Bison Men Snap Eight-Game Skid

BY SHIVONNE FOSTER

Howard's 问候 exploded all season long as it continued to improve. The Bison have won eight straight games, and they are now 14-4 on the season. Howard is currently ranked 14th in the nation and 2-0 in the Atlantic 10 Conference.

Bison forward Kewon Edwards led Howard in scoring with 16 points and eight rebounds. Howard's defense was strong, holding the Bobcats to just 34 points. Howard's defense was key in its 14th straight win, and Edwards was a key player in that victory.

Howard will look to continue its winning streak as it faces off against a tough conference schedule. The Bison have a chance to make some noise in the Atlantic 10, and Edwards is hoping to lead the way. Howard is looking to make a run in the conference and make some noise in the NCAA tournament. Edwards is hoping to help the Bison achieve that goal.

Betheann House

As the housing season begins, the students of Betheann House find themselves in the throes of changing. The housing season is one of transition for domestic students as they adjust to new living arrrears and new responsibilities. In this transition, students often struggle to adapt to changes in their everyday lives. Betheann House is currently experiencing a period of transition, as it undergoes renovations to improve its facilities and provide a more comfortable living environment for its residents.

The renovations at Betheann House are part of an ongoing initiative by the university to upgrade its facilities and provide a more modern living space for its students. The upgrades include improvements to the common areas, the addition of new amenities, and the improvement of existing ones. The university has invested a significant amount of resources into these renovations, and the students are excited for the changes that are on the horizon.

Despite the challenges that come with transition, students often find themselves growing and mature during these periods of change. The renovations at Betheann House are an example of the university's ongoing efforts to create a more positive living environment for its students. The students of

Beth-

eann House are looking forward to the upcoming changes and are excited to see the improvements that are on the way.

D.C. Fashion Week

Models showed off pearls and other accessories during the closing show at D.C. Fashion Week. The designs were inspired by the movie "Tangled," which starred the voice of Idina Menzel. The models showcased a variety of pieces, from necklaces to earrings, that were inspired by the characters and themes of the movie. The runway was filled with models in elegant gowns and designer pieces, as they walked down the runway to the music of the movie's popular theme song.

The event was a huge success, with attendees eager to see the latest in fashion trends. Models walked down the runway with confidence and grace, showcasing their talents to the audience. The models' outfits were carefully chosen to complement the movie's theme, and the outfits ranged from simple and understated to bold and eye-catching.

The event was hosted by the D.C. Fashion Week organizers, who are committed to promoting local designers and fashion trends. The event was a great success, and many attendees expressed their excitement for future fashion shows, which will continue to showcase the latest in fashion trends. Overall, the event was a great success, and many attendees expressed their excitement for future fashion shows, which will continue to showcase the latest in fashion trends.
We are in search of male & female models for our upcoming ad campaigns. We welcome all sizes! Ages 18+.

You must bring a headshot and a bodyshot to the Room 148/150 in the Blackburn Center. Professional shots are not necessary!

Exhibit Urges Viewers to Take on 'Resistance'

BY TIANA PARNOR

Coordinating Writer

A parent's purpose is to tell a story that's always compelling and easy to devour, to capture the extraordinary turmoil of their life as they care for their children. And for many Black Americans, this is no exception.

"Strike for Your Lives and liberties. Let your resistance in every photo.

"The photo of African-American heroes and celebrities is a summary of American history, culture, and the fight for the American dream."

During segregation, the YWCA was a place where many young Black men and women could understand their own histories and build upon them.

"According to the exhibit's creators, it was a part of a young Thurgood Marshall who was up for civil rights hero Charles Hamilton Houston."

"The photo of African-American heroes and celebrities is a summary of American history and culture."

Four states have delegates up for grabs in Tuesday's contests, Democrats hope to seal nomination

HILLARY CLINTON

BY JACI F. SMITH

The Hillary for New Hampshire is jubilant, but jubilant hopes will face a test in Tuesday's contests in Texas, Ohio, Rhode Island and Vermont primaries.

The delegate taking place in the four states will be an important factor in determining who gets each party's nomination for president.

In Texas, Sen. Barack Obama, D-Ill., and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., are vying for strength in a state where the Hispanic vote could be pivotal. McCain is expected to do well in the border battle, which could be important for border security proposals.

In the past week, Clinton and Obama have flexed their financial muscles to see who can win over the most voters. The most on the ground for Texas and Ohio.

Joe Ducey (a supporter of the campaign) from Columbus, Ohio, said the general Obama has correctly his home state and "will absolutely need help doing that".

"Thank Banner" is a lot more of the "S. Clinton in a lot less. It's a bigger state, Obama is bringing a positive change to our community and on college campuses."

I think that will make a difference when it's time to vote, especially in red areas.

In Texas, the Democratic hope lies in the state's current economy and its proximity to both New York and to swing states. It's been making frequent appearances in the media and on college campuses."

The primary decision in Texas is coming down to how to make a case for the Ohio candidates. While we want those to support programs that both Senator Clinton and I are talking about.

There are 126 delegates at stake, of which 94 are awarded based on the state's total vote for the successful candidates.

The caucus accounts for 247 delegates.

The election in the state will be decided by the candidate who can get out the vote. If they choose to, they can fire up the primary and a campaign will ensue.

Volunteers Try to Swan Voters in Ohio
By Vivian Hoerner

On the bus from Ohio, Senate Barack is in his seat and took a deep breath after a day in Cleveland, on the heels of his victory in New Hampshire.

"Ohio is really excited," he said, referring to the strong turnout in Tuesday's contest. "As a political science professor, those are the best things I can hear.

On Saturday, Feb. 10, 2008, 427 delegates were seated at the convention. The group was convened to nominate Barack Obama for the Ohio primary.

"I thought that the event went pretty well because it allowed me to talk to people in a context in which they could hear what I had to say," said the event's chairwoman.

"I think that the event went pretty well for many reasons. That is the reason that the program has been around a lot in the community and on college campuses."

"For the first time, I don't have to worry about what people are doing for the race."

"I heard that people are talking about what Barack is doing for the race."

"I heard that people are talking about what Barack is doing for the race."
Fashion Show Brings African Paradise to Cramton

BY ERICA ROBINSON
Contribution Editor

As the lights dimmed and the show began, the audience seemed to anticipate what lay ahead. With deep, soothing music, the models walked down the runway, each one decked out in vibrant African-inspired attire. The fashion show was a celebration of culture and beauty, and the audience couldn't help but marvel at the elegance and grace of the models.}

Confessions of an L&S Editor

BY DANIELLE KWATENG
Managing Editor

Dear Danielle,

I am so glad you wanted to be honest. Some writers don't want to share secrets, but I have to say that the secret to life is that we are all vulnerable. Although I know, intellectually, that I just want to be a writer, it is not the only reason I do things.

(Please write is final)

Life is about finding happiness in the little things. You don't have to be a writer to find joy in life. All you need is to be open to new experiences and to appreciate the beauty around you.

(Dear Howard,)

(From the Federal Reserve Bank,)

We are currently looking for individuals to join our team as writers. If you are passionate about writing and have a desire to share your thoughts and ideas with others, we would love to hear from you.

(From (ASA) fashion show. Bursts into laughter)

Yes, it is. Everyone in attendance had a great time, and the show ended with a bang. The audience was left with a sense of excitement and wonder, and I think that is what makes it all worth it.

(Andrea and Roberta,)

The suits were made of high-quality wool fabric, with designs that were elegant and stylish. The suits were accompanied by handmade bead textures, making them even more special. I think it is important to support local designers and to recognize their hard work.

U.S. Prison System Flawed

China, Russia and Japan arc all large nations. Although the United States is among this group in population, it is a outlier when it comes to prison population. More than one in every 10 Americans over the age of 18 is in prison or under supervision. The U.S. has more than 8.6 million incarcerated people in 74,000 facilities, or 2.5 million more than China, Britain and Japan combined. Although the United States has 4.9% of the world's population, it contains 20% of all prisoners.

Our View:
With so many Americans in prison, there is something seriously wrong with either our system or society. People are being thrown in jail far too often. In many cases, the justice system is failing to provide a fair chance for people to be rehabilitated. The system is too harsh, too expensive and too ineffective. It needs to change.

Unfortunately, these correctional facilities are operated to maximize profits. The laws of economics don't apply to our prisons.

Let's forget the fact that our prisons are a lost, failure-ridden national experience. Many of these people were first offenders. Prisons are typically for people who have committed some sort of crime, such as murder or manslaughter. Millions of people are incarcerated, but the use of free labor which leads money to become repeat offenders. The system is what's wrong. It was really done for the first time to rehabilitate those individuals. The correctional programs assume that after 10 years in prison jail must be enough to scare a person from repeating the same mistake. Daily labor. If it were, fairly would be the same profit-effective.

If prisons and jail are going to be considered a loss, then these corrections must be a better place for people. In a prison, it must be rehabilitative. We need to do more than just put people in jail. We need to do more than just put them in jail and then send them back on the streets in several years, with the right to knowing what is going on.

Uniformly, corporations are making money every time someone is thrown into prison. The prison industry is a big business, where the free labor provided for the large corrections departments is, in reality, just used to be in through the eyes of people who are prison somewhere.
