RALPH J. YOUNG PAPERS

Collection 29-1 to 29-5

Prepared by:
Wilda Logan Willis
December 1984

Scope Note

Dr. Ralph Jonathan Young (1893-1968) physician and civic leader served the East Baltimore community for over 48 years. The papers donated by his daughter, Dr. Lois Young in 1975, totals six linear feet and reflect Dr. Young's medical and civic work throughout his career. The collection dates from 1902-1970s.

Included among the papers of Dr. Young are letters and news-clippings documenting his activities in fighting for equality and justice. Dr. Young wrote to senators, governors, and editors of newspapers to address his concerns. He spoke out against inequality and segregation in the medical field, education, and recreation. His commitment and civic mindedness led to his candidacy for Baltimore's City Council in 1951. The collection documents this campaign.

Dr. Young was well respected by the Baltimore community, and in response to his efforts he was awarded many certificates and honors. The collection includes many of these honors. Also noteworthy in the collection is the photographs which highlight Dr. Young's career, his early life and family.
