Boycott to Show the ‘Power of the Race’

BY MERCIA WILLIAMS-MURRAY

"We will show that race is a powerful tool through which people universally come together and can be heard," said Mercia Williams-Murray.

The Howard chapter of the NAACP, under the leadership of President Alexander Loiseau, is organizing a boycott to show the power of race.

Loiseau said, "The NAACP is organizing a boycott to show the power of race."

The boycott is aimed at raising awareness about the need for increased representation and diversity in the media.

According to the NAACP, the boycott is an "exercise in nonviolent resistance." The organization is calling on black people to show big business that they are the number one consumers in the economy.

Loiseau said, "We are the number one consumers in the economy, and we need to show big business that we are the number one consumers."

Eid-Ad-Fitr Marks End of Ramadan

BY NOTICHE ETHANIA SAPIR

The Muslim Student Association (MSA) held their third annual "Eid-Ad-Fitr" at the Civitas Ballroom on Friday, November 9, 2007, which is also known as Eid Al-Fitr. The event included food, games, music, and presentations from the Islamic community. The event was organized by the Muslim Students Association (MSA) and was attended by members of the Howard University community.

The event began with a welcome speech delivered by MSA President Abdul Malik, who expressed his gratitude to everyone who came out to support the event. He emphasized the importance of unity and the role of Muslims in the larger community.

"I think that the significance of Eid-Ad-Fitr as the Muslim holiday is to celebrate the triumph of good over evil and the victory of light over darkness," said Malik.

Abdul Malik, the keynote speaker, also attended the closing ceremony. He shared his experiences and highlighted the importance of community support and the role of Muslims in the larger community.

"Eid is a time for reflection and gratitude," he said. "It's a time to remember the lessons of the previous year and look forward to the coming year with hope and anticipation."
Suspect in Hit and Run Arrested at Scene

The Metropolitan Police stopped a suspect in the hit and run accident at Columbia and 13th Streets. He was arrested at the scene.

Bush Warns of WWII Threat

BY KRIENET W. PRICE
Conducting War

Ah, Bush never strayed from his lifetime career in studying Russian military history... He surely could be looking for a new health plan... He surely could be looking for a new blood transfusion... He surely could be looking for a new...

The government's response was a new round of rhetoric from various officials in various countries, some advocating for increased military spending, while others called for a diplomatic solution. The situation was escalating, with some experts predicting that it was only a matter of time before a full-scale war broke out.

Smart Fitzjerrell Dresses Good

Heather With Unconventional Style

BY DEBRA CANE

Smart Fitzjerrell, a 41-year-old who has worked in retail for 10 years in New York City, understands what it means to be a minority in the apparel industry. As a black person in the fashion world, she says, she has to work harder to prove herself.

"I want to walk away from my community and no one will say I'm only a black person," she says. "I want to walk away from being a black woman and no one will say I'm only a black woman."

Fitzjerrell is the founder of Smart Studios, a boutique on the Lower East Side of Manhattan that sells women's clothing.

"I wanted to create a space where women of color could feel comfortable and respected," she says. "I wanted to create a space where women of color could find clothes that represent them."

Fitzjerrell's boutique offers a wide range of clothing, from business attire to casual wear. She says she tries to keep her prices affordable and reasonable.

"I want my customers to feel like they're getting a good deal," she says. "I don't want them to feel like they're being taken advantage of."

Fitzjerrell's business has been going strong for five years. She says she has built a loyal customer base.

"I've had customers come back to me just to tell me how much they love their clothes," she says. "They come back to me because they trust me."

Fitzjerrell's future plans include expanding her business to other cities and opening a new boutique in the next five years.

"I want to bring my boutique to other cities," she says. "I want to bring my boutique to other communities that need it most."
No one looks back fondly on the time they spent in a parking garage.
