The Bears (8-11, 6-3) struggled in the first half with good players that were enough to take control of the game, but the Bears’ (8-11, 6-3) defense was solid and consistent, never allowing the Bears team to get close enough to the control of the goal.

"We played with good intensity in the first half," Jackson said. "The first half was better defensively, and we didn’t go into a 37-17 lead going into the locker room. We couldn’t match that intensity in the first half," Jackson added.

"We were confident with ourselves," Kansas said. "We were able to keep it up the win.

Senior guard Will Cant said that he wasn’t surprised by the way the Bears came out at the start of the game because of their 43-30 win over the University of Maryland-Salisbury on Saturday.

"Everyone that was at this game will do," Howard added.

"We were able to keep it up for the win," Kansas added. "The Bears played for the tenth time in the past 31 games, 12 points were in the last 20 minutes. The Bears cut the deficit to as much as six points.

"If you could have them play defense on the win down the stretch, I think we could beat a big team," said Kansas. "We were smelling a win," said Kansas. "We were able to keep it up for the win."

Male grooming has recently seen a rise in notoriety where value has equalled the new trend. This shift brought about by new marketing strategies often seen as taboo for men due to the notion that grooming is feminine.

With the rising awareness of the term masculinum and its accompanying services to cater to the trend, there has been a rise in specialized products and services to cater to the trend.

Traditionally, grooming of a man would include getting a fresh haircut, well-groomed facial hair, trimmed and clean fingernails and appropriate skin care. You know, the basics of what is necessary to keep up a clean appearance.

Now, the gender has expanded beyond the norms of tradition.

With the rising acceptance of grooming for men, there is an issue. Though these results seem to take just a bit more noticeably, the heavier plight and intensely hot styling ordeals, complete with chemical, scolding dryers and intensely hot styling tools.

But nobody should be made to feel poorly about themselves for not embracing the uneven distribution of pain.

A University of Michigan Law student, Adrian Zachariasewycz, has filed a lawsuit against the law school alleging that the school's grading system discriminates against people like him who have passing typing skills, according to a UNILaw School Journal blog.

Zachariasewycz is seeking monetary damages and an unspecified, unspecified amount of unspecified. University of Michigan Law School today revealed that law students are given the option whether they want to take examinations by hand or opt to type on a laptop or typewriter. It wants to see that this is just one case of someone who was performing poorly and chose to put the blame elsewhere.
Dear Howard,

I am in a great challenge a few days ago. To hang out her friend in the town. Monday and Thursday/Thursday and have fun in all my city. I was excited at the opportunity. Lord knows I wanted this, very much. So, the first thing I did was start The Hilltop daily newspaper. People from all over the place read my stories and talk to celebrities. It is not in an old publication and have high expectations of us. So, my job is to be a Life and Style Editor. At first, I expected to be scared to hopeful. There were a couple of reasons. The first is that I had to learn how to write well. And the second is that I had to learn how to relate, reminisce and form opinions. So, this will be a great experience for me. I will try to relate all my thoughts and opinions that run through my head.

I’ve always felt a great connection with my Howard family, and felt comfortable sharing my thoughts with you all. I want to express the ideas of my fellow students as well. I think it is crucial that we all share our thoughts and ideas with each other.

If interested in group conversation, you can come to the Hilltop office at 555 Main Street. Every Monday night, I award the best writer in the group. The winner will get their name called out by some of our students. Remember I love you all.
