High School Massacre Raises Concern

Tragedy not limited to urban areas, students say

By: Terrence K. Brown

Friday, April 23, 1999

Like a nonstop roar, the boom of gunfire and screams of students exploded in the quiet hallways of Columbine High School. Two students, Eric Harris and Dylan Klebold, began firing at teachers and students.

"It's the worst thing that's happened to me," said Soraya Rodriguez, a senior at the school. "I'm not sure if I want to graduate."

"It happened in my school," said Jennifer Johnson, a junior at the school. "I'm not sure if I want to go to school.

The senseless shooting and bombing by two students in the town of Littleton, Colorado, ripped through the school. The vitality of the community was broken.

"I'm not sure if I want to live," said Michael Smith, a sophomore at the school. "I'm not sure if I want to breathe.

During the gun rage, students were forced to hide in the hallways, where they were warned to stay put. Some students were forced to stay put.

"I'm not sure if I want to stay," said Samantha Taylor, a junior at the school. "I'm not sure if I want to stay put.

The shooting killed 13 people, including two students and a teacher. The shooting also wounded 24 others.

"I'm not sure if I want to be," said James McIntyre, a junior at the school. "I'm not sure if I want to be alive.

Faculty Senate Election Procedures Stir Debate

By KEVIN M. HILL

With its two controversial election results and continuing questions about faculty vote turnout, the Faculty Senate continues to see its outdated election process come under scrutiny.

The election by the Board of Trustees, after a failed two-year effort to develop the faculty's preferred mail-in ballot system, was felt to be so unfair that the Board began a review of the Faculty Senate's function, and a subsequent special election was held to fill the two seats that were up for grabs.

The answer to these inquiries can be summed up: The current limiting process of allowing only those who have attended meetings to vote has been deemed unfair, and a more inclusive system is needed.

Once again, low faculty turnout and objections regarding low faculty voter turnout, the Faculty Senate must consider changes to its procedures.

The Board of Trustees began a review of the Faculty Senate's procedures, and a subsequent special election was held to fill the two seats that were up for grabs.

The current limiting process of allowing only those who have attended meetings to vote has been deemed unfair, and a more inclusive system is needed.

According to the results of the current election process, 106 faculty members voted, representing 22.5 percent of the 471 eligible voters.

The answer to these inquiries can be summed up: The current limiting process of allowing only those who have attended meetings to vote has been deemed unfair, and a more inclusive system is needed.

A corporation, Fami le Inc., has been involved in the case.

A Roll-Call Vote for a Bill on Children's Cognitive Development

By KEVIN M. HILL

The Board of Trustees has approved the legislation that would change the current mail-in ballot procedure to a more inclusive system.

A bill on children's cognitive development, introduced by Rep. N.S. Gopaul-McNicol, has been approved by the Board of Trustees.

The legislation, which passed with a 4-0 vote, would change the current mail-in ballot procedure to a more inclusive system.

International Students Rise as Leaders at Howard

LEADERS, from A1

The student government at Howard University in Washington, D.C., has been the source of national attention in recent months as the school's student body has experienced a surge in leadership positions. This trend is significant, given the diversity of Howard's student body, which includes students from across the United States and the world. The recent rise in student leaders at Howard is a testament to the school's commitment to fostering a diverse and inclusive community.

National Programs Aim for Diversity in Admissions

By Michelle Eriyem
Gayna Cherepinsky

African National Congress (ANC) members and supporters of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) in South Africa have accused the government of failing to meet its obligations under the 1995 Constitution. The TRC, established to investigate gross human rights violations during the apartheid era, was to report its findings by the end of 1993. However, the report was not released until the end of 1994, and its implementation has been slow and controversial. Critics have accused the government of delaying implementation in order to avoid addressing issues that could lead to political instability. The TRC's recommendations include reparations for victims of human rights abuses, amnesty for former apartheid-era officials, and the creation of a Truth and Reconciliation Commission. The government has been criticized for its slow implementation of the TRC's recommendations, and there are concerns about the effectiveness of the process.

Consensus Vital for Constitution

By Judi Swartz

The American Constitution, the nation's foundational document, was ratified on September 17, 1787, in Philadelphia. The Constitution was written by a diverse group of delegates who represented different interests and viewpoints. The document contains 27 amendments, known as the Bill of Rights, which guarantee individual liberties and limit the powers of the federal government. The Constitution has been in effect for over 230 years and has been the subject of ongoing debate and interpretation. The American Constitution has been influential in shaping constitutional law in other countries, particularly in Latin America. The document's provisions have been widely debated and interpreted, leading to numerous constitutional challenges and judicial decisions. The Constitution is a living document, and its interpretation continues to evolve as society and circumstances change.

Are Marches Still Effective?

The scenarios of many Negro spirituals can be traced to today's attacks. Crowds of people gather on the streets, singing and staging songs like “We Shall Overcome” in protest. Protests and marches are nothing new. They are not something that started in the latter half of the century, nor did they end with the 1960s civil rights movement.

The missions and causes may often differ, but the idea of “fighting the powers that be, but not being cast aside as casualties” has been around for centuries. It is true that not all villains used guns and adopted non-violent tactics; there are those who are willing to be killed to enforce tighter laws. Guns are not toys for adults, and it is said the boys were often picked on by members of the athletic team, and that is why they went after them.

Does an individual have a right to live in freedom and to express his freedom through its music and movies which show, young people that the answer to problems has in violence and that the answer to a person you dislike is pulling the trigger to a gun? The answer to this question can be answered in a million different ways. Could the answer to the problem be if we all live in peace? But what if we all live in peace? And if the government is not ready to make things even better for the masses of people today, they can still be expected to do it through its movies and music which foster violence through its movies and music, which show, young people that the answer to problems has in violence and that the answer to a person you dislike is pulling the trigger to a gun?

On Kosovo, Blacks Have No Choice

PATTY HURST

The resistance among the small group of African Americans gathered at a booth in New York's Black Expo Self-reliance Center to see what the future might hold for them and their people is among the most poignant and powerful that I have seen in a long time.

As I talked with members of the group, I was struck by the strength and determination of the people who gathered there. They had come to see what the future might hold for them and their people, and they were not going to let anything get in their way.

The group consisted of a small number of people, but they were determined to make their voices heard. They were not going to let anyone tell them what they could or could not do.

It was a powerful moment, and one that I will never forget.

Colorado: Another Example of How Hard Crimes Are

RANDY SHORT

The story of the travels of K. Dennis, who was Born in Gresham, Colorado, and who is now living in Denver, Colorado, is one that I have been following for some time.

I have been following the story of K. Dennis' travels, and I have been struck by the courage and determination of the people who have been involved in this case.

K. Dennis is a young man who has been involved in a series of crimes, and who has been arrested for those crimes.

I have been following the story of K. Dennis' travels, and I have been struck by the courage and determination of the people who have been involved in this case.

The people who have been involved in this case have been fighting back against the system, and I have been impressed by their courage and determination.

I hope that their stories will inspire others to stand up for what is right, and to fight back against the system.

From the Yard to Milan, Spring Fashions Are Hot and Loud

By ADAMSRAH, Writing Editor

When that April snow turns into snow, the Imagination March chart peaks at the top of the charts.

As Charter began the season with a letterhead line-up for spring's big events. The sweet, wheat-scented sprints of spring have a chance to regain their full bloom; the snow animals finally fly into windows every morning, and stylishly approach the sidewalk without any hesitation.

And if you take a deep breath, you can almost smell the surfboard. Indeed, spring is a time for the surfboard. And - no one is watching or even partaking of the surfer attire without the sidewalk. The fashion would certainly flourish in the image of a sophisticated springtime and May in bringing along a female fashionista of Milanese attire, as usual in the palms of this season's abloom.

The past few months have unexpectedly increased this season, although with some negative impact, the seasonal pastel pulls together a sense of seasonal effects, and have been swept away, the flowers from the past few times and the spring time on the nails for your nails. The true pastels can come together as a welcome alternative to the palatable palate. The pastel pulls toward the right as the spring is here, and the pastels such as - "are those pastels" often turn to "spring" not "lucky". Also, those who are underestimating the effects of the dark denim pastel puller. Details, like cargo pockets, have been added to not personal tastes.

The Coral past year enters this season as a welcome alternative to the palatable palate. By HARRIS, B., Writing Editor

"Saturday Night Fever" is a movie that has been on many minds, and has been on everyone's minds. The film, which was released in 1977, tells the story of a young man who dreams of becoming a star in the music industry. The movie was a huge success, and it's hard to believe that it's been 40 years since its release.

Tucker's Battle With Gangsta Rap

By TUCKER, B., Writing Editor

This is what it is all about: the battle against gangsta rap. The 1990s brought hip hop. AIDS, crack and recession to America. African-American artists and rappers were faced with a dilemma: "Gangsta" music was one of the easy ways to achieve success. The music was made to create wealth and to show off the lives of the rich and famous. Tucker was faced with the reality of this dilemma. He had to choose whether to continue making music that glorified violence and death or to try to make a difference.

Still, few deny that hip hop has had an impact on society. The music has been a catalyst for change. The music has been a tool for social justice. The music has been a way to express the pain and suffering of the people. Tucker's music has been a testament to his commitment to bring light to the darkness of the world. Tucker's battle with gangsta rap is not over. It is a battle that will continue to be fought for many years to come.

HU Men's Basketball Team Welcomes New Members

By KIMOTHY BROWN

The Howard University's men's basketball team prepared for their first game season. The Bison's record was 2-5.

Head coach Kirk Saulny believed his team needed a new core, and brought in several recruits and college transfers to build the squad and depth. The Bison are losing senior Martin Watson and Opposite Real, who leaves hole that may need to be filled.

Saulny said the team is still waiting on two players to arrive, including Crenshaw's point guard Jonathan Stokes of Los Angeles, Calif.

The following is a list of players who have already signed.

Dobson was the starting center for Verbum Dei high school basketball team. Nick won the California State Championship. He chose Howard University over Stanford, California Berkeley and USC because he felt "comfortable with the situation and wanted to be part of the rebuilding process." His high school coach, Craig Hills, said he could be a "potential NBA player" Dobson played his last game for Beauvoir School, who are one of the top teams in the county.

Coach Saulny: "We are very happy, we made an excellent choice in Dobson on his high school team."

Reggie Strickland

Head coach

Reggie Strickland has a difficult recruiting process. His high school coach said with "good players, but not enough recognition from other schools."

Strickland: "We are deeply indebted to him for helping us out, completely voluntary;" said Strickland.

Saulny believed his team needed an "excellent player," and Saulny is the "cornerstone of our rebuilding process.

Women's Basketball

Women's Tennis Team Wraps up Another Season

By Micah MORGAN-HANKINSON

The Howard University's women's tennis team finished 6th in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference (MEAC) this season.

The Lady Bison, who started the season winning several games, did not receive enough recognition from other schools.

"We have proved ourselves in schools that do not support our H&LCA," said Gina Landry, the director of the team.

Even though the women's tennis program does not have adequate facilities, they fog that they cannot replace MEAC.

Coach Saulny: "The team has really been a success this year. This just shows out our year to win the MEAC," said Landry.

Coach Larry Strickland has a difficult task of coaching both the men and women's tennis teams along with coaching the tennis team. "On our coach needs help," said Landry.

The administration does not have the facilities to play outside on an outdoor court.

"We are very thankful to them for helping us out, company whose team was not really experienced," Strickland.

This year’s draft was a strange one. Bold moves and surprising picks made for an exciting two-day event. Time is on us with only nine days left until training camp begins. The weight of expectations and the pressure of securing a winning season will not be lost on any player. Instead of the usual “who’s hot and who’s not” analysis, I decided to focus on specific players and teams that caught my attention this year. Here are some thoughts from my perspective:

Atlantic Falcons:
It’s not like Atlanta needed many picks anyway. However, another mid-round quarterback would have been helpful. The définiend NFC champions selected Patrik Sirkonen late in the first round, and good luck with him. Atlanta gambled on Virginia safety Tony Personette in the second round. The Falcons were basically about on the draft’s second round.

Baltimore Ravens:
Chris McElroy was a good pick for Baltimore at No. 10. This was the second consecutive time the Ravens went for a defensive back in round one. Getting Tony Troy is always good news, and keeping Eric Ezell was smart. Baltimore gambled on Virginia safety Anthony Personette in the second round, and good luck with him.

Buffalo Bills:
The Bills made a good selection in Jim Thorpe Award winner Antonio Winfield at No. 23 overall. In addition, Buffalo managed to snag the Kansas City second-round pick (from Philadelphia) for linebacker Tyvon Branch. Phillips’ team selected linebackers Keith Poindexter, left end Bobby Collins and fullback Fred Burton in the middle rounds.

Carolina Panthers:
Carolina’s performance in the first round makes me wonder if this team is for real. They spent their first-round pick on a running back, but longer-term needs (DE, TE) could have been addressed.

Chicago Bears:
The Bears were a failure in the first round. They missed an opportunity to get a good running back, but got neither. They gambled on a quarterback in the second round. They were still able to make a good pick up in the third round.

Cincinnati Bengals:
It was a very good draft for the Bengals’ fans’ quarter-trifecta. I think the franchise has a chance to be successful. It was a very good draft for the Bengals’ fans’ quarter-trifecta. I think the franchise has a chance to be successful.

Cleveland Browns:
The Browns were a failure in the first round. They missed an opportunity to get a good running back, but got neither. They gambled on a quarterback in the second round. They were still able to make a good pick up in the third round.

Cincinnati Bengals:

Denver Broncos:
The defensive Super Bowl champions did a good job in the second round. Denver, naturally, is still a team that needs help in the secondary.Offensive Linebacker Emanuel Lamort was the Broncos’ first choice, and he will be a good pick. The Bolts have a good chance of winning the NFC West this season.

Detroit Lions:
In this round, the Lions selected a running back, but they didn’t do much else. They missed an opportunity to get a good running back, but got neither. They gambled on a quarterback in the second round. They were still able to make a good pick up in the third round.

Miami Dolphins:
The Dolphins selected a quarterback in the third round. They were happy with their pick, but got neither. They gambled on a quarterback in the second round. They were still able to make a good pick up in the third round.

Minnesota Vikings:
The Vikings were a failure in the first round. They missed an opportunity to get a good running back, but got neither. They gambled on a quarterback in the second round. They were still able to make a good pick up in the third round.

New England Patriots:
The Patriots were a failure in the first round. They missed an opportunity to get a good running back, but got neither. They gambled on a quarterback in the second round. They were still able to make a good pick up in the third round.

"I never thought I could teach."

Kathy Henderson had never considered herself a teacher. But when she heard that many of her daughter's third-grade classmates couldn't read, she decided to do something about it. She joined AmeriCorps and took charge of the school's volunteer tutoring program. Seeing the students' grades soar showed Kathy she had the ability to change lives. Now the director of a literacy program, Kathy says, "AmeriCorps was the most rewarding experience I've ever had. Service will always be a part of my life."

To learn more about the exciting AmeriCorps opportunities available both locally and nationally, contact The Howard University AmeriCorps Campus representative at: Howard University's ggriffin@howard.edu
