8-30-2005

The Hilltop 8-30-2005

Hilltop Staff

Follow this and additional works at: https://dh.howard.edu/hilltop_0010

Recommended Citation
https://dh.howard.edu/hilltop_0010/246

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the The Hilltop Digital Archive at Digital Howard @ Howard University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Hilltop: 2000 - 2010 by an authorized administrator of Digital Howard @ Howard University. For more information, please contact lopez.matthews@howard.edu.
Howard Ranked 24th Best Buy in United States

Howard University has been ranked 24th in the 2006-2007 "Best-Buys in America" list by U.S. News and World Report. This ranking is an improvement from last year's 33rd position.
Howard Opens Research Facility

By JABARI SMITH
Chief Staff Writer

At the 2005-2006 academic year begins, students have access to a new research and innovation center and its facilities. One of the newest additions in the Howard University Research Building I, located across from the Shaw/Howard metro stop on Georgia Avenue.

Report, a growing home, the 95,000 square-foot building has launched significant innovations in its effort to convert it into a full-fledged research facility. Some of the key changes include: wiring, electrical work, voice and data communications, audio-visual, parking and furnishings.

The research building is a completion of a major project of the University's Strategic Framework I and II, led by University Provost and Chief Academic Officer Richard A. Edwards, Ph.D. According to Edwards, the building will be ready to let students, researchers and faculty work with the most advanced technology.

The problems that Birdsey Ben-Davies, a broadcast journalism major, is facing at Howard University and will be featured regularly in The Hilltop as part of our freshman series.

Birdsey is seeking to enroll within days of her arrival on campus, constantly changing the vision picture frame of Howard University in her mind.

As the 2005-2006 academic year begins, students new and old are getting acquainted and year begins, students new and old are getting acquainted and reacquainted with Howard's bustling campus and its new furnishings.

The changes that have been made to the building and its furnishings are: new technology, new online submission of papers, new software for detecting signs of plagiarism and a new edge program. Students will be required to sign up for the program, which is offered for free, and will be asked to report it back to the professor all semester. This online service was implemented by Clark Atlanta University administrators through the Office of Teaching and Learning in response to problems with plagiarism.

"I definitely think that the Birdsey is a good means of starting for Howard. The only problem I see is lack of awareness that the building and its Clark Atlanta Battles Flagrations With Toga...

Don't Hide Your Pride
Design a garment that DEFINES YOU
It’s as easy as 1...2...3...

1. Choose your garment
(We carry a full line of Tees & Sweats in loads of colors)

2. Choose your favorite school image
(You won’t believe how many cool designs we offer)

3. Personalize it!!!
(Choose from hundreds of categories that DEFINE YOU, plus add your class year)

www.hubookstore.com

OR visit the Howard University Bookstore
Click on link to Personalized Apparel
Your one-of-a-kind garment will arrive in 7 - 10 business days!
Millions More Movement Pushes for Youth Involvement

BY AMIRAH ENGLISH

"Black Power is hard!" was the cry of dozens and others at this weekend's rally for October's Million More Movement. Saturday evening's event, held at the Union Temple Baptist Church, featured by Alvin Muhammad, national spokesman of the Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan, among others.

Youth involvement was a common theme among all of the speakers. With Washington, D.C. having over 1,000 in the area, leaders of the Millions More Movement are reaching out to encourage involvement on an area-wide scale.

"Our goal is for all youth to be actively involved," said Tarrance Muhammad, National Executive for Soul City MLK Memorial Fund Launches.

The Kids for King program was officially launched with a press conference kick-off on August 28, 1963. The goal of the program was to reach out to the young people across the nation, embodied by Dr. King, "The symbolic representation of freedom through work in architecture from throughout the world. The memorial foundation is to explore the basic principles embodied by Dr. King which were hope, democracy, and justice."

Through grassroots efforts, the foundation has reached out to other sections of the nation, especially rural-based groups. The foundation gained a significant amount of international representation earning Dr. King a Congressional Gold Medal and a Nobel Peace Prize.

The proposed site is a 4.5-acre plot of land across from the Jefferson Memorial, and is located on the Lincoln Memorial where Dr. King gave his famous "I Have a Dream" speech on August 28, 1963. The goal of the legislation is to ensure that the memorial is a living, speaking, and active place that will help the youth of today and tomorrow to overcome the violence that they may face in their future.

The Kids for King program seeks to address the issue of violence and encourage youth to get involved in the movement. The program "I Have a Dream" speech on August 28, 1963. The goal of the program is to reach out to young people across the nation, embodied by Dr. King, "The symbolic representation of freedom through work in architecture from throughout the world. The memorial foundation is to explore the basic principles embodied by Dr. King which were hope, democracy, and justice."

Through grassroots efforts, the foundation has reached out to other sections of the nation, especially rural-based groups. The foundation gained a significant amount of international representation earning Dr. King a Congressional Gold Medal and a Nobel Peace Prize.

The proposed site is a 4.5-acre plot of land across from the Jefferson Memorial, and is located on the Lincoln Memorial where Dr. King gave his famous "I Have a Dream" speech on August 28, 1963. The goal of the legislation is to ensure that the memorial is a living, speaking, and active place that will help the youth of today and tomorrow to overcome the violence that they may face in their future.

The Kids for King program seeks to address the issue of violence and encourage youth to get involved in the movement. The program would help youth to learn about the message and mission of Dr. King, allowing them to become involved in the movement and to express their own ideas and visions for the future.

The Kids for King program was officially launched with a press conference kick-off on August 28, 1963. The goal of the program was to reach out to the young people across the nation, embodied by Dr. King, "The symbolic representation of freedom through work in architecture from throughout the world. The memorial foundation is to explore the basic principles embodied by Dr. King which were hope, democracy, and justice."

Through grassroots efforts, the foundation has reached out to other sections of the nation, especially rural-based groups. The foundation gained a significant amount of international representation earning Dr. King a Congressional Gold Medal and a Nobel Peace Prize.

The proposed site is a 4.5-acre plot of land across from the Jefferson Memorial, and is located on the Lincoln Memorial where Dr. King gave his famous "I Have a Dream" speech on August 28, 1963. The goal of the legislation is to ensure that the memorial is a living, speaking, and active place that will help the youth of today and tomorrow to overcome the violence that they may face in their future.

The Kids for King program seeks to address the issue of violence and encourage youth to get involved in the movement. The program would help youth to learn about the message and mission of Dr. King, allowing them to become involved in the movement and to express their own ideas and visions for the future.

The Kids for King program was officially launched with a press conference kick-off on August 28, 1963. The goal of the program was to reach out to the young people across the nation, embodied by Dr. King, "The symbolic representation of freedom through work in architecture from throughout the world. The memorial foundation is to explore the basic principles embodied by Dr. King which were hope, democracy, and justice."

Through grassroots efforts, the foundation has reached out to other sections of the nation, especially rural-based groups. The foundation gained a significant amount of international representation earning Dr. King a Congressional Gold Medal and a Nobel Peace Prize.

The proposed site is a 4.5-acre plot of land across from the Jefferson Memorial, and is located on the Lincoln Memorial where Dr. King gave his famous "I Have a Dream" speech on August 28, 1963. The goal of the legislation is to ensure that the memorial is a living, speaking, and active place that will help the youth of today and tomorrow to overcome the violence that they may face in their future.

The Kids for King program seeks to address the issue of violence and encourage youth to get involved in the movement. The program would help youth to learn about the message and mission of Dr. King, allowing them to become involved in the movement and to express their own ideas and visions for the future.
Humble Beginnings

In 1925, Johnson went to DuSable High School in Chicago where he was a member of the school’s track team. He later attended the University of Arkansas. During his time there, he worked at a newspaper, the DuSable Press, as a reporter. He graduated from the University of Arkansas in 1935 and began work as a reporter for the Chicago Defender, a newspaper that was owned by his father, John H. Johnson.

In 1942, Johnson founded the first magazine for African Americans, called “Negro Digest.” This publication was a monthly magazine that focused on news and issues affecting African Americans. It was a response to the lack of coverage of African American issues in the mainstream press. Johnson's goal was to provide a platform for African American voices and to challenge the stereotypes perpetuated by the mainstream media.

In 1956, Johnson launched “Jet,” another magazine that would become a staple in African American media. “Jet” has been a source of news, culture, and entertainment for African Americans for decades, and it has played a significant role in shaping the national discourse on African American issues.

In 2003, John H. Johnson donated $4 million to Howard University for the construction of a new building for the School of Communications. This building was named in his honor, reflecting the impact he had on the media industry and the African American community.

Johnson was not just a media mogul, but also a philanthropist. He was a supporter of various causes, including education and civil rights. Johnson received numerous awards for his contributions to the media industry and his work in the African American community. He was also known for his dedication to his family, and his legacy continues to inspire many today.
Students Look For Housing

LMBO, from Campus A1

"I know I didn't have enough RSVP points to make the cut, but I didn't even bother getting up early with everyone else last year to get in and pay the deposit," said Kyle Gibbs, a junior broadcast major. "I figured it would be easier for me to get the dorm of my choice if I just came back to campus early before anyone moved in."

According to Gibbs, students did not even bother by signing their names on the waiting list. The waiting list does not guarantee students a roof over their head. "There are currently 750 students on the waiting list, including more juniors and seniors than in previous years," Gibbs said. "I know if I had moved to my dorm late, it would have been very difficult for me to get a space or visit the off campus websites.

"If you're on the waiting list, you have even less opportunity to get housing for students," Gibbs added. "There's no guarantee that students will get a space or visit the off campus websites."

"Howard houses over 250 percent of its student population due to its urban location. "We're better than most colleges and universities in the same situation." Gibbs said.

According to Dennis Johnson, a junior legal communication major, "I feel that if I would have gotten a space on campus, it would have been very difficult for me to rely on other people to get me to campus."

Johnson agrees with Dennis. "If I had not paid the money I would at least have a place to call home," he said. "Now if it looks like I'll be apartment hopping between friends for the remainder of my life, who knows?"

"You will receive:"

- Daily offerings of new and updated educational resources
- Opportunities to attend conferences
- A community of others interested in Howard University and its mission

"The Howard University Resident Hall (HURB), located on campus, is a state-of-the-art residential facility designed to house 498 students. The facility was completed in 2003 and is the home of the Howard University Resident Hall Program (HURP) which promotes the university's commitment to excellence in research and teaching.

The HURB is a two-story structure and is the first of its kind to be constructed in the nation. The facility includes a number of features that enhance the educational environment for students, including:

- A state-of-the-art learning center
- A computer lab
- A study area
- A lounge area
- A recreation area

The HURB is designed to meet the needs of today's students and to provide them with a safe and comfortable environment in which to live and learn. The facility is equipped with modern technology and is located near the Howard University Medical Center, providing easy access to medical facilities and other resources.

The HURB is open to all students at Howard University and is available on a first-come, first-served basis. Students interested in living in the HURB should contact the Resident Hall Program for more information.

Get everything for your dorm room at Walmart.com and still afford tuition.
The Mecca: More Than A Mask

When first coming to college, it is easy to imagine the student body a certain way. The thought of being unusual or different makes your throat itch, an uneasiness. When you visit, events happen to be dressed up that day. The guy you saw all wore name brand clothes. The girls wore all in designer and their hair was nothing fancy. The upperclassmen seemed confident.

Everyone seemed to find happy and it was intimidating. We understood how the rumors and the image can scare freshmen choosing the mirror and trying to blend in with what seems to be the typical Eron. We have a bit of advice for you:

Be Yourself.

New kid is walking through the cafeteria with a tray, trying to find somewhere to sit. They may be residents of that part of the non-globalist area and the campus is extremely diverse in personality.

Our View:
Freshmen, be bold enough to be yourself rather than just blending in with the crowd.

The non-globalist redline disticts are being themselves and that's a fact. Though we may not know the ways we would have a true mask. Dance to your own song and be your own person and we promise you will thank us later. You will graduate with true to your self.

Truth is, Britain is reaping the consequences of the establishment of the Wahhabi sect of the Muslim religion, which allowed a loophole whereby Turkish Muslims as apostates could be killed by the Turks. This allowed the Wahhabi sect to enter the United States today, for instance, are financially supported by the Saudis. Note that just because we live outside the non-globalist redline district does not mean that we are immune from terrorist attacks.

Want to write for the Hilltop?
Come grab a story at the budget meeting on Tuesday @ 7:00 PM

The Hilltop
EDITORIALS & Perspectives

VOLUME 89, NO. 3 AUGUST 30, 2005

The Mecca: More Than A Mask

When first coming to college, it is easy to imagine the student body a certain way. The thought of being unusual or different makes your throat itch, an uneasiness. When you visit, events happen to be dressed up that day. The guy you saw all wore name brand clothes. The girls wore all in designer and their hair was nothing fancy. The upperclassmen seemed confident.

Everyone seemed to find happy and it was intimidating. We understood how the rumors and the image can scare freshmen choosing the mirror and trying to blend in with what seems to be the typical Eron. We have a bit of advice for you:

Be Yourself.

New kid is walking through the cafeteria with a tray, trying to find somewhere to sit. They may be residents of that part of the non-globalist area and the campus is extremely diverse in personality.

Our View:
Freshmen, be bold enough to be yourself rather than just blending in with the crowd.

The non-globalist redline disticts are being themselves and that's a fact. Though we may not know the ways we would have a true mask. Dance to your own song and be your own person and we promise you will thank us later. You will graduate with true to your self.

Truth is, Britain is reaping the consequences of the establishment of the Wahhabi sect of the Muslim religion, which allowed a loophole whereby Turkish Muslims as apostates could be killed by the Turks. This allowed the Wahhabi sect to enter the United States today, for instance, are financially supported by the Saudis. Note that just because we live outside the non-globalist redline district does not mean that we are immune from terrorist attacks.
Excited or Excessive: Freshmen Seek To Prove Themselves

BY CHARLAE WASHINGTON
Hilltop Staff Writer

"I'm a mind may be a terrible thing to lose," said Hilltop, "but it is a great thing to own."

Are you ready for the next big thing? Are you excited about the new school year? Are you ready to prove yourself? Then this article is for you. In this article, we will explore the world of new freshmen and how they are seeking to prove themselves.

The Freshmen Orientation Seminars

"There is no need to be wearing the freshman experience," said Howard girls dress like," said Keeton. "They're just too extra."

The Freshmen Orientation seminars are a great way to start the year right. These seminars are designed to help freshmen get off to a great start and prove themselves. The seminars cover a wide range of topics, from academic success to social skills.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.

"I have been seeing way too many white boys and fancy professors," said Killingsworth, a freshman radio-TV-film major. "I want to fit in and prove myself." But not all of the freshmen are as excited. Some feel like they are being asked to do too much too soon.
The Search Continues for Antoine Bethea Named Women’s Lacrosse Coach

BY COURTNEY ELAND

While the only all-African American women’s lacrosse team in the nation continues to train and condition for the upcoming season, they can’t help but wonder when they will find the unexpected departure of head coach Melinda Vaughn and her coaching staff.

There was a shock to the team, which Vaughn, who had been the coach for the past three years, first announced her resignation at a team meeting the day before the annual spring award banquet.

Junior defender and last season’s Most Valuable Player, Shanos Morris, remembers this the day clearly. “We had a team meeting that day after we were informed that the coach that ended up being canceled,” said Morris. “Then [Vaughn] stood up and said that she had news. She didn’t reveal it.”

It wasn’t until days after that this buzz put the team in an awkward place. “I wasn’t hurt but I was def­initely sad,” said Morris. “I knew the program would have no coach for the next year and didn’t know what to expect.”

Vaughn was not the only one who had to make that announcement. “We had a team meeting that day after we were informed that the coach that ended up being canceled,” said Morris. “Then [Vaughn] stood up and said that she had news. She didn’t reveal it.”

It wasn’t until days after that this buzz put the team in an awkward place. “I wasn’t hurt but I was def­initely sad,” said Morris. “I knew the program would have no coach for the next year and didn’t know what to expect.”

Returning to the Ice: NBA Off-Season Sparked by Trades and Signings

BY CARYN GRANT

On arrival at the top flight in NHL history took place last season involving five different teams: the Miami Heat, Chicago Bulls, Atlanta Hawks, New Orleans Hornets, and Denver Nuggets. And the Manu Ginobili acquired, acquired, acquired.

It was a season of change and the Miami Heat wanted to make the most of the opportunity. "It’s a special deal for us," said Ginobili. "We know there will be some changes but we’re ready to go." and in to the NBA. The Heat signed guard Eddie Jones from the Memphis Grizzlies and sent guards Jason Williams, Andre Emmett, and James Posey to Miami and Raul Lopez from the Utah Jazz, sending guards Jason Williams, Andre Emmett, and James Posey to Miami.

The league, which awarded ratings of -49, -46, and -47 respectively the three seasons prior to the lockout, is even considering larger teams should get benefit from the agreement. And the real fans will finally have something to cheer about.

The league has been forced into a shudder every time with NEC to the regular season games, six playoff games, and a minimum of 20 games.

The league has been forced into a shudder every time with NEC to the regular season games, six playoff games, and a minimum of 20 games.

The league, which awarded ratings of -49, -46, and -47 respectively the three seasons prior to the lockout, is even considering larger teams should get benefit from the agreement. And the real fans will finally have something to cheer about.

NBA Off-Season Sparked by Trades and Signings

When superstars Articular science major George Gee went to school, he didn’t expect to find the Tampa Bay Lightning with the Hawks. He had only heard a few comments. It was not because he was from the state of Florida and not involved in the National Hockey League. “I’m very surprised that people didn’t realize the whole thing had changed,” said Gee. “I had just a year ago. A few weeks ago, in fact, when the National Hockey League (NHL) was still running, the Hawks needed to make a decision on what to do with the team.”

Last season, the Hawks traded forward Michael Redd to Milwaukee and guard Eddie Jones from the Memphis Grizzlies and sent guards Jason Williams, Andre Emmett, and James Posey to Miami and Raul Lopez from the Utah Jazz.

Now, as the Hawks enter the off-season, they are facing a decision. “We have to make a decision on what to do with the team,” said Gee. “I’m not sure what the Hawks will do. I was surprised that people didn’t realize the whole thing had changed.”

The Hawks are facing a decision. “We have to make a decision on what to do with the team,” said Gee. “I’m not sure what the Hawks will do. I was surprised that people didn’t realize the whole thing had changed.”

Buck Buchanan Watch check—

The winner of the award will be announced on December 15, 2000.
HOWARD UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

BACK TO COLLEGE

Timberland Collection
- A Timberland Logo Gym Sack, $20.99
- A Timberland Logo Tote Bag, $19.99
- A Timberland Link Tool Tote, $24.99
- A Timberland Deering Vertical Messenger Bag, $30.99
- E. Timberland 22" Duffle Bag, $66.99

Head Day Planners
- Available in assorted colors. Sizes: 8 1/4 x 5 5/8. $9.99

Select Gear and Champion Merchandise
- Choose from select EAGL and Champion U.S. sweaters, 1990s, sweatshirts, classic shirts, and t-shirts. Retailers: Classic Birthday Baby Vest and shirt, $12.99; Champion Howard University shirt, $17.99

Baseball Backpack
- Available in assorted colors. Sizes: 8 1/4 x 5 5/8. $9.99

White Swan Medical Scrubs
- Available in assorted colors and sizes. Bottoms available, but not pictured. $10

Power Play Products Surge Protector
- Choose from assorted sizes and colors. $6.99

Motorola Bluetooth Headset
- The latest in Bluetooth technology. $99.99

GPX Portable CD Player
- 60 Second Menu Skip Protection. $33.99

Select College Life Books
- Choose from an assorted collection of books dealing with stress management and college life. This sale only applies to the General Books Department.

United Plastics Dishware
- Choose from an array of bowls, cups, and pitchers in assorted pastel colors. $9.99

Dorm Queen Bedding
- A. Ultra-Fill IV Standard Pillow, $6.99
- B. Foam Mattress Egg Crate - Twin XL, $50.99
- C. Memory Foam Contour Pillow, $28.29
- D. Comforter, $35.99

Health & Beauty Aids
- Check out the our new HUB Health & Beauty Aids department featuring brand names hair care, toiletries, and household cleaning products.

Books & Educational

Professional Tool and Cases
- A. Rogers Field Bag, $31.75
- B. Sorbo Hip Holster Computer Case, $49.99
- C. Ultra Tool Computer Case, $59.99
- D. HU Pro Leather Computer Brief, $99.99

Comet H.U. Insignia Notebook
- 2 and 5 subject spiral notebooks in assorted colors. $29.99

Prestige Medical Nurse Kit
- Includes: Surgeon Stethoscope, Angora Accessory Pouch, Earthling Hygiene, and I Accessories Belt, Wallet Pocket Organizer, Bandage Scissors, Disposable Gloves, 1 Color Cuff, and Initial Diagnostic Measuring Tool

Books & Educational

Tools
- The Silent Timing Timer
- The Silent Timing Timer
- The Silent Timing Timer

Health & Beauty Aids
- Clinically Oriented Anatomy by Keith L. Moore

Dorm Essentials
- A. United Plastics Waste Basket, $4.49
- B. Desk Lamp, $9.99
- C. Atlanta Hamper, $10.29
- D. HU Pillow, $19.98
- E. Fan, $28.99
- F. HU Mattress, $34.99

HUB DORM ACCENTS

Go!作案

Howard University Bookstore
2225 Georgia Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20059
202.238.2640 or 1.800.919.5997
www.hubbookstore.com

CSC#982005 • Check out our new HUB Health & Beauty Aids department featuring brand names hair care, toiletries, and household cleaning products.

THE HILLTOP