Summit Finds Ethics, Values Are Workplace Barriers
By ROSELLA L. DAVIS
Hilp-Salt-Wiser

A national panel of four leaked key information on innovative ways to train employees to retain skilled workers, namely the National Skills Summit which took place in the Blackburn Center.

The panel discussed the importance of ethics and values in the workplace, and the need for employers to have clear policies and procedures in place. The panelists also emphasized the importance of leadership and management in fostering ethical behavior in the workplace.

Information Computer Lab Nears Completion
By O'DANCE S. MINTON
Hilp-Staff Writer

Since winter vacationing in the lab was going to be a new computer lab opening this spring, some Howard students have been anxiously awaiting its opening. Students told the Herald they had been waiting to open the lab since the beginning of the semester. Students were excited about the new lab because it will include new software and new technology.

The lab will have five workstations with a total of 50 microcomputers, along with the advanced software that will be available to students in the lab. The lab will also have a separate test station for students to practice their skills. The lab will be located in the basement of the Blackburn Center.

U.S. Senate Votes to Increase Pell Grants by $400

By MARY KENNY

The Washington Post

FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 2000 A7

WASHINGTON - The Senate yesterday narrowly approved legislation to increase Pell Grants, a federal aid program for college students, by $400 for the 2000-2001 school year.

The legislation, approved by a vote of 59-40, does not fully address recommendations made by the Pell Grant Commission, which last year proposed a $500 increase in the maximum Pell Grant available for the 2000-2001 school year.

The legislation would boost the maximum Pell Grant to $2,920, but would leave the maximum college work-study grant at $4,090, as recommended by the commission.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the legislation is "an important step in providing the necessary financial aid for college students across the country.

"This is a victory for students and colleges across the country," he said. "This bill provides the necessary funding for the Pell Grant program.

"This bill provides the necessary funding for the Pell Grant program. The Senate should support this bill," he said.

Sen. Richard B. Lugar, R-Ind., said the legislation is a "very important step forward." He said the legislation will help students from low-income families enroll in college.

"This bill is a very important step forward," he said. "It will provide more financial aid to students from low-income families.

"It will help students from low-income families enroll in college," he said.

Sen. John D. Rockefeller IV, D-W.Va., said the legislation is "an important step forward for students from low-income families.

"This bill is an important step forward for students from low-income families," he said. "It will provide more financial aid to students from low-income families.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Sleep problems can cause legitimate medical problems, researchers said, and about 40 percent of U.S. adults have trouble sleeping.

People define "adequate sleep" in different ways that could one cause confusion. Some say 7 hours, others 8 hours, and others 9 hours. Sleep researchers say these numbers are arbitrary and have no scientific basis.

"Sleep complaints how to be measured differs," said Dr. Goodwin H. Hall, an assistant professor of clinical psychology at Tufts Medical Center in the student health advisory board. "Are you referring to the number of hours a person has trouble falling asleep or the number of hours a person has trouble staying asleep?"

The goal of the panel was to present the current scientific consensus about sleep and its importance. "It's a topic that has been investigated for decades," said Dr. John W. Miller, a professor of psychiatry at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. "It's one of the most important factors that affect health."

Fed Up With Elian Already?

As the President of the United States the political process is usually in his hands. However, his weather-vane politics leave his sincerity open to question. Gore is probably just beginning to understand John F. Kennedy's nervousness in facing the ignominy of re-election.

In that light, it may be in the best interest of the United States and Cuba to engage Cuba. Castro can't have much longer to live, and there doesn't appear to be any charismatic leader in Cuba prepared to take his place. By engaging Cuba now, the United States could hope to have a stronger hand in the negotiations.

It seems like Cuba should be a dead issue by now. If the United States is actually securing aid to former republics of the Soviet Union, how can we justify the continued embargo on Cuba? Surely we no longer fear Communist Cuba.

No Sunshine in the Sunshine State

The administration of Gov. Jeb Bush continues to casually and nonchalantly ignore the little injustices inherent in Florida's imposition and application of the death penalty. Like a great many Americans I'm sure, the Bush administration is pretentiously pretending not to hear the unwanted words of a teacher or parent. Bush, during his tenure, has acknowledged that capital punishment in Florida - as in Illinois and the rest of the nation - is a broken system, beyond repair.

The latest example of Talahassee's persistent head-in-the-sand attitude toward death penalty issues would be almost canonically ignored were it not for the grave nature of the subject. A task force created by Bush to study whether racial bias exists in death penalty sentencing and make a recommendation on whether the state should ban the execution of innocent men and women on death row.

This last is a statistical statement that racial bias has existed and continues to exist in capital sentencing. Bush, however, ignored this convincing body of work while ramming ill-conceived changes to the death penalty through a special session of the Legislature, then established this token task force purely for show.

It is true that some tasks are involved in public policy, and Bush should have sought Bush's advice. However, the people of Florida and the United States - and those of the world - deserve a recommendation that racial bias exists in capital sentencing. Bush, however, ignored this convincing body of work while ramming ill-conceived changes to the death penalty through a special session of the Legislature, then established this token task force purely for show.

There's never any sense to continue the embargo against Cuba. The Cold War is over.

Dear Hilltop Editorial Board,

I am very pleased to have such wide range of acceptance for this year's yearbook. My staff and I worked very hard this year and I am sure it is a lot of hard work and dedication. Everyone I have asked when the photos print issue came from. I am very happy with what I have come from two high school editors in chief and I finally had the opportunity to do it. I am very happy that I can do even more of my own.

As we have not been involved in the past or let our sales for the 2002 book will be able to report "Gone That Zine. A New Beginning". I have not been able to get in the position of journalistic opinions. Each year I have seen that we would not publicize it because we believe in previous editions. I believe the 1999 was better than the 2000 and that the 2000 was better than the 1999. So, we didn't definitely be better than 2000.

Thank you for your support, it was truly appreciated.

Our View:
The Elian Gonzalez issue has turned into a political and media frenzy. The Bush administration and others have been forced to affirm the governor's position to end the public's perception of a problem.

The Missing Element: Howard and the Environment

by Joel Abraham

Howard University recently hosted a campuswide environmental debate. The students called for mandatory recycling and reduction of waste. They demanded action on the environmental crisis. The university introduced a recycling program, which has been successful in reducing waste and improving the campus environment.

I was a fresh student at Howard University when I first learned of the environment. I was a political science major at the time, and I was fascinated by the idea of protecting the planet. I decided to take a course on the environment and I was hooked. I loved the way that the course was taught and I was inspired by the way that the professor talked about the importance of preserving the planet.

2nd Annual Kimothy’s Heroes

By Kenneth K. Brown
Managing Editor

That time of the month has come for me... no, it’s not what you think. Actu­ally, this is the second annual edition of the “Kimothy’s Heroes” Awards. Now is the time to celebrate the best athletes, coaches and fans who epitomized the true spirit of the Hilltop. Those of you who disagree with my selections, take it up with Brandon Bickerstaff, next year’s sports editor. Or better yet, have a talk with Rhett Butler, the sports columnist for The Hilltop next year. But it’s not like either of them care what people think anyway. Without further delay, here are the winners. And no, Denzel Washington did not win any of these awards either!

MEN’S PLAYERS OF THE YEAR: Elijah Thurman and Adeomola Ogunseye

Thurman broke both Howard University and Mid-Eastern Athletic Confer­ence records for most yards in a season. In addition, Thurman’s effectiveness and dependable hands placed him among the best receivers in Division I-A. He was an All-American selection this season. Thurman caught 64 passes for 1,366 yards and nine touchdowns, averaging 21.4 yards per catch. Hopefully, the Howard community will be watching

Women’s Players of the Year: Lauren Pruitt and Andrea Gardner

Pruitt was instrumental in helping the women’s soccer team improve this year. She was the Middle Atlantic Player of the Year and an Academic All-America selection.

MEN’S ROOKIE OF THE YEAR: Vontra Long

The freshman defensive back had an all-time average during football being named MEAC Rookie of the Year by being second in the conference with four forced fumbles. Long also added 65 total tackles for the 1999 season at an average of 11 per game.

Women’s Rookie of the Year: Andrea Gardner

Gardner played like a veteran this season. She averaged 11.2 points per game, 11.5 rebounds, shot 47 percent from the field and collected 32 blocks during the season. Gardner officially aided the Lady Bears winning the MEAC regular season title.

MEN’S COACH OF THE YEAR: Paul Cotton

Dr. Cotton helped place a wrestler in the NCAA Tournament this season. The “super” medics strive toward becoming the most respected team on Howard’s campus. The scary thing is that the team will only rebuild for next year.

WOMEN’S COACH OF THE YEAR: Ann Pomerantz

Watching the women’s lacrosse team play has been a treat this year. Pommert­son has the team playing better than...

Stephan Marbury Rises to Top of NBA

By John Kokenesy
HoopBeat Staff Writer

In 1995, Stephan Marbury sat in the Georgia Tech student section and looked up into the calling. Marbury, who was then a freshman point guard for the Yellowjackets, was contemplating a jump to the NBA. He reportedly told an area high school coach that he would like to attempt to become a professional basketball player on the national stage. That move would eventually prove successful for the 6-foot-3 guard from Georgia Tech.

Marbury's basketball career was the topic of discussion for the entire year at Georgia Tech. He was named to the ACC All-Conference Team three times in his four-year career, and he was selected as the ACC Player of the Year in 1998. After his senior season, Marbury declared himself eligible for the NBA draft. He was selected 11th overall by the New York Knicks in the 1996 NBA draft.

Since then, Marbury has had a successful career in the NBA. He has played for several teams over the years, including the Memphis Grizzlies, the Phoenix Suns, and the Dallas Mavericks. He has also been a key contributor to several playoff runs and has earned a reputation as a clutch player in big games.

Marbury has been a leader in the NBA community, using his platform to speak out on social issues. He has been involved in various philanthropic endeavors, including the Stephan Marbury Foundation, which works to provide opportunities for underprivileged children.

Marbury is one of the most dynamic and exciting players in the NBA today. His skills and leadership have helped him become a star on the court and a leader off the court.

ASU SPORTS WEEK

Week's Best of the Best

Bobby Townsend VS. Bethune-Cookman

This year's Heroes of Our Past contest featured a head-to-head battle between two former ASU basketball stars: Bobby Townsend (1979) and Bethune-Cookman (1980). The two legends faced off in a classic showdown that had fans on the edge of their seats.

The game was a back-and-forth affair, with both teams putting up a strong fight. In the end, it was Bethune-Cookman who emerged victorious, securing a hard-fought 80-78 win.

This year's Heroes of Our Past contest was a testament to the enduring legacy of these two legendry players and the exciting history of ASU basketball. The game was a must-see for ASU fans and basketball enthusiasts alike.
The Bison Track Team has New Coaches with New Agenda

By MONE'SIA JEMIA CARTER

A new era has arrived at Howard University. Coach Shivers has retired after 4 years of dedication to the team. With the start of the 2013 Bison Track, Coach Merritt has assumed the post of head coach. She has trained for years to get to where she is now and is ready to lead her team to success.

A high school Senior in Science at Mount St. Mary's College, began his dynamic coaching career and has a fresh outlook that will set dedication to the team. With the start of the New Agenda, the Bison Track Team will be looking to improve on all levels.

3 MINUTE DRILL
Will Howard's Pursuit of Perfection Finally End?

Finally, the list of potential candidates to fill the vacant men's basketball head coaching job is down to three. Former Virginia Tech and Tennessee State coach Ben Betts, an assistant at College of Charleston, and Russell Davis, who has been a head coach for the past two years, are the final candidates. The Bison Track Team is looking to improve on all levels.

White
in a
Black World

By Susan A. Koner

What is it like to be white in a black man's world? Looking around Howard's campus one can see it everywhere: in the attitudes of white students, black students, white students' attitudes toward black students, black students' attitudes toward white students. It is a world of contrasting classes that is often difficult to navigate.

At Howard University, white students are a minority. Black students make up the majority. This is true in every facet of campus life: in the classroom, on the basketball court, in the dorms, and even in the dining hall. The experience of being a white student at Howard is unique.

White students often feel out of place and isolated, especially when compared to their black counterparts. They may struggle to find a sense of belonging and may feel pressure to conform to the expectations of their black classmates. This can be a challenging and isolating experience.

On the other hand, white students may feel empowered by their unique perspective and may use their experiences to promote understanding and unity on campus. They may work to bridge the gap between black and white students, fostering a more inclusive environment.

The experience of being a white student at Howard University is one of contrasts and contradictions. It is a world where students must navigate the complexities of race and identity. The challenge is to find a way to bridge the gap and create a more inclusive and understanding community.

The story of a student named John, a white student at Howard University, provides a glimpse into the challenges and opportunities of being a white student in a black man's world.

Italian: was only one problem though — you want to move something. Mission fun. It makes you want to get in front of your friends, do a surprise dance, as Mr. T says, “I’ll do anything but the legs.” Must be that you’re missing the party or your Wu-Tang brothers were left behind. Hence, I’m making sure that you’re always one step ahead of your friends.

The song “Hip-hop is not one of the main things” is said to be going to the “show” and keeping the audience in suspense. Common, of course, is an emcee’s dream, able to read the crowd and adjust his performance accordingly. His single “Levitt” is a love story, because it isn’t. It’s more of a social commentary, like that. I wouldn’t show my face either.
