SCOPE NOTE

The papers of Max Yergan (1892 - 1975) missionary, educator, civil rights activist, and sociologist are in 12 series: personal papers; family materials; correspondence; writings by Yergan; speeches by Yergan; writings by others; speeches by others; organizational affiliations; research files; photographs; subject files; artifacts. The bulk of this collection is made up of Yergan's writings, which span his entire career 1917 to 1968. Photographs include some portraits of Yergan. There are images of Yergan with notable figures such as Eleanor Roosevelt, Mary Mcleod Bethune and Prime Minister Nehru of India.

The family papers contain correspondence from his four children: Frederick, Mary Max Jr., and Charles. There is also school records, graduation programs, and medical information. The writings and speeches by Yergan chronicle his intellectual evolution. In April 26 1941, Yergan speaks to the issue of education and information afforded American students in speech entitled School and Community in Defense of Democracy. In his writings, Yergan's resignation from the Council on African Affairs addresses charges of communist sympathizing. In writings and speeches by others there is material from Mary McCleod Bethune, William F. Buckley George Schuyler and others. The collected speeches of others contain insight about South Africa and the Bandung Conference in 1955.

His organizational affiliations range from the Anti-Communist Book Club general membership to materials on the Council of African Affairs of which he was a co-founder. Especially rich is the African Studies Association, Inc. Bulletin from 1960 to 1962. This publication contains articles discussing African and African American scholarship and leadership in the academe, society and government.

Yergan's popularity in African countries such as South Africa, Ghana, Kenya and Katanga in the Congo is reflected in the numerous editorials written by and about his scholarship. His career began in 1917 when he first went to Eastern Africa. He eventually spent 17 years in South Africa. His presence in South Africa was instrumental in forming his scholarly analysis on colonial studies. From 1937 to 1939 he was a lecturer in Negro and African History for College of the City of New York.

In the area of subject files, Yergan's collection is a composite of government publications such as Ghana Today, Liberia Today, News from South Africa, Information Service of South Africa and South African Scope. Also of special interest is printed religious material, including the Congo Mission News, a Presbyterian publication from 1951 to 1955 and L'Evangelism 1950 to 1959. In addition, there is printed material on colonial Africa.

The papers were donated by his daughter, Mary Yergan Hughes, on October 7, 1977. The collection comprises 10 linear feet.
