Investing Gaining Popularity Among College Students

By DERRICK MILLER

Many students still are interested in investing. A recent survey found that 77 percent of college students are interested in investing. This number is up from 71 percent in 2005. The survey was conducted by the National Association of Investors Corporation (NAIC) and the National Business Educators Association (NBEA).

The survey found that 72 percent of students believe investing is important for their future. This is up from 65 percent in 2005. The survey also found that 55 percent of students believe they will need to save for their retirement. This is up from 49 percent in 2005.

The survey also found that 62 percent of students believe they will need to save for their retirement. This is up from 57 percent in 2005. The survey also found that 55 percent of students believe they will need to save for their retirement. This is up from 49 percent in 2005.

Dana Morgan - Classical Pianist

The great music composer Sergei Rachmaninoff once said, "I believe that music is a living thing, and that a human is not enough for music." The quote guides the life of the Silva-itself-darling concert pianist and Howard alumna Dana Kristina-Joi Morgan.

Morgan graduated from Howard in 2005 with a Master's Degree in music and hopes of continuing Howard's legacy and paying the way for other African American classical pianists.

"Howard offered her an excellent teacher and gave her an opportunity to play in many concerts beyond Howard. She also learned so much just from her struggles and setbacks over situations in the administrative process," Morgan said. Morgan went on to describe Morgan as the "epitome of a lady." Morgan has gained the acceptance of many music greats including Quincy Jones. Morgan just what she needed to become a leading young pianist in many different areas. Howard offered her an excellent teacher and gave her an opportunity to play in many concerts beyond Howard. She also learned so much just from her struggles and setbacks over situations in the administrative process.

Howard offered her an excellent teacher and gave her an opportunity to play in many concerts beyond Howard. She also learned so much just from her struggles and setbacks over situations in the administrative process.

Morgan said. She also wants to offer affordable piano lessons for others. But for now, Morgan is excited to prepare for her upcoming performances. She's looking forward to bringing her music to the world, sharing her passion for music with others.

Morgan left the Howard campus with a Master's Degree in music and hopes of continuing Howard's legacy and paying the way for other African American classical pianists. She is determined to make a difference in the world of music through her talent and dedication.

CDC Recommends Routine HIV/AIDS Testing

BY CLAUDIA HART

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is recommending that HIV testing be done as routine health checks, a move that is expected to increase testing rates among high-risk populations.

The CDC's recommendation is part of a broader strategy to reduce the number of new HIV infections in the United States. The agency estimates that there are about 35,000 new infections each year, and that the vast majority of these cases could be prevented with better access to testing.

The CDC's revised recommendations for HIV testing are being implemented in partnership with local health departments and other organizations that provide health care services to high-risk populations. The new guidelines are designed to increase access to testing and make it easier for people to get tested.

The CDC's recommendation is based on evidence that routine HIV testing can help reduce the number of new infections and improve health outcomes for people who are infected. The agency estimates that routine testing could prevent about 4,000 new infections each year.

The CDC's recommendation is not mandatory, but it is expected to be adopted by many health care providers and organizations. The agency is also working to increase public awareness about the benefits of routine HIV testing.

The debate over whether to provide routine HIV testing has been ongoing for several years. Some advocates argue that routine testing is necessary to reduce the number of new infections and improve health outcomes for people who are infected. Others argue that routine testing could be costly and stigmatizing for some populations.

Despite these concerns, the CDC's recommendation is expected to be widely adopted by health care providers and organizations. The agency is also working to increase public awareness about the benefits of routine HIV testing.

Volleyball Team Heads to Round-Up

By Julienne Hencel

Yesterday the Lady Bison volleyball team traveled to Greensboro, N.C., to participate in the annual Middle Eastern Athletic Conference (MEAC) Round-Up.

Howard will play five MEAC teams in nine days. Howard will face the Spartans of South Carolina State, Florida A&M, Norfolk State and Howard's cross-town rivals, the Lady Bison of North Carolina A&T. The tournament begins this evening at 5 p.m. The Lady Bison face the Spartans of South Carolina State.

The North Carolina A&T Aggies are the teams that will be awaiting Howard, and they must be able to outmaneuver Howard's defense. Howard's standout linebacker Omotade earned MEAC Defensive Player of the Week honors after his performance last Saturday.

The Bears have won two games in a row, defeating Bethune-Cookman University in the MEAC. Howard will look to continue their winning streak against Morgan State in another MEAC game.

Howard’s standout linebacker Omotade believes that the strongest key to MEAC competition is to "play with a purpose." He has been a challenge for the Lady Bison to overcome against their opponents. They must be able to adjust and compete according to the circumstances.

Howard Football Team to Face Morgan State Bears in Homecoming Showdown

The Howard Bison football team will square off against regional rival Morgan State from nearby Baltimore this evening at 7 p.m. at Greene Stadium.

Howard is coming off a 12-0 loss to Winston-Salem State on the road last Saturday. Meanwhile, the Bears (2-3 overall, 2-1 in the MEAC) beat North Carolina A&T 32-0 last weekend in Greenville, S.C.

Last year, Howard was shut out by the Bears 7-0 at Morgan State. Howard will look to take revenge against their first MEAC opponent in nearly a month.

The Bears are in a 2-3 position in the MEAC.

Howard's standout linebacker Omotade led the Aggies with 18 kills, four assists and four aces in last Tuesday's three-set, 3-0, victory against East Tennessee State. He also had 10 digs and five blocks in the MEAC Round-Up in the MEAC conference standings.

For the first time in its history, Howard hosted the MEAC Alumni Volleyball Round-Up tournament against Howard. The Lady Bison's final match will be against Bethune-Cookman University.

The Lady Bison are ranked fifth in the MEAC standings. According to MEAC sports secretary, North Carolina A&T athletic director and MEAC conference commissioner, the Lady Bison defeated the Delaware State Lady Bears earlier in the season.

The Lady Bears hopes of winning a struggles against Howard's defense, and they must be able to adjust and compete according to the circumstances.

Today is Vannealt, which has the highest attendance of any of this week's events as per wordings from the mayor's office. As you can guess, the event is a taste for Howard's students, and no one knows about it. Can't wait for next week. We welcome you to The Hilltop, we ask you to treat our University in the same way that you would your name. We are most importantly, charged with the task of having a message of Howard back to the world.

Senator John Kerry came to this campus, and no one knows about it. He shared it. And although it's business as usual, it is a great thing and we want the world to know.

We are privileged to have students in the School of Communications last year bill giving a talk at the University. And although it’s business as usual, it is a great thing and we want the world to know. Our View:

Our View: We, as a university have to do a better job of informing the public of the great things that go on here. Homecoming is great, but just one of the many areas in which we excel.

Student organizations here to do our part by submitting photographs to University Communications, as they are the ones who get the word out on the great things that are going on. And the Administration must do its part by taking a more active role in informing the world of the great things students are doing.

In 1999, BEST broadcasted the Homecoming Step Show, which was a hit, but why two student photographers to foreign alumns? Article. The story followed a student who was seriously considered Howard, but didn’t accept the offer. That student and didn’t like its facilities and even if we were to begin our coverage of Howard and its rich history.

We applaud the alumni who don’t know about Howard. Though Howard at all in the world must take note. We applaud the alumni who don’t know about Howard. Though Howard at all in the world must take note. Though the alumni who don’t know about Howard. Though Howard at all in the world must take note.

But even if we do our share, some of the president’s alumni are still green. And we still need more people to let Howard all in the world.

Pleas, everybody come from across the nation with national speakers and addinr to that tradition and charge you to take the council for a taste of Howard. We applaud the alumni who don’t know about Howard. Though Howard at all in the world must take note. Though the alumni who don’t know about Howard. Though Howard at all in the world must take note.
