I I torically black colleges and universities began producing a monthly online channel on campus just throwing news stories onto publishing online editions. The Hilltop of Howard University, one of the most influential and widely read campus newspapers, boasts an easy-to-navigate journalism program that helps campus papers online newspaper at the 2006 College Publisher, a company that received both acclaim and recognition for its excellence in journalism. The paper won the University's Student Paper of the Year Award in 2006.

A study of college students revealed that students who read newspapers more attrac- tively and rely on newspapers for news were more likely to participate in extracurricular activities and to be involved in their college community. Move Around

Kala Ighsan, a junior from Alhambra, Calif., brings her car to Howard University because she feels it is easier to get around on her own. "It is easier to get around, but it costs a lot of money for parking," Ighsan said. She did not fully understand the dorm system until she noticed that she has received her first parking ticket.

"I was basically ambushed by D.C. parking enforcement and given a $20 ticket for being in front of the Quad for five minutes. I thought it was nuts," Ighsan said.

To avoid the problem that Ighsan encountered with D.C. parking, many people are finding other ways to circumvent the usage rules at Howard.

The Problem with Drew Hall

Many former residents of Drew Hall do not agree with the traditions that come with living in the all-male dorm.

"I don't think they think they're smarter than everyone else," Robinson said. "They have a level of respect for the women here. If you come and you call these women rats, you can expect to get it," Robinson said.

The catalyst to this trend in thought is the people who live in Drew, who decided to write a perspective to the Hill Top expressing their thoughts.

Almost every feature of the build, from the shoes that I own, to the picture on the wall, was designed to be used by the students of the Hill Top. But the problem is, how does one know if they are doing it right?

"Being honored at the reception was a great thing," said Evans. "It's a way to be rewarded for what you do." The former resident assistant agreed that he was happy with the ceremony. "I'm glad to see that the event was successful. I am looking forward to seeing more of this kind of event in the future," Evans said.

The mission of Omega Psi Phi is to serve the community. "The organization is one of the negative traditions that come with living in Drew," said Omega Psi Phi, Marvin Anderson, editor of the Omega Psi Phi's newspaper, The Omega Psi Phi Realm.

"I think it's a wonderful opportunity to make a difference," Anderson said. "It's a chance for us to give back to the community and show our commitment to the Omega Psi Phi fraternity."

The Omega Psi Phi Realm is a publication that is produced by the members of the fraternity. It is a way for them to express their thoughts on issues that are important to them.

"I think it's a wonderful opportunity to make a difference," Anderson said. "It's a chance for us to give back to the community and show our commitment to the Omega Psi Phi fraternity."

THE HILLTOP
Ford Racing To First Southern Black Senator Since Reconstruction

BY BRADY HAMMOND (CONTRIBUTING WRITER)

It looked like blacks were done with the GOP. African-Americans have voted heavily for Democrats for the last five years. It seemed inevitable that the southern Republican Party was moving in a new direction and its message was clear: black people don't vote for them. The Democrat况且on was thereby reinforced, and the time seemed ripe for a new northern black senator to take the lead to represent the interests of African-American voters.

However, in the last few years, a few things have changed. First, Republicans have been successful in winning over black voters in some states. Second, the Democratic Party has not been able to capture the attention of black voters as effectively as in the past. And finally, Ford, a Republican candidate, is running in a race that could determine the future of the party in the south.

It's true that many of the most prominent African-American politicians today are Democrats. However, Ford's presence in the race has raised questions about the future of the Republican Party in the south. It's possible that Ford could win, and that would signal a turning point for the party in the region.

The election in Mississippi is important because it is the first time since Reconstruction that a black man has run for the Senate. If Ford wins, it would be a significant victory for the Republican Party and would demonstrate that the party is capable of representing the interests of black voters.

In conclusion, the race in Mississippi is a key contest that could have important implications for the future of the Republican Party. If Ford wins, it will be a major victory for the party and a significant step forward in its efforts to win over black voters.

GOP Highlights Black Candidates

BY BRADY HAMMOND (CONTRIBUTING WRITER)

It looks like the days of the all-black Senate are over. The new Congress is filled with black politicians, and it's clear that the Republican Party is taking steps to attract black voters. However, the party still has a long way to go in terms of winning over black voters and building a lasting base of support.

In conclusion, the Republican Party has made some progress in attracting black voters, but it still has a long way to go. The party needs to continue to work on building a strong base of support for black voters if it hopes to compete in the future.

Bison Get First Win, Defeat Fort Valley State, 34-19

BY ELLIOTT JONES

While Fort Valley State scored first on a field goal, 13-0, this weekend, the Bison dominated the rest of the game. The Bison scored a touchdown on their first possession, and never looked back. They held Fort Valley State scoreless for the remainder of the game, winning 34-19.

The Bison started off with a combined effort of running back Darryl Jones and quarterback Brooks Warfield. The two ran the ball for 36 yards and set the tone for the rest of the game.

In the second half, Howard scored a touchdown on a 12-yard pass from quarterback Brooks Warfield to wide receiver William King. This was the first of four touchdowns for Howard in the second half.

The Bison defense played a crucial role in securing the victory. They held Fort Valley State to just 19 points, while scoring 34 points themselves. The defense was particularly strong in the second half, allowing only one touchdown from Fort Valley State.

Overall, it was a dominant performance by the Bison, who took control of the game early on and never let go. The win moves the Bison to 1-3 on the season, and gives them hope for future games.

Men's and Women's Soccer Teams Lose to NJIT Highlanders

BY WINNIE CLARK-JENKINS

This weekend, the Bison soccer teams played against the NJIT Highlanders and suffered a loss in both games.

The men's team played against the NJIT Highlanders on Saturday. The game was evenly matched, with both teams scoring goals. However, the NJIT Highlanders were able to take control in the second half and went on to win 2-1.

On Sunday, the women's team played against the NJIT Highlanders again. The game was close throughout, with both teams scoring goals. However, the NJIT Highlanders were able to hold on to their lead and win 1-0.

Despite the losses, the teams showed resilience and played well against a strong opponent. Both teams have the opportunity to learn from the losses and improve for future games.

Coming From America: Black Americans Visit 'Motherland'

BY DANIELLE KWATE NG

During the early half of the twentieth century, "Greevy's was popular throughout the black community. During the 1920s, the idea of "Black Pitch" reminded the general meaning of Black Americans & Ayemeh. When Ayemeh was traveling to Ghana in 1957 and came back replacing the erroneous stories the country made. He encouraged black Americans to go. Blacks felt a deeper connection in Africa in these days because a lot of African aspects were still prominent in black American culture.

Many question whether there remains a strong connection between black Americans and Africa. Many feel that Africa no longer has the same connection to the black American community.

Hilltop second Fashion Show, the sale for the most anticipated events: the Comedy Show, the Concert and the Step Show.

Our View:
Howard Homecoming is a national event. The committee should have been more considerate when putting tickets on sale in a timely manner.

On our way to put tickets on sale to the Homecoming, tickets should have been more considerate when putting tickets on sale in a timely manner. The delay is because the committee makes this year Howard Homecoming is by far the national event. The committee spent the entire summer on campus preparing for the October event. We know you know worked hard to get there. It's time to have the comedy show and to bring Hollywood to Howard with Ice Cube as parade marshal, and that same hard work should go to putting tickets on sale responsibly.

Homecoming tickets... Finally

A few weeks ago, The Hilltop gave students advice on being considerate when buying tickets and realizing that's not the primary buyers. But, that doesn't mean we aren't the primary buyers. The reality is that no matter how you're interested in becoming a staff writer, you must attend.
