President H. Patrick Swygert, during a town hall meeting Tuesday, committed the university to reviewing the current suspension policy in light of the student's right to immediate suspension from the university board of trustees, and repeatedly stressed students' rights.

Under the proposed revision, President H. Patrick Swygert and the House of Delegates of Student Services, VincentJoyner, reserves the right to immediately suspend from the university student who skips a class—even the alleged offenses charged by the state, local or Federal authorities.

During Tuesday's town hall meeting, several student groups proposed the possibility of a new initiative to draft broad revisions to the Student Code of Conduct.

Amid Secrecy, A Department Fights for Reaccreditation

By RAFI DAVIS

In recent months, a series of events has mandated the university's Department of Recreation, Dance, Film and Television as one of its financial and management issues. When Department of Recreation, Dance, Film and Television's" student leaders were suspended from class and campus, leaving students in the dark about the university's plans for the future, the university's administration decided to suspend the department until further notice. In response, the university's student leaders are now calling for an open meeting with university administration to discuss the suspension and the future of the department.

President H. Patrick Swygert, during a town hall meeting Tuesday, committed the university to reviewing the current suspension policy in light of the student's right to immediate suspension from the university board of trustees, and repeatedly stressed students' rights.
African Students Hope to Create Bond Between Continents

By NKOSE CETELWAO

Arising to boost in student-organized events, the Howard University African Student Association, such as many other organizations that have sprung up this year in the school, is looking to bond people of African descent with students and faculty of African American ancestry in Howard's campus.

One of the focal points of the group's new Work, during which seminars and sessions about issues facing people of African descent will be downed and held in one place thatwelcome any one on the basis of their ethnic origin.

The Association Vice President, Dr. lauren K. Jayne, a psychology major, said that the group is named in honor of Mrs. Clementine Littlejohn, the founder of the Association's Welfare Office.

The Association's aim is to be a forum for discussion and a platform for the expression of ideas and views.

WHBC Preparates for New Season Amid Financial Questions

By LYNN SIMMONDS

WHBC (102.5 FM), the Howard University student radio station, is preparing for the new season amid financial questions. But despite the financial issues, WHBC officials said that they remain optimistic about the future.

WHBC has a strong base of listeners, and its programming covers a wide range of topics, from music to news and sports.

WHBC has a long tradition at Howard, having been established in 1968. It has been a source of entertainment and information for students and alumni alike.

In order to continue its mission of providing quality entertainment and information, WHBC needs to raise funds to support its programming.

WHBC's station manager, Dr. James Taylor, said that the station is working to increase its listener base and to attract new listeners.

WHBC will continue to cover local and national news, as well as to provide entertainment through its programming.

WHBC's commitment to providing quality entertainment and information to its listeners will continue to be a priority for the station.
State Clubs Hit the Yard With Big Plans

By KIMMITHY K. BROWN

State clubs were started at Howard University to "encourage social cohesion among students from the same geographical location, and mutual interests to get involved in campus activities and co-curricularly service programs." Clubs such as The Louisiana Club (Society of Students among students from the same geographical location, and motivating gumbo and red beans and rice will be served.

"I don't feel that Bill Clinton should be impeached. Impeaching him would be judging him on what he does behind closed doors."

—Anton Carter, sophomore

"Definitely not, he has done nothing that merits impeachment. What he's done is in his personal life is none of our business."

—Janelle Jefferson, senior

Proposed Code Changes Judicial Policy

CODE, from A1

Code, said the language used in the legislative process is "far-reaching." "There are a lot of ambiguities here," said Howard University Student Association Vice President Mitchell Welch. "As students, we need to go through it [the code] with a fine-toothed comb.

Richardson and several other students in Tuesday's House Hall Meeting quickly pointed out a segment of the proposed Code, which in the agenda of someone's meeting of the House Student Council could be approved in such a way that they would not even be able to go to the University. "From what I've been told by RA's," said one of the students, "the right to drink alcohol.

The revised code varies largely from the five-page Code of Conduct now circulated in the House. "I believe Williams still has it in his head to close UDC or turn it into a two-year college," Lewis said, "but he needs a school they can afford to go to," she said.

Hillary Lewis, a junior business major, UDC is the only school in the district with the exception of Southwest University that offers in-state tuition. The current tuition is $129 per credit for undergraduate and $329 per credit for graduate students. "A lot of the students here don't have the grades, money, or know how to go to other schools, and closing our school would just throw students into the streets," said Lewis. Shante Russell, a 20-year-old junior at Bowie State, said that while she never considered UDC during her college search, it is still considered about the university's future.

"I think we should stay open," said the student, "because low-income-area students need a school they can afford to go to," he said.

"The new chair bad proposed major equipment spending to make the transition to digital technology in film, television and radio," said the letter, "the entire run will fall on the administration," the letter said.
Recycling Returns to the District

BY JAMYE E. SPILLER
Hilltop Staff Writer

About 70 to 75 percent of the trash in District homes is recyclable waste and recyclables. Glass, metal, beverage containers, plastic containers, aluminum foil, paper, and telephone books will be able to be recycled. Recyclables do not have to be sorted, but all containers must be washed out. “All paper should be tied together or placed in paper bags,” residents should recycle their pickup days during the first week of October. The recycling pickup will run at the same time as the trash pickup.

The first phase of the residential recycling program, service will be provided to households that will be involved. This does not include the apartment buildings and office buildings of the District. Residents should receive their recycling bins and notification of the pickup days during the first week of October. The recycling pickup will run at the same time as the trash pickup.

Currently, only 25 percent of the homes in the District have pickup twice a week. According to the Common Information Technology, all commercial buildings, including apartment and office buildings, are required to file recycling programs with the Department of Public Works in compliance with this District's recycling laws.

During the first phase of the residential recycling program, service will be provided to households that will be involved. This does not include the apartment buildings and office buildings of the District.

Recycling in the District of Columbia began in October 19th, after an almost two year cancellation in December of 1996 when less than 15 percent of the District's households participated in recycling.

The recycling program will begin in each stage by providing service to 102,000 households in the District.

Primary Elections Bring New Faces

District Mayoral candidates in the November 3rd elections, despite the low voter turnout in the Democratic primaries.

According to the D.C. Board of Elections, only 31 percent of the city's voters, voted in the primaries. The poll was taken during the early part of the election day and is the lowest turnout in a primary since this decade. Candidate Republican Mayoral candidate, Carol Schwartz, said “I have remained responsive through all my elected years.”

Schwartz who is an at-large member of the D.C. Council, thinks that she is very qualified for the position of mayor and will be elected on November 3rd. “I have the experience and leadership skills necessary to guide this city” Schwartz is 56 years old and has lived in the District for more than 30 years. She is qualified that she will defeat Williams in the November 3rd elections. Schwartz ran against Marion Barry in 1994.

Williams, the winner of last month's Democratic primary election, won with 55 percent of the votes. Running in support of Williams, District resident Richard Phillips said, “I think Schwartz is going to win,” said District resident Thomas Redd.

He thinks that it is because Schwartz's strong political background that she is going to win. Redd said, “Schwartz gave Marion Barry a run for his money and she is doing the same for Williams.”

South Africa's First Family arrived in America during the week, and President Nelson Mandela has fast played host to students of all ages, leaving students to wonder if the visit was an opportunity for future generations of South Africans and Americans to understand each other.

The state opened its first trade mission in South Africa's budget, with the majority of its members associated with the opposition party and the National Assembly Party. With the company, with the majority of its members associated with the opposition party and the National Assembly Party, the company has called for an end to the government's financial activities. The first investigation of its kind, the audit has already revealed evidence of significant underfunding in South Africa's budget, and a warrant for the company's action in connection with a terrorist group.

"This is consistent by letting students say, 'I don't want to lose my identity,'" said Vannessa M. Stell, an assistant professor in the Department of Personnel Management. It shows that health insurance for workers will increase by 10 percent in 1999, the highest increase since 1999. People who are working and paying health insurance are finding that health costs are increasing when health cost increases it is not fair to the poor society who can barely sustain themselves. As the voucher program is designed to keep students in schools if the student cannot pay for health insurance, this provision is designed to keep students in schools if the student cannot pay for health insurance. It is not fair to the poor society who can barely sustain themselves. It also means an additional expense for the poor. It is sad how the country is making a profit on people's health. When health cost increases, the poor people will not be able to pay for neither their doctor bill nor prescription drugs," Stell said.

BRIANNA PROCTOR

Whither the Congressional Black Congress?

I'm on the pro-choi ne side of this issue. I have no argument that abortion is a legal and justified procedure. It is a sad fact of life that even if one\'s way of life is absolutely perfect, it is not an easy choice to make. I don\'t believe that any simple solution will make abortion issues go away. Even if one\'s way of life is absolutely perfect, it is not an easy choice to make. I don\'t believe that any simple solution will make abortion issues go away.

As a medical student, I have witnessed the emotional pain and suffering that women and their families endure when choosing to have an abortion. It is a decision that is not made lightly, and it is one that should be approached with sensitivity and care. The immediate benefits of abortion are not to be underestimated, but it is important to recognize that the benefits of abortion are not limited to reproductive health. Abortion is a tool that can be used to prevent unintended pregnancies, which can have serious negative consequences for both individuals and society.

I believe that abortion should be a choice that is available to all women, without restriction or judgment. It is a decision that should be made in private, with the support of loved ones, and with the guidance of a trusted health care provider. Abortion is not a decision that should be made lightly, but it is a decision that should be made with the support of the people who care about and love us.

I believe that abortion should be a choice that is available to all women, without restriction or judgment. It is a decision that should be made in private, with the support of loved ones, and with the guidance of a trusted health care provider. Abortion is not a decision that should be made lightly, but it is a decision that should be made with the support of the people who care about and love us.

As a medical student, I have seen the pain and suffering that women and their families endure when choosing to have an abortion. It is a decision that is not made lightly, and it is one that should be approached with sensitivity and care. The immediate benefits of abortion are not to be underestimated, but it is important to recognize that the benefits of abortion are not limited to reproductive health. Abortion is a tool that can be used to prevent unintended pregnancies, which can have serious negative consequences for both individuals and society.

Innocents Lost

We should have seen it coming. On Monday of this week, North Korea, implicated in the so-called "lunch theft" of its experimental satellite-Chang Dong-1, Admiral Mong, crossing through international waters and into the Pacific Ocean, unveiled its second nuclear weapon. The announcement, rife with boasts and threats of further provocations, was a clear and unequivocal signal that the era of nuclear disarmament is over.

The United Nations Security Council promptly condemned North Korea's actions, but the response has been tepid at best. The Security Council has imposed economic sanctions, which are likely to have little impact on North Korea's ability to continue its nuclear program. The international community must do more to pressure North Korea to abandon its nuclear weapons program and return to the negotiating table.

A Tale of Two Marches

This Labor Day weekend will bring football games, outdoor concerts, and, for the first time in years, student demonstrations. But for progressively minded black and latte-sipping students across the country, their marches will not be about the upcoming National Football League season. This Labor Day Weekend, the Million Youth Movement and the Million Youth March will hit the streets to call attention to the issues of young people of color.

The Million Youth Movement, founded in 1924, is an organization that has a long history of advocating for the rights of black and latinx youth. Its founders, including Marcus Garvey, were leaders in the fight for black liberation and have left a lasting legacy of social justice activism.

He doesn't say he's classy, with a laid-back rhythm and attitude. His Taps, Step, and Styles column in Vibe Magazine adds student interest to a city, a genre known for its toughness. The 25-year-old man is a musician, writer, and actor. He is known for his work with the upcoming film, "Life," directed by Spike Lee.

Malone was born in 1972 in New York City. His father, James, was a musician and his mother, Deborah, was a nurse. He attended the New York City School for the Arts, where he studied acting and directing.

Malone has appeared in several films and television shows, including the upcoming film, "Life." He has also written several poems and short stories, some of which have been published in literary journals.

Malone is a frequent contributor to the "Black History Month" column in the newspaper, "The Black Voice." He has written several articles on African-American culture, history, and politics.

Malone is currently working on a novel, "The Black Man's Journey," which will be published by Random House in 2000. He is also working on a screenplay for a television series, "The Black Man's World," which he hopes to have produced by 2001.

Malone is a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and the National Organization for the Reform of Criminal Law (NORC).

From Gang-Banger to CEO, Michael Concepcion Beats the Odds

By JENNIFER ANDERSON

In the days when bankruptcy becomes ordinary for music artists, the story of how one band goes from obscurity to success every bit the claim. The group, which has achieved success despite financial challenges, is the subject of a new documentary.

34-year-old Concepcion is CEO of the Los Angeles-based record label, Grand Jury Entertainment, and is one of the industry's most influential people. He has worked with artists such as Ice Cube, Snoop Dogg, and, most recently, as a producer for T-Pain, who produced the hit song "Climax." Concepcion has also produced for artists such as Browns tone, K-Ci and JoJo.

The documentary, "From Gang-Banger to CEO," explores Concepcion's journey from the streets of Los Angeles to the top of the music industry. It follows his rise from a young man selling drugs to a successful record producer and CEO.

The documentary is directed byTimestamp Director, a Los Angeles-based film production company. The film features interviews with Concepcion and other industry insiders, as well as footage of Concepcion working on various music projects.

"From Gang-Banger to CEO" will be released in theaters nationwide on October 1, 2023. For more information, visit www.fromgangbanger.com.

Movie Review: Rush Hour

By JOHN-JOHN WILSON

In the past, Jackie Chan movies have often been known for their action sequences and comedic relief. But with "Rush Hour," Chan proved he could also deliver a serious performance.

In the film, Chan plays Detective Chris Carter, a Los Angeles police officer who is tasked with bringing down the notorious crime boss, Mr. Fuji. Despite the odds against him, Carter is determined to bring down the criminal mastermind.

"Rush Hour" is a fast-paced film that has non-stop death-defying stunts and hilarious comedy. Director Peter Chau delivers a film that manages to balance action and humor, making it a must-see for any fan of Jackie Chan.

Overall, "Rush Hour" is a film that is not only entertaining, but also a testament to the talent of Jackie Chan. A must-see for fans of action, comedy, and cinema in general.
Noreaga Delivers a "Thugged Out" Performance

By SYLVA ADUBA-BARBER

Staff Writer

In the cramped main floor of the Ritz nightclub last Thursday night, rapper and producer Noreaga gave an enthusiastic performance to a packed house.

Noreaga is best known for his hit single "Thugged Out," which was released in 2003.

The audience was energized by Noreaga's high-energy performance, which included several of his other popular songs such as "Body in the Trunk" and "Super Thug." He also performed the title track from his current album, "N.O.R.E."

Noreaga's performance was accompanied by visuals that added to the overall experience, creating a cohesive and immersive experience for the audience.

Noreaga's setlist included a mix of his latest tracks and classic hits, catering to both the older heads in the crowd and the younger fans.

Throughout the performance, Noreaga interacted with his fans, acknowledging their support and creating a sense of community.

In conclusion, Noreaga's "Thugged Out" Performance at the Ritz Club was a success, showcasing his talent and leaving a lasting impression on the audience.

Upcoming Leagues Threaten NCAA

By ERONY D. WHITE

The National Collegiate Athletic Association just may need to prepare to receive some competition. As a way to make within college athletics, the NCAA has managed to remain a powerful force over the years by taking college men's and women's sports. However, this may change as more leagues begin to compete with the NCAA.

Howard University offers so many choices. Opportunities for the mind to be challenged, enlightened, and expanded. Opportunities for the body to be shaped, molded, and explored. A brilliant tapestry of clubs, groups, and assemblies overwhelmed and delineated "Howard Experience," without the myriad and majestic existence of our fraternal organizations or the elegant and gracious presence of our beloved sororities, Howard would lack a special ingredient. If James couldn't "represent" what makes their locality unique, what would HU be like? If the UGSA or the GSA didn't present before many educational and entertaining programs, one could not even imagine the state of student life at our cherished Mecca. The Campus would lack a particular and necessary heroic and dramatic activism if HU SA never existed. Just attempt to envision a Howard gathering or freshman orientation without the crazy antics and friendly dispositions of the Campus Pals. From the Bison to the Hilltop, where would our university be without the thought provoking commentaries and mentally enriching stories in the Hilltop or imagine never being able to witness the photographic wizardry and real time autobiographical sketch that is our Bison. Thankfully we don't have to imagine a University void of these vital additions to activities because we are at Howard University. And at HU, the menu is everything!

Howard University is unlike any other university in the world. The people, the atmosphere, and the experience, not only build character, determination, and dignity, but also build compassion for others, empathy and understanding, and a sense of togetherness between each member of the extended Howard Family. One cannot visit this campus and not leave forever changed. One cannot ignore the sights, sounds and feeling that is our beloved alma mater.

So, as you can surely see the restaurant is open for business! We provide the entrée, table, and, in some cases, even pick up the check! However, it is up to YOU to decide on the many delicacies and offerings we've placed on your plate. A balanced diet of education, enrichment, and enlightenment. Prepare to feed your mind, your body and your soul on ALL that Howard has to offer. 'Cause on the HU menu...everything! Bon Appetit!

Dionne Randall: Stepping Up the Ladder to Success

By ERONEY D. WHITE

Hilltop Staff Writer

Although Dionne Danielle Randall, a 22-year-old fashion major, enjoys seeing her designs on the runway and in stores, she is interested in getting where her skills in the industry may take her.

Guided by the advice of a friend, Randall transferred during her sophomore year from the University of Missouri to Howard, to prepare to enhancement her skills in fashion.

“A friend in Howard did not feel that I wasn’t getting all that I could from the University of Missouri,” said Randall.

Dionne became interested in fashion when she was a little girl playing with Barbie dolls. Her father, a painter, introduced her to art and inspired her to develop her creative side. She also gained inspiration from her mother; who she says was a “very trendy dressing.” Those influences instilled her interest in fashion and helped her toward her goal. Unlike most aspiring designers, who look to their family members in New York City, Randall looks to the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising (FIDM) in Los Angeles, Calif., upon graduating from Howard.

“People always put the idea of going to New York, but to me, California touched upon the fashion industry and can do many aspects of computers in retail, as knickbockers was the number one response follow- trends this summer have appeared one too many times.
