U.S. USES ‘BIG STICK’ TO SAVE ECONOMY
Fed Assists AIG With Burdens Of No More Bailouts

BY WILLIAM NEWMAN
Chicago Tribune (7/27/08)

The Federal Reserve has noted an additional 90 percent of all 1409 federal and state laws that would apply to companies in the United States. The Fed’s decision was based on the need to regulate companies in the financial sector and to prevent potential risks to the economy. The move was seen as a significant step in the effort to stabilize the financial market and to protect consumers from further financial crises.

Chevrolet Silverado is the best-selling truck in the United States, and it appears that it will continue to be a popular choice among consumers for years to come. With its versatile design and powerful engine, the Silverado offers a comfortable ride and plenty of cargo space for those who need it.

A recent survey found that the majority of Americans prefer to use their vehicles for transportation rather than relying on public transit. This preference is driven by factors such as convenience, cost, and the desire to control one’s own transportation schedule.

Starting a business can be challenging, but with the right resources and support, it is possible to turn a dream into a successful enterprise. The following are some tips that can help you on your entrepreneurial journey:

1. Identify a market need: Understanding the needs and desires of your target audience is crucial to the success of your business. Conduct market research to identify gaps in the market and determine what your customers want.

2. Create a business plan: A well-thought-out business plan is essential for guiding your business strategy and securing funding. It should outline your business goals, market analysis, and financial projections.

3. Secure funding: Whether it is through loans, grants, or investors, securing the necessary funding is critical to the success of your business. Explore different options and take the time to carefully evaluate each one.

4. Build a network: Establishing a strong network of contacts is essential in the business world. Attend industry events, join professional organizations, and connect with other entrepreneurs.

5. Offer excellent customer service: Providing quality products or services and excellent customer service is key to building a loyal customer base and fostering growth.

With these tips in mind, you can take the first steps towards achieving your entrepreneurial goals. Remember, starting a business takes time and dedication, but with persistence and a willingness to learn, you can achieve success.

You might have heard about the project to implement a law that raised the drinking age to 21 years old. This initiative was introduced in a number of states and has sparked a debate among adults and lawmakers.

One of the main arguments against the law is that it would prevent people from drinking responsibly. Supporters of the law argue that it would reduce the number of alcohol-related accidents and crimes. However, opponents argue that the law would not be effective and that people would simply find ways to obtain alcohol illegally.

The debate continues as states decide whether to raise the drinking age to 21 or maintain the current age limit of 21.

Oprah Winfrey should influence media to highlight black problems

For the second year in a row, Oprah Winfrey topped Forbes’ list of “Most Influential Women in the World” for her cooperation, civic involvement, and leadership in the business world. But Winfrey has been known for her philanthropic endeavors and global humanitarian efforts. She was named “Newsmaker of the Year” by the National Association of Broadcasters for her years of charitable giving and efforts to improve the lives of others.

As a result of her influence, Winfrey has been able to make important changes in the world, and to be recognized for her efforts. She is known to use her platform to promote causes that she believes in, and to raise awareness for important issues. Her influence is not limited to the United States, as she has worked to make a difference in countries around the world.

Our View: “Oprah Winfrey should influence media to highlight black problems in the black community.”

Oprah Winfrey is a media mogul and should use her influence to highlight current problems affecting black communities.

She has already made an impact through her work with the organization “Oprah Winfrey’s Leadership Academy for Girls,” which aims to provide education and support for girls in the Washington, D.C., area. The organization focuses on providing educational opportunities and mentorship for girls who are at risk of dropping out of school.

In addition to her work with the Leadership Academy, Winfrey has used her platform to raise awareness for a variety of issues. She has been known to use her influence to draw attention to important topics, such as mental health, education, and social justice.

Winfrey’s influence is not limited to her work with organizations. She has also been known to use her influence in the media to highlight important issues. For example, she has used her platform on “Oprah,” her talk show, to discuss important topics such as domestic violence, substance abuse, and voter registration.

Winfrey’s work is important, as it helps to bring attention to important issues that may otherwise go unnoticed. It is clear that her influence is being used to make a difference in the world, and her efforts should be celebrated.

We encourage Winfrey to continue using her influence to highlight important issues affecting black communities. Her platform provides her with a unique opportunity to make a difference, and we look forward to seeing what she will do next.
Ten years ago, Patricia Cooper's life drastically changed when she was diagnosed with diabetes. Simple daily activities such as eating and walking had to be altered due to the lifelong treatment and monitoring involved.

She didn't know about diabetes until her 40s when her doctor mentioned it. Cooper said that she felt unprepared and unready to handle the disease. "I never knew anything about diabetes," she said.

Cooper shared that many people like her don't take care of their health because they don't know about diabetes. "People don't know about it," she added.

Dr. Donald Bland, the Director of the District Department of Energy, said that people need to be aware of diabetes because it can be deadly. "It's a deadly disease," he said.

The District Department of Energy is working on diabetes prevention and awareness through a campaign called "Diabetes Testing, Prevention and Management.'

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, one in four Americans who has diabetes is diagnosed when they are already diagnosed with diabetes. Dr. Bland encouraged people to get tested and get proper treatment.

"It's been a long process," Bland said. "We've made a lot of progress, but there's still a lot more to do."

Some residents were excited about the campaign, but others were concerned about the logistics. "I don't know if it's going to work," Cooper said.

However, Dr. Bland was pleased with the outcome of the campaign. "It's been a long process, but we're pleased with the outcome," he said.

The campaign will continue throughout the year, and residents are encouraged to get tested and take proper care of their health.

Energy Assistant Plan Extends Its Application Deadline to September

BY MELISSA MONTGOMERY

Washington, D.C. - Nancy Smith is living on a fixed income. The majority of the 54-year-old's Social Security benefits go to her rent, leaving little for other expenses.

"It's not the most expensive," Smith said.

Smith and her former husband, who has since passed away, have been living in the District for 14 years. They moved from Honolulu, Hawaii, to the District to be near her former husband's family.

According to the Department of Energy Assistance Administration, 25 percent of D.C. households are energy assistance eligible.

However, only 10 percent of those households apply for assistance. "We missed 1,000 households with at least $100 in heating bills," Smith said.

Smith was informed about this program, believe it or not. "But I didn't know about it," she said.

The Energy Assistant Program can go to the Village in Washington, D.C., to provide energy assistance to low-income families.

This program is available to those who qualify based on income eligibility and heating expenses.

If you need information about this program, please call 202-544-0511 or visit www.adap.dcm.gov.

CVS, Howard Hospital Host Diabetes Testing, Prevention

BY MELISSA MONTGOMERY

Washington, D.C. - CVS, a pharmacy chain, is teaming up with Howard University Hospital to host a diabetes testing event.

The event is being held at the Howard University Hospital on September 23 from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

CVS Vice President George Howard, with 36 representatives and volunteers from the Department of Health, hosted the last stop of a four-month campaign to increase diabetes awareness.

"We want to get people to understand that they should take care of themselves," Howard said.

The event is part of the National Diabetes Testing, Prevention, and Management campaign, which is funded by the Department of Health and Human Services.

During the event, residents can get tested, receive information about diabetes, and learn about ways to prevent and manage the disease.

CVS will provide the testing equipment, and volunteers will be on hand to assist residents with the testing process.

The event is open to the public, and no appointment is necessary.
