Kili's Kafe is temporarily closed because of a shooting near the club. Graham authored the legislation that the bill was signed into law. He said, "We need to do something about this, and we need to do it now."

Graham said he was surprised by the reaction of the public to the shooting. "I thought we would have more support for the legislation," he said. "But I was wrong."
Howard Chess Club Reaches Out to D.C. Community

BY KERRI COX

An exhibition of artwork, entitled "The Children of the Revolution," will be held this week.

The traveling exhibition, which is sponsored by the National Museum of Women in the Arts, will be on view until Tuesday, April 2.

Members of the Howard Chess Club competed against area children who are part of the Olympic Chess Clubs, an organization that teaches chess to children in D.C.

Contributing Writer

Cook, Slowe, and Meridian, would be looking at some little kids going through what those kids have not been through. And they both played against students and won.

The Olympic Chess House is an organization that is committed to providing free chess lessons to children in the D.C. area who do not have access to such opportunities in their communities.

Howard Chess Club Reaches Out to D.C. Community

BY CAREN STREIT

As a chess club, we are very passionate about the game. It's not just about playing chess, but also teaching it to children. The chess club has been working with local schools to teach children how to play.

Howard Aluminum Starts Up

BY PHILLY WHEATLEY

Philly Wheatley is the first black woman to own a major league baseball team. She was born in Galveston, Texas, in 1932. At the age of seven, Philly was kidnapped and sold as a slave to a slaver named Young Stover. After she escaped, she moved to Boston where she started her own business.

Howard Mackey

Howard Mackey is the architect who designed Howard University's new campus. He was born in Washington, D.C., and graduated from Howard University's architecture program in 1970. He has been involved in the design of many significant buildings throughout the United States.

Key to the City: National Gallery of Art

BY SHAENA HENRY

Located on the green and yellow metro rail lines, the National Gallery of Art holds paintings, sculptures, drawings, and photographs from the Middle Ages to the present. Currently, there are eight special exhibitions on display for a limited time. New through March 2006, visitors can see the exhibit, "Audubon's Birds of America." Selections from The Hilltop.

The National Gallery of Art was built in 1978 with the financial help of Andrew W. Mellon, an art collector. Mellon also donated paintings, sculptures, and furniture for the museum.

The gallery is divided into two buildings. The West Building, was built by John Russell Pope and in the title, "The Washington Family." It was the largest marble structure in the nation's capital.

Visitors can also experience the films through the film program of the National Gallery of Art. Offers "Cine Chile: Forty Years of Film from Chile" presents films by Chilean directors such as Aldo Frizzi and Miguel Littin. The series depicts the ways in which Chilean cinema has been influenced by art.

The East Building features modern and contemporary artwork, along with a research facility and an art reference library.

Le Jour Jensen came to Washington from Denmark for a conference. He and his wife, Tise Kist, have visited art galleries throughout Europe, including England, France, and Italy.

"We always go to art galleries in England," Kist said. "We have seen a lot of art, interacted with the artists, but there is a difference." Kist said her favorite piece is the National Gallery of Art by artist Kenneth King.

The people here are very friendly and ready to answer questions," she said. "Overall, it is a very nice atmosphere." Angela Gury volunteers at the gallery every other weekend and said the museum is great because it is free and open to the public. "The people who volunteer here obviously have to help people, but have an appreciation for art as well," Gury said.

In addition, the historical artwork, the National Gallery of Art also provides programs for visitors to attend. Family activities such as "Feathered Friends," which children can learn drawing and watercolor techniques while making art, are available.

Gallery concerts are also held at the National Gallery of Art including "Holiday Caroling in the Rotunda" by guest choirs after protesting military charges in the first place. George Mason University students recently created a task force to review and update its policies for the use of public space.

Charges Against George Mason University Student Dropped

Fairfax County prosecutors dropped charges against a George Mason University student. The student, 27-year-old Tarcy Khan, was arrested after protesting military recruiters on campus. Khan was arrested after he stood by recruiter tables distributing flyers and wearing signs. One year accrued recruiters of lying. Prosecutors did not get a reason for dropping the charges, but George Mason officials said that they didn't want to press charges in the first place.

D.C. Council Considers Panel on Poverty

The District of Columbia city council is considering creating a panel to deal with poverty. The commission, which was discussed at an open hearing last week, would focus on things such as where the poor are educated, where they work, and how to live the lives of those who are struggling.

Fairfax County Neighborhood Battles Geese Problems

Because of increasing geese problems, Fairfax County may soon enact an ordinance against feeding geese. The Canadian geese have become such a problem for one Fairfax County neighborhood that the Fairfax Board of Supervisors is considering a fine of 50 dollars for anyone caught feeding the geese. Wildlife experts feel that the ordinance will not help control the geese issue, but residents have complained of an intensified population. For now, the ordinance would prevent anyone from feeding the geese in the program at the Stratford.

NBA Attitude Adjustment

The NBA has taken its share of blame for a decline in the years for having difficult and unreasonable players. No one saw the Ron Artest fight coming and he definitely caught a lot of heat for reacting to the ridiculous fan throw­ ing beer. It seemed for a moment that the announcer should have mentioned "Draymond" on the court as chance awaited. The NBA public­ ity department’s blood pressure must have gone off scale now with a drive in crowd in place, fights quiet and games in full swing.

Football Team, Marching Band Share Same Benefits

BY JAHMAI ABDUL-MAIK

Outstanding athletes enjoy a life of leisure after their careers have come to an end. However, for many professional athletes, negotiating the leap from the court or field to a real-world job can be a daunting task.

"Because we're used to having the spotlight on us, it can be difficult to transition to a different type of work," said Stern to the Boston Globe. "It's important to have a mentor figure to guide you through the process.

So how does a professional athlete find their way to the workforce? As the NBA continues to revamp its image, Stern and NBA officials are working to ensure that former players are given the tools they need to succeed.

"We're working on a variety of initiatives to help former players transition to the workforce," said Stern. "We want to make sure they have access to education and job training opportunities.

It was called the worst brawl in NBA history. It resulted in a record $250,000 fine and $11,342,832 in fines and lost salary. The NBA, however, is moving forward with its newest initiative, NBA Player Differences. The goal is to improve the NBA's image and establish a positive public relations profile.

"We're working on a variety of initiatives to improve the NBA's image," said Stern. "We want to make sure the public understands that the NBA is a family-friendly league.

Rodriguez Named 2005 AL MVP

New York Yankees third baseman Alex Rodriguez won his second American League Most Valuable Player award in three seasons on Monday.

He received 16 first place votes, 17 second and one third for a total 32 points from the Baseball Writers Association of America to defeat David Ortiz (19 points), Vladimir Guerrero (19) and Manny Ramirez (16) on his way to becoming the first Yankee player to win the award since Don Mattingly in 1985.

Having won his first AL MVP award in 2003 in his last season with Seattle, Rodriguez joins an elite group of only four players to win the award with ties for the title.

Rodriguez will receive a $1 million bonus for winning the award in addition to his $25 million, six-year contract.

Hot Beats Bring Fire To Cool Season

BY JOHN KENNEDY
Combating Winter

At the weather charts, unexacted to do without and that's not to mention the "white stuff" to balance the first try winter climate.

Sarah Johnson, who performed at his second album Howard University's "April Thaw," second with "The Carter Vol. II," and the sound of what is remains to be a fire-and-paper collection. Included bonus CD will feature some well known artists, including Ginantwine, Lil Wayne and even the late Notorious B.I.G., who will do well, partly because of his hometown. "It's important to wear layers," said Slade, "because that is my second baby's long deserved."

Also, there are others, whose opinions lean more towards the idea of exploitation. "It seems like Diddy is just trying to make a name for himself, because it's not a new idea of exploiting people's willingness to buy a coat," said Slade, "I can't wait for that album, with the weather becoming colder, a set of clothing is an important skill. Not only do I have no idea about "sweat" songs, but also I have never worn them or seen them until once winter-time technique."

You can wear a lot of clothes, but sometimes they are not enough, especially if you don't have a coat. If you go inside and it's cold outside, you'd better not wear a coat. But if you really want to go outside, you'd better wear a coat, even if it's not cold. It's important to wear layers in these winter months, because you don't know if you're going to get snow, but sometimes you don't have the chance to wear snow, just as you don't have the chance to wear snow in the D.C. winter, they both have mentioned how to look good and stay warm in winter months."

Somehow, with the help of some experts, you can find a lot of clothes, and clothes. It's not easy to buy a coat, because you can't forget about the North Face, and good sweaters. Collins agreed felt the warmth in layers has been pretty good, because I don't own many big coats, "I just layer" mentioned Slade.
