BisonWeb Still Causing Headaches

BY KEANI INGRAM

BisonWeb has been a recent problem plaguing III\'s students. The slow connection students are experiencing has only been compounded by the recent changes and updates. Problems like this puts a strain on the students and faculty members who are trying to access Banner and BisonWeb. Personally, I have been involved in many of the issues surrounding BisonWeb. I'm not sure if it's my problem or if it's everyone's problem, but I believe there is a solution.

I'm attempting to access Banner, specifically the account balances, and it is no where else I would want to be at this time. I cannot log in to the Banner system, and it is incredibly frustrating. The same goes for BisonWeb. I can see the website, but I can't do anything with it. It's not really working for me, and it's making me very frustrated.

I'm not the only one experiencing these problems. Other students are also having issues with Banner and BisonWeb. Some students have reported that they are unable to access Banner, while others have reported problems with BisonWeb.

Students have been complaining that they are unable to access Banner, as well as BisonWeb, when it is most needed. The Information Systems and Services department is working on the problem as quickly as possible.

About Face: Clinic Gets Approval for Face Transplant Trials

BY SHALEEM THOMPSON

The movie "Face Off," where actor Nicolas Cage plays a man who, after a car accident, is turned into a living statue, is not far from becoming a reality. Sept. 21, 2005

The movie "Face Off," where actor Nicolas Cage plays a man who, after a car accident, is turned into a living statue, is not far from becoming a reality. Sept. 21, 2005

Face Transplant Trials has been a reality since August 2005, when doctors at the Cleveland, Ohio Clinic on May 15, 2005, announced that they were preparing to perform the first face transplant in the United States. The procedure was expected to take place in August 2005, and the patient was to be a woman who had lost her face in a car accident.

"I think it's a very exciting time in medicine," said Dr. Michael Harrell, director of the Cleveland Clinic's plastic surgery department. "This is the first time that face transplants have been performed in the United States." The procedure was expected to take place in August 2005, and the patient was to be a woman who had lost her face in a car accident.

The Cleveland Clinic's plastic surgery department has been working on face transplant procedures for several years, and the hospital's experts believe that the procedure is now feasible. "We are confident that we can perform this procedure safely," said Dr. Michael Harrell, director of the Cleveland Clinic's plastic surgery department. "This is the first time that face transplants have been performed in the United States." The procedure was expected to take place in August 2005, and the patient was to be a woman who had lost her face in a car accident.

In the procedure, the patient's face will be replaced with the face of a deceased person. The face transplant procedure will be performed on a patient with burns, cancer, and other defects.

"The procedure is very complex and involves a lot of different specialties," said Dr. Michael Harrell, director of the Cleveland Clinic's plastic surgery department. How I’m living: Cinnamon Tyler’s Off Campus Haven

BY DESRIEE SMITH

Cinnamon Tyler gets a lot of her furniture from Whole Liquidator Warehouse stores.

Although living off-campus is cheaper to most students, students still have to consider costs for furnishing their home. Since prices at many furniture stores are over a college student’s budget, Tyler suggested a store where students can find furniture for cheap. However, a large-scale furniture warehouse, “Barnes’ great place to find good looking and good quality furniture at low prices,” Tyler said enthusiastically. “It is the WholeMent of furniture stores.”

Tyler was able to purchase a mattress, bed frame, and dresser all under $100 by simply going to Brea. The closest Brea to Howard’s campus is located in College Park, Md. Brea has various kinds of furniture for any type of room, plus an in-store restaurant to accommodate heavy shoppers.

There may be only one downside to this furniture warehouse: “Everything requires assembly,” Tyler said. “With certain things like the bed frame, which has larger pieces, it was hand to put together without the help of a couple of friends.”

“Being off campus is a great experience to learn how to run my own,” Tyler said. “I enjoy being different from the many students like the many other students at Howard. I’m living like I have a diamond in the back, not road top, digging in the snow with a gas tank, and I live it,” she said. “Being off campus is a great experience to learn how to run my own demands.”

For more information about Whole Liquidator Warehouse stores, go to the Wholefment website or give them a call at 301-770-0011.

Summer Fashion Trends Fall Into Autumn

BY MICHAEL ARCENEAUX

One aspect of college life is the college community itself and the changes that occur on a number of campuses throughout the nation.

The Georgia Club, one of the several active state clubs found on campus, is an example of how these clubs helps students make the transition from high school to college. The Georgia Club has sponsored the Emory Ensemble since two years ago for students interested in entertainment and the entertainment industry, which encompasses music, fashion, sports and all other areas that entail the entertainment industry.

Since its formation at Howard, the group has sponsored more events and given away more cash prizes than ever before. Now, many students are involved in the group for the entertainment industry.

Every year, the group presents a Fashion Show which.is one of the events that attract the most attention. The group is also responsible for organizing the Emory City Half Marathon, an event that is open to all students and helps students gain experience in the entertainment industry.

The Emory Group also offers assistant positions to students interested in entertainment and the entertainment industry, which encompasses music, fashion, sports and all other areas that entail the entertainment industry.

Black Boxers of the Past Admired as Heroes

BY DREW COSLEY

In the past decade, the sport of boxing has been talked about more than any in recent memory, with the likes of Mike Tyson, Lennox Lewis, George Foreman, and Evander Holyfield all starring in their own ways. However, it was the black boxers of the past who truly set the standards for the sport.
