The Howard Hampton Cabaret is a joint effort of sporting events sponsored by Zill that will raise money for both the Howard Hampton Cabaret and Just Do It.

The Biscuit Roll Foundation is sponsored by Oakland Magic player Timor Haraway. On the foundation, "The foundation seeks to be a part of the Biscuit Roll," said Haraway. Although it has an economic impact and has an impact on the local community, it is also a way for people to come together and make new friends.

Harvey also said the ELI Institute focuses on four areas: entrepreneurship, leadership, and community development and most importantly, entrepreneurship, social entrepreneurship.

The ELI Institute plans to celebrate the first successful class of graduating seniors during this year’s commencement.

The ELI Institute was launched through a nationwide competition in December 2003 by the Kauffman Foundation as a way to transform how colleges and universities prepare students for the workforce of the future.

Harvey said that Howard students have become successful entrepreneurs. The ELI Institute has now become a vehicle to help make those Graduates major effective and successful in commercial and social enterprises. Harvey also believes the program is growing and that events such as the Entrepreneurship Networking Honors reception is evidence of this.

"This event, along with other activities, suggests that the program will grow over time as more students and entrepreneurs know what is involved, what it is and how everyone can benefit," Harvey said.

Arthur Lewis, a Howard graduate has released his own solo album for the last 25 years.

During his career, Lewis has released his own solo album for the last 25 years.

"I believe this is a great opportunity for Howard students and to create partnerships and to connect with entrepreneurs Howard alumnus," he said.

"I'm from the inner city of Los Angeles. There are not many African Americans attaining higher education. We come from good communities, but being making out of that, we are going to use public criticism to show that you do have to conform to that, you can get an education," Lewis said.

"Fundraising is also the reason they decided to change the name of the event. We’ve got a big reason. We only need their grace.

African Channel CEO to Speak at Rankin Chapel

BY SHANAE HARRIS

James Makawa, the co-founder and chief executive officer of the Africa Channel, will speak on "Uniting the World; Meeting the Needs of Africa" at Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, tomorrow at 7 p.m. The event is a commemoration sponsored by the Howard University Student Alumni Association and the Spiritual Assembly of the Baha’is of Washington, D.C.

Makawa is a professor of public relations at Howard University, the public relations representative for the event, and the person who has shed light on the channel’s efforts to open a window into modern African life and its process, "helping them understand the continent for American viewers."

Makawa’s remarks will be the keynote address of this year’s commemoration of the 1912 call to action at Howard University by Abdu’l-Baha, the son of the Baha’i faith’s founder.

"We are delighted to have Mr. Makawa as our speaker this year because this is a reminder to us that we are a community and must advance our identity as a humanistic, worldwide community comprised with people of all different races and cultures," Frieda Runis, a member of the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahai’s of Washington, D.C., said in a press release.

"Makawa will be sharing his reporter and anchor side with leading reporters before joining NBC News as a correspondent in New York and Chicago."

As a network executive vice president for program acquisition and distribution, Makawa has to say, "I think it is a pretty interesting message that he is bringing and he is such an articulate person."

In addition to Makawa, the talk will include a welcome and introduction by Rebecca Whorld, president of the board, and a reception held in the chapel.

In 2005, Makawa and two partners established the Africa Channel. The Africa Channel is hosting "Connecting Hearts and Minds of Africa," to help clear up American misconceptions.

Ladies of the Quad Social Club

BY SHANAE HARRIS

In 1996, a group of women came together with an aim to help freshman women adjust to Howard University by creating the task necessary to increase their talents and goals. The group transformed themselves into the Ladies of the Quad Social Club (LOQ) and set out to promote scholarship, social awareness and community service.

In the past two years, LOQ Chapter 23 has a larger number of 35 members and is still carrying out the original main goal of organization.

India Clark, a member of the social club, takes pride in what her organization and specific chapter has done as far as service in the District.

"We have been offering services at the Community Center of Hope House for women everyday everywhere where we provide children," Clark said. "We also are around our own family and school welsh.

The group’s efforts of community service do not stop there.

Community service dues Maria Rincon said the ladies participated in a drive for the community, comparing to get people to walk and raised $35,000 through sponsored participants.

In addition to community service, LOQ also stress on strong sisterhood and friendship.

"I am an only child, and this means I don’t get to bond with my friends, so being in this group is like having friends besides the group's community service," Rincon said. "These are the connections, the relationships, that are making us a part of this organization as a whole. No matter what, I know that I always have someone to talk to.

"So much to do, so little time..."

The allergy season has always been a threat to the health of many hay fever and asthma sufferers. The allergy season is the time of year when the weather is warmest and pollen counts are highest. These substances are called allergens, or substances that trigger an allergic reaction. When allergens are present, symptoms of a reaction can be sneezing, coughing, wheezing, or shortness of breath.

Many of the discount stores bargain shoppersfrequent include T.J. Maxx, Marshalls and Loehmann's. These stores are substantially lower than department stores are prone to cut corners on fabric quality and workmanship. For the student worrying about academics, extracurricular activities and coursework, buying clothes can be a tough decision.

According to the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the symptoms of an allergic reaction can range from mild to severe. The most common symptoms are sneezing, runny nose, itchy eyes, hives, and scratching. In severe cases, anaphylaxis can occur. Anaphylaxis is a life-threatening condition that requires immediate medical attention.

As of yet, no freshman NCAA basketball players, including Texas star Kevin Durant, have entered their names in this year's NBA draft.

The NBA's age minimum rule has amplified an increased number of star calibers that are willing to hold onto their years of playing eligibility left.

...and grades further. How can we be expected to concentrate on the rest of the course? Their attention is taken up by the seniors in their classes, no matter how few there are. It takes time to figure out grades, at one time period for some students and then at another.

Our View: Having two schedules for finals is time consuming, stressful and illogical.

The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences is naturally divided into administrative and teaching faculty. The only right and privilege attached to being a member of the graduate faculty is that of being a member of the organization of a graduate student. The only time to reexamine the graduate faculty is the first time the faculty has been appointed. The only time to do this is to examine the mandate and mission of the graduate faculty. There is no added compensation, just added administrative headaches.

The GSAS, consequently, must necessarily mean work for both. One of its principal work-week projects is the organization of a graduate student faculty. The only right and privilege attached to being a member of the graduate faculty is that of being a member of the graduate faculty. There is no mandate to reexamine the mission of the graduate faculty. There is no mandate to look at the mandate and mission of the graduate faculty.
