Bison Unite to Discuss Race, Politics in America

"I believe that law students that are in the South, not just in the South, are not the only ones that need to get involved. This is not just a political issue, this is a social issue. It's a human rights issue."

Andrews Allen, an African-American law student at the University of Minnesota, is a member of the Black Law Students Association. Allen said that the recent events in Ferguson, Missouri, have been critical for the movement of black people to unite and fight for their rights.

"The Black Lives Matter movement is not just about politics, it's about social justice," said Andrews Allen. "We need to make sure that our voices are heard and that our demands are met."

The Black Lives Matter movement has been growing in strength in recent years, with protests and demonstrations across the country. The group was formed in response to the deaths of black people at the hands of police officers.

"The movement has gained a lot of momentum in recent years," said Allen. "We need to continue to push for change and to hold those in power accountable."

The movement has been met with resistance from some law enforcement agencies, who have used force and violence to try to suppress the protests.

"We need to continue to fight for our rights and to demand justice," said Allen. "We cannot give up. We must keep pushing for change."

As Readers Flock to the Web, Magazines Re-Think How They Produce News

By MAIKA DUNN

Contact: maika@umn.edu

"In the past, the Internet was seen as a threat to the magazine industry. But now, it's a tool that we can use to reach our audience and to produce content," said Maika Dunn, a magazine producer.

"Magazines are not just about print anymore," said Dunn. "We need to think about how we can use the Internet to reach our audience and to produce content that resonates with them."

For example, she said, magazines can use the Internet to produce interactive content, like podcasts or videos, that can engage their audience in new ways.

"We need to be creative and think outside the box," said Dunn. "We need to be willing to experiment and to try new things."

As the industry continues to evolve, Dunn said, magazines will need to continue to adapt and to think about how they can use the Internet to reach their audience and to produce content that resonates with them.

Citation campaign posters and handheld scanning camera work as a constant reminder that student election season is fully underway, making every page out of the many students putting their attention towards candidate.

Good Actresses Wanted, Singers Need Not Apply

"Singing is a lot like playing a musical instrument," said the legendary singer, Etta James, one of the greatest female vocalists of all time. "It's all about the control and the passion." James, who died in 2012, was known for her powerful voice and emotive performances, which she used to touch the hearts of her fans all around the world.

Actor/producer Leonard Chess and his company, Bryum, were looking for a new star to play the role of "Carmen Todd," a character based on a real-life woman who was a sidekick to Martin Powers, the sex symbol of the 1950s. The actress they were seeking would need to have the same level of talent and charisma to capture the spirit of the character.

However, Bryum was not looking for just any singer. They were interested in finding an actress who could bring the same level of passion and energy to the role as Etta James did to her music. "Our goal is to find someone who can bring the same level of enthusiasm and excitement to the role as Etta did to her music," said producing partner Nina Knowles.

The casting process was rigorous, and Bryum interviewed many actresses before settling on Beyoncé Knowles. "Beyoncé has the same level of talent and charisma as Etta James," said Knowles. "She has the ability to connect with the audience and to bring the same level of passion to the role as Etta did to her music."
Entrepreneurship A Must For Students

Dana Hendley-Jackson, B.A., BA3

The definition of an entrepreneur according to Webster's dictionary is someone who establishes, organizes, manages, and assumes the risk of a business or enterprise. In other words, an entrepreneur is someone who is willing to become involved in the establishment and management of a new business. Entrepreneurs are not necessarily driven by the goal of making a lot of money, but by a passion to turn their ideas into reality. Entrepreneurs are often intrinsically motivated and driven by a desire to make a difference in the world. But, hear me out. Many entrepreneurs are not only motivated by the desire to make a difference, but also by a desire to create something that is useful and beneficial to others. Entrepreneurs are often seen as the driving force behind the growth and success of many businesses.
