into question the integrity of journalism. When the story broke two weeks ago, the public was constantly bombarded with updates. The networks all claimed to lead the investigation, but has it been an overkill? But Clinton now has high popularity ratings. As a nation, can we separate the man from the message? The Hilltop asked students whether the media attention should dedicate so much attention to the scandal.

"Clinton is like a player and the Republicans are the players—therefore, they're playing the game in front of us," said Kevin Bishop, freshman African-American studies major.

"He needs to take care of world affairs, instead of being approached with this, which is none of our business in the first place. What he does behind closed doors is his business," said Sarju Bharucha, junior biology major.

"I don't think it's serious at all. Because he's a liberal, a democrat and young. People identify with that, but the Republicans don't want to make this an 'our generation' society. Everything he does is being blown out of proportion," said Alonzo Hazel, freshman African-American studies major.

"I think it's none of our business. If I was in the White House, I'd realize it's none of our business," said formika Price, sophomore international business major.

Land Restoration Program Receives Mixed Reviews In Zimbabwe

From ZIMBABWE, A1

make real rehabilitation is another one of the worst areas in the world, where millions of people are suffering from poverty and starvation. The government has been mentioned as one of the most corrupt in the world. The program should be improved. In the context of the present situation, the government should be more focused on helping the poor and eliminating corruption.

Some say that those who do not have land in Zimbabwe are not involved in the program. The government should make efforts to improve the situation.

Toni Morrison Delights Church With Old Fashioned Story Time

By Angela Morrison

The Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church, located at 1500 M Street, N.W., was filled with the sound of an audience of over 700 people who were listening to "Paradise," an old-fashioned story told by author Toni Morrison's voice.

The auditorium was filled with the sound of 700 people who were listening to "Paradise," an old-fashioned story told by author Toni Morrison. Morrison, speaking to the audience, said, "I love the characters she creates," and "She's the type of person that people find interesting." Morrison's voice moved closer to the audience and soothed the audience.

The Original 'Rocket Man' Returns To Orbit
Former Astronaut John Glenn Goes Back Into Outer Space

BY CHARLES HARRINGTON

As a boy growing up in Cambridge, Ohio, John Glen, D-Ohio, as a result of the Gravity Space Shuttle Discovery. He at the age of 77, will be the oldest man in space. The launch is scheduled for 6:55 a.m. ET on Thursday, Oct. 31, 2009.

"John Glenn's flight will provide a unique opportunity to study the effects of space flight on cardiovascular functions in an older individual." — Richard Cohen, Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor

For four consecutive years (1962-1965), Glenn carried the serves other-symptoms such as heart palpitations, shortness of breath, dizziness, and nausea. It can also cause severe pain and interfere with sleep. These symptoms can sometimes occur regularly when using computers, it is best to consult a physician, Orr said.

"Because we don't use chemicals, there is no need for the chemical training," she said. "If you want to go to school to learn, that's OK, but we have been braiding our hair for centuries." Aisha Toure of the African Braiding Center agrees with Fatima. Toure, a native of the Ivory Coast, braids in a salon that only offers braiding services.

"There are very few people who can afford the price of training, there should be some regulation. "Braiders should be taxed and licensed like regular cosmetologists," she said. "They should have some knowledge of bacteriology. They should also know sanitation and sterilization.

The braiders argue that licenses should not be required since braiders are fighting the local governments.

"We have always been in love with our hair, and we have always been able to do it ourselves," Fennell said. "If you want to go to school to learn, that's OK, but we have been braiding our hair for centuries."

These injuries have been a source of debate among African-American hairdressers and public health officials.

"Because of the limited amount of knowledge needed to braid, it is a very easy task," said Fatima, who grew by her first name only. "As a cosmologist, you must know the anatomy of the scalp, how it works in conjunction with the body."

These injuries have been a source of debate among African-American hairdressers and public health officials.

"People of color have been braiding hair for centuries," Fennell said. "If you want to go to school to learn, that's OK, but we have been braiding our hair for centuries."

Aisha Toure of the African Braiding Center agrees with Fatima. Toure, a native of the Ivory Coast, braids in a salon that only offers braiding services.

"I saw her work and I liked it," she said. "Black women have been using braids for so long, the government just wants another way to make money off of us."

However, Fatima and other braiders are not sure that going through rigorous training, there should be some regulation. "Shoulders can be taxed and licensed like regular cosmetologists," she said. "They should have some knowledge of bacteriology. They should also know sanitation and sterilization."

National Theatre Ensures Mondays Are Something to Look Forward To

By Mark Jeinnious

There were 18 people present in the Helen Hayes Gallery section of the National Theatre on a Monday last week at the 7:30 p.m. performance of "Blues For An Alabama先进". The play by Tennessee Williams and directed by Jerry Zaks, a well-known director, was well-received by the audience.

The play is a series of monologues and duologues that explore the lives of various characters in a small Southern town. The audience was captivated by the actors' performances and the overall atmosphere of the play.

The National Theatre has decided to ensure that Mondays are something to look forward to by presenting a series of special events on the first Monday of each month. These events will include performances, workshops, and discussions related to the arts.

"I'm excited to be a part of this new project," said Zaks. "It's a great way to bring in new audiences and create a sense of community among our patrons."

The first event in the series will be a performance of "Blues For An Alabama advance" on Monday, February 10 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available now through the National Theatre's website.

For more information on the National Theatre's new series, visit www.nationaltheatre.org.

The Woolly Mammoth Theatre Company presents "The Gene Pool" for one last weekend, ending Sunday. The play concerns a couple of loving rooms and their 18-year-old son, as he begins to wonder who his father is. Show times are Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. Tickets range between $12 and $28. For more information, call (202) 467-4600. The Kennedy Center is located at 600 F St. N.W.

The Freer Gallery of Art is displaying the exhibit "Ansel Adams, A Legacy," a photography exhibit now at the National Museum of American Art. This exhibit features one of the best known American landscape photographers and includes more than 100 prints, which will run through March 29. For more information, call (202) 357-2767. Admission is free. The museum is located at Eighth and G Streets, N.W.

The Museum of African Art is currently exhibiting "A Spirt of History: A Carved Ivory Tusks," a unique display that includes photographs and documentation of the collection. The exhibit will be on display through March 15, and will be followed by "Pillar of Fire," the book that tells the story of the 1960s Civil Rights Movement. The museum is located at 14th Street and P Street, N.W.

The Library of Congress is located at 101 Independence Ave., S.W.

STUDY ABROAD
THROUGH THE
COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

STRESSED AND CONFUSED?

If College of Arts and Sciences, together with the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE), the American Councils of Teachers of Russian, and the American Council for Economic Development Education (ASEE), has incorporated a study abroad initiative which will afford you opportunities to pursue courses of study in almost every part of the world.

- Already, the College has alliances with institutions in South Africa and Germany. It is in the process of developing alliances with several institutions in Japan, Spain, Korea, the Czech Republic, as well as with the University of the West Indies and the American University in Egypt.

- The College provides a cadre of experienced resource personnel, i.e., faculty and staff who have traveled extensively and who either are natives of or have lived and worked in the countries in which you might be interested. This cadre of individuals will assist you in developing proposals for establishing contacts abroad.

- The College is also the place to come if you are interested in applying for grants to study and travel abroad.
   These workshops will assist you in developing competitive proposals and applications for funding. Through the College, you may apply for the Fulbright Scholarship, the National Science Foundation (NSF) Grants, the Lucey E. Moten
   Scholarships, to name only a few.

- The College has had success: Since 1991, eight Fulbright Scholars have received NSF awards.

- Come to Locke Hall, Suite 101 and sign up for the workshops. See either Ms. Janice McCain or Dr. Paul E. Logan.

Lady Bison Basketball Team Cruise To Win Against Bethune-Cookman
Alisha Hill Breaks 1,000 Rebound Mark

By Marcus Matthews

By Marcus Matthews

One of the key components of a successful basketball team is rebounding. And it’s a thing that the Lady Bison do well, it is a tradition.

Howard (12-5, 3-7 MEAC) enjoyed a 54-37 rebound advantage in cruising to its eighth straight MEAC victory with a 76-51 win over Bethune-Cookman (12-5, 3-7 MEAC), Saturday.

"We continued the rebound early and just continued to work hard," said Senior for Howard head coach, Corderre Hall. Hill led the team with a game high of 17 points and 13 rebounds.

"I just want to focus on having fun and rebounding and I'm just happy with the win," said Hill.

Howard head coach, Corderre Hall, continued to work hard. "The Bison are a very good team and we played like a team tonight." Hill was just 101 points shy of the 2000 point mark at Howard University. Women's Basketball team.

MEAC Matchup

The Howard Bison came into its MEAC matchup with Bethune-Cookman on a low, losing two straight and four of five. But Howard, the last of the winners with a 16-16 tie with a 12-3 MEAC record, Saturday.

"It's a great accomplishment that I'll probably be able to enjoy more after the season is over." Hill said.

The Bison offense was a little bit more aggressive in the second half. Howard (12-5, 10-1 MEAC) topped that by shooting over 40 percent. "If we can get the rebounds on the inside, we can go deep," said McIndoe, Howard head coach.
