Officials Check University with Self-Study Program

By Traver Rogers
Campus Editor

The university was first accredited by the Association to National Standards in 1919, following its accreditation by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education in 1913. The university-wide review, which included the entire student body, was prompted by the recent decline in enrollment and the need for improvement in the academic programs. It was anticipated that the self-study will analyze the school's status and progress over the last 50 years. The university-wide review is expected to take place in January 2008 and will begin with the self-study phase. The review is expected to be completed by the end of the spring semester.

Re-Leasing at Maryland Apartments

By Mónica Jones

But a combination of roommates and lack of personal freedom were the reasons why Williams decided against moving into the residence hall. "I didn't like the fact that we could only have two people in our room," he said. "It's too small and the Internet access is bad. We have to walk a lot far to the library.

Over 150 staff, faculty and students, who are members of the university's Black Student Union, gathered on the lawn of the university president's residence to protest the recent events. The protest, which was organized by the Black Student Union, was held to mourn the death of Juneteenth and to express support for the university's Black Student Union. The protest was attended by members of the Black Student Union and the university's Black Student Government.

Texas Southern Looks Forward to New President

By Adelyn H. Harro

On Aug. 27, a small group of people gathered on the campus of Texas Southern University to support the incoming President. The group, which was led by members of the university's Black Student Government, was joined by members of the university's Black Student Union. The event was attended by members of the Black Student Union and the university's Black Student Government.

Due to the unannounced nature of the event, the campus police were called to the scene. A year ago, Joseph Williams, a resident of Prince George's Plaza, thought he found the ideal room. He was looking for a place that was close to the university, had easy access to stores and was not too far away. He found the perfect room a block away from the university and paid $633 a month for rent. However, due to the unannounced nature of the event, the campus police were called to the scene. Jena Rally Fills Cromat, Spills Outdoors

BY REBECCA PETIT
Washington, D.C.

On Saturday afternoon, Sept. 22, more than a thousand people converged on the Howard University campus to participate in the Howard University Jena "6" Rally. The Howard community was preparing to address concerns over the status of the six teenagers — known as the Jena "6" — in the southern Louisiana city who were accused of beating a white teenager.

Starlette Hines, coach, instructs and leads the Howard University Marching Band. She is the first female drum major at the university in over 20 years.

"I grew up in Jena, Louisiana, and I know what it is like to have your family and community be accredited to the state in a way that isn't a positive one," said Tamia McClain, who served as the vice chairwoman of the policy and planning board, "and I understand what it feels like to not have your voice heard."

Jena is a small town in Louisiana where the white population has outnumbered the black population for many years. The town has a long history of racial tension, and the case of the Jena "6" has brought the issue into national focus.

"We were there to do our best to encourage students to realize the potential of the "University with a Mission,"" said President Peter Carr, who also spoke at the rally.

"I just wish Howard would support the band," she said, "I don't want to do it for the wrong reason. We've got people hope, but we're not doing that, that we want to keep for Howard for a lifetime."

The Howard chapter of the NAACP — which President Roberts and Vare made — will be retiring in the fall of 2007, and the new president for the next year will be elected. Roberts and Vare expressed their enthusiasm for the new president.

"I'm thankful for the true community that Howard has been able to hold onto our vision and the new president will be able to continue this work," said President Peter Carr.

The Jena "6" Rally was a peaceful demonstration in support of the six teenagers who were accused of beating a white teenager in the southern Louisiana city of Jena.

"We want to see a group of students that think about what's happening on campus, on campus and off-campus. We want to give these students a voice in what's happening on campus and off-campus. We want to see if we can give these students a voice in what's happening on campus and off-campus."
Terror Plot Foiled, Three Men Arrested in Connection

BY MATTHEW SCHOFIELD

A potentially "momentous" terrorist attack against U.S. interests in 12218 was thwarted last Saturday from a forest hiding place in a town in Mecklenburg-Vorpommern, a village of 900 in central Germany, and allegedly begins constructing bombs with what they found in an empty shed adjacent to their home. This week, they fled with their materiel, suspecting their plans going off the way they'd anticipated, police said.

After a chance encounter with a traffic cop, they lost their nerve and decided to flee, police said. At 2:15 p.m. on Saturday, 600 anti-terrorism police moved in and arrested them, making them the latest in a long list of terrorist attacks thwarted in Europe.

In Copenhagen on Wednesday, Danish police announced the arrests of nine men on charges of plotting terrorist attacks. Danish Police Intelligence officer Jacob Schou said the case had international connections, including leading to U.S.-based al-Qaida. As of this writing, two cells of the group called the Paris cell, the second in Denmark, had also identified the 11 suspected players and said the operation was too complex to arrest them.

U.S. officials described the arrested, numbering in Germany, a significant plot as part of a larger al-Qaida network thought to have masterminded recent European attacks, including publishing cartoons in the German newspaper that al-Qaida had ordered burned in Afghanistan.

The German police said they discovered and prevented what would have been "a very dangerous attack" in Germany.
Students Show Hometown Love at New Sports Bar

BY MICHAEL BENJAMIN

Sports fanatics and social butterflies can now lounge and enjoy great food, a fine selection of beer, and the hottest entertainment stocked in the bar of their choice.

Nellie's, the new bar in town, is located in the heart of the University of Tampa (UTC) campus.

The bar is owned and operated by a group of local business owners. The owners decided to open a bar on campus because the downtown area is lacking a full-service bar.

The bar is a favorite among UTC students and has become a popular spot for students to hang out and enjoy great food and drinks.

The bar is open from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through Thursday and from noon to 2 a.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

The bar offers a great selection of beer, wine, and spirits, as well as a variety of food options, including sandwiches, burgers, and chicken wings.

The bar also offers live entertainment on most nights, including bands, DJs, and karaoke nights.

The bar is a great place to meet friends, catch up on the latest news, and enjoy a night out with a group of friends.

The bar is open to both students and the public, and is a great way to support local businesses while having a good time.

Public Transportation Guide for Students to Navigate Around

The Web site is growing in popularity and is being used by the majority of students on campus. The site is designed to help students navigate the Washington, D.C. public transportation system, which can be confusing for new students.

The site features a variety of resources, including a map of the Metro system, a list of the most popular Metro stations, and a guide to the different types of Metro tickets.

The site also includes information on how to use the Metrobus, which is a popular option for students who do not own a car.

The site also features a variety of resources for students who are not familiar with the area, including a guide to the different neighborhoods and a list of the best places to eat and drink in D.C.

The site is a great resource for students who are new to D.C. and want to explore the city. The site is easy to use and provides valuable information to help students navigate the city.

Buried N-Word Haunts Black Community

BY MICHAEL TOLKIN Contributing Writer

The "N-word" has been a part of the American vocabulary for genera tions, and many African Americans working to rid our society of it. In 2006, the New York City Council approved a resolution to ban the "N-word," and New York Mayor Ken Thompson's unsuccessful proposal of a citywide ban inspired the New York sneakerheads to voluntarily stop using the word. Unfortunately, this ban has not stopped the use of the word in society. As a result, the New York City Council has reconsidered its proposal to ban the "N-word." It has voted to further study the issue before making a final decision.

By KYLA GRANT

"NYC Mayor plans to introduce a resolution to ban the 'N-word.'" By KYLA GRANT

Ken Corley's unsuccessful proposal of 49-0 vote, the resolution called for New York City to ban the "N-word." The proposal was rejected by the City Council, but it has sparked a debate about the use of the word.

Recent reports have suggested that the use of the "N-word" is declining, but many people in society are still using it. In fact, a recent poll conducted by the National Opinion Research Center found that 47% of Americans believe the use of the "N-word" is acceptable.

The debate over the use of the "N-word" is ongoing, and it is unlikely to be resolved anytime soon. However, there are efforts being made to reduce its use, such as the ban proposed in New York City. As the debate continues, it is important to consider the impact of the "N-word" on society and the need to find a solution to this ongoing controversy.

Virginia, the Land of No Opportunity For Immigrants

The American dream is something intangible, both legal and illegal, that millions stretch for as they ponder its discovery. Unfortunately, the dream is one that, because of the laws and the ever-present threat of deportation, too many find themselves striving for.

An array of proposals is emerging, but if Virginia Republicans have their way even that dream will be curtailed by a host of new restrictions. Following the Virginia primary, politicians have sought to pass legislation barring public universities in the state from admitting any student with a criminal record.

Republican leaders argue that illegal immigrants take advantage of the education system, but if Virginia Republicans have their way even that dream will be curtailed by a host of new restrictions. The trial has left me very much shaken up, both physically and emotionally. I’ve had a lot of sleepless nights and my days are filled with anxiety. I’ve been dealing with a lot of stress and I’m not sure how to cope. I’m trying to be strong for my family, but it’s been really tough.

I’ve been thinking a lot about my future and what the next steps will be. I want to make sure I’m doing everything I can to help myself and my family. I’m trying to stay positive and keep moving forward, but it’s not easy.

I’ve been seeing a therapist and that’s been really helpful. I’m trying to focus on my health and well-being, and I’m trying to make sure I’m eating right and getting enough rest. I’m also trying to find other ways to stay busy and productive, like reading and taking online classes.

I’m also trying to spend time with my family and friends. It’s important for me to have a support system, and I’m really grateful for all the help I’ve been getting.

I’m not sure what the future holds, but I’m trying to take it one day at a time. I’m doing my best to stay positive and I’m hoping for the best.
