Miss Howard Reflects

BY TRAVER RIGGINS

Miss Howard, Shayna Rudd, a junior criminal justice major, has specific words to describe her reign since November 2005. "I really identify with the question and answer portion of my reign. "I really identify with the question and answer portion of my reign."

"I don't understand why campus police are here. They are not doing anything to stop the fights," said Rudd. "William Bell, a sophomore undeclared major.

On the contrary, campus police officer said that he had to stop students going in line their debit card to buy tickets for them. Students eventually learned that there were no credit or debit cards without the ID of the person in the line.

The long line formed students from wanting to get their tickets, as they opted to buy tickets online at www.ticketmaster.com.

"I can't be doing this this year. Writing in line. Miss Howard is just getting to go in front of the line."

Injuries Create Bison Quarterback Carousel

BY SETH MCGEE

With injuries playing a large role during the preseason, Hampton, Virginia, head coach Mike Ferguson decided to keep the seniors injured healthy in games by subbing quarterbacks so often that it disables the team from hitting Florida and defending MEAC leaders, Howard (4-0). Who Coach Ferguson has chosen to run the offense in the second half of the season? Ferguson said, "We're definitely a work in progress. This is a young group of quarterbacks, most of which have never played in a college game or been a starter," Ferguson said. "Having the quarterback wheat allows them to grow more experience."

Ferguson continued to look to his upperclassmen, such as junior Darrell Turner and senior Will Blanden, for leadership. "Will is here to get the job done, he can stay healthy. Behind Blanden, Turner is our second guy," Ferguson said.

Sophomore Martin December has been sharing quarterback duties with seniors Will Blanden and Darrell Turner, and freshmen Floyd Haigler in the first games of the season.

Ferguson continues to look to his upperclassmen, such as junior Darrell Turner and senior Will Blanden, for leadership. "Will is here to get the job done, he can stay healthy. Behind Blanden, Turner is our second guy," Ferguson said. "I think a lot of faith in Blanden upon his return, referring to him as a 'complete quarterback' Blanden is second in passing yards (14.44) rush yards (193) averaging 2.1 yards per carry. He has also scored one of the team's two touchdowns."

As for the rest of the season, injuries will be the deciding factor as to who will play. This upcoming week, sophomore Floyd Haigler is expected to return after sitting out the last few weeks with a foot injury. From the outside looking in, it may seem as though this quarterback carousel is not helping the Bison win, but Ferguson guarantees that it is best for the well-being of his players, as well as the team.

Hampton Holds off Hornets, Remains No. 6

The Flashes managed to remain undefeated, as they used a defensive stand late in the game, despite being down, 14-6.

The No. 1 ranked Flashes scored 20 unanswered points and held the Hornets to just 23 yards of total offense. They allowed total offense bringing their record to 9-0-2 MEAC.

Blanden Receives MEAC Weekly Honorable Mention

Blenden quarterback William Blanden ranked for the conference high 107 yards and three pass completions, also in a career-high, against F.

Valdosta State in a second MEAC weekly football honor.

School Shootings All Tragic

Just yesterday three people were shot to death at a one room school in Pennsylvania, and three girls ages 11 to 12 were hospitalized.

"The school house massacre was the third deadly school shooting in less than a week. Before the gun smoke had settled attention, at best. There were ever is in the vicinity is not. The black community is shocked with the magnitude. There are many Hilltop staff members stated, shooting wanton attacks with the media." The black community should be a concern to the nation. Unfortunately, the loss of inner city black students is just a heart-break and should be a concern to both the black community and the media.

Our View: The current outbreak of school shootings is sad and disturbing. The loss of inner city black students is a heart-break and should be a concern to both the black community and the media.

It is the responsibilities of the citizen. As many Hilltop staff members stated, shooting wanton attacks with the media, the loss of inner city black students is a heart-break. The black community must be hearers of our safety and that of our children. The communities must speak up.

And another thing about work: when you get talking about all the little things. The little things are big. A small detail like failing to call, illegal work, or work and roles that make it feel as if you are just laboring away like a fish out of water, trying to play catch-up and make up for all your mistakes at the same time.
