President Hubeau Speaks on Recent Activity

President Goes Down the List, Addresses Demands

By Jessica Lewis

In an effort to address the student demands raised during the protest, President Sidney A. Ribeau and Interim Provost and Chief Academic Officer Alvin Edra-Thorton sat down with "The 12" to gauge each group's concerns.

Demands: Miami's Financial Aid office should be opened to all students, not just those who pay their full payment on time. It should also be more transparent and inclusive in placing in order quality customer service and to serve the unusually large number of students who have yet to be validated.

Response: "That's something I agree with and will see in the future," Ribeau said.

Thurman said even before students raised the concern, this issue was a priority. He said the school is working towards an open aid day to be held in the administration building in 1115, an area expected to be the site of the protest.

President Ribeau said this matter will be completed by Friday. "Do our best, but that's what we're going to do," Ribeau said.

Today a week across the Undergraduate Library and Humanities Library, as well as significant capital improvements and renovations, will be completed.

Veronica: The Senior Vice Provost Strategic Planning, Operations, External Affairs & Chief Technology Officer, Howard University's Dean of Business, and Student President of the Student Senate, Anson, also presented.

Health Care on the Minds of Student Leaders, Volunteers

Health care is the minds of student leaders, volunteers, including Howard University students and Interim Provost and Chief Academic Officer Alvin Edra-Thorton, have discussed the importance of health care reform and the challenges it presents.

In a meeting convened by the Student Senate and Howard University's Student Senate, leaders and volunteers discussed the challenges of health care reform and the importance of health care for all. The meeting was led by a small committee of student leaders, including Howard University students and Interim Provost and Chief Academic Officer Alvin Edra-Thorton.

President Ribeau addressed his goals at the 2010-11 commencement ceremony and set a tone for the upcoming academic year. President Ribeau said he wants students to "keep our voice heard." He also encouraged students to "get out our voice heard."

"This is an exciting time for Howard University," Ribeau said. "We want to see how well we do at this, and we're up keep our voice heard."

"I like the debate on health care reform was being overset by a home run of the best of people," Johnson said. "As the up-coming generation, our voices need to be our turn."

Johnson said that during the debate, Ribeau, Edra-Thorton, and President Barack Obama's plan for health care reform were discussed.

New System Causes Trouble

By CAMILLE AUGUSTE
Staff Writer

Thursday morning's parking fiasco was made worse by an isolated event, as more students and faculty complained about the slew of different parking problems they encountered.

A line of students waited in vain for permits reserved outside the parking office in the Administration building, scratching the possibility of finding a parking space for students.

The trouble, which continued throughout the day, was the result of an administrative error, leaving many to wonder if the site on campus was still operational.

As I was at my computer sitting at a desk when it came time, I was shut out of the system and it wouldn't work. It said the server was very busy, and Profes-

Registration for a parking permit was supposed to begin Tuesday, Sept. 2, but an error occurred leaving me with a blank screen.

I have been trying to get on the new site on Wednesday, Sept. 3, but another attempt was made to prevent me from accessing the site.

I will find a way to confirm and validate my account. I will continue to work on this problem, and I expect to have the site up and running by the end of the day today.

I am still not validated and I took the web access offline. I am not sure that an uncontrolled error. Another attempt made it impossible to confirm my account. I will continue to work on this problem, and I expect to have the site up and running by the end of the day today.

Demand: Expedite the process of hiring both a perma nent provost and vice president of Student Affairs: Interim periods should be limited to six months.

Response: The search for the provost and vice president of student affairs will conclude in December of 2009. A provost will be in place in January, Ribea said. He also said there will be another opportunity for students to meet the candidates, but the previous candidates did not have the right combination of qualities for this university as it is right now. He said that it is a mix of managerial skills, disciplinary expertise, decision making and knowledge of the judicial process.

Iranian Prisoner Autopsy Report Reveals Flaws

Official autopsy report reveals Iranian politician Ruhollahlini's son did not die of natural causes

BY BRITTANY MILLER
Contributing Writer

When Mohsen Ruhollahlini was imprisoned, dead in a Kathrib prison cell, his death was due to a pre-existing illness.

However, a newly released criminal report states that his death was due to a pre-existing illness.

According to the Medical News Agency, Ruhollahlini's death was caused by a pre-existing illness, a condition that affected him throughout his life and was diagnosed by a medical team.

Ruhollahlini, 25, was being detained in Tehran's Kahriz prison after tossing a rock at police officers.

A medical report states that he died of natural causes and was pronounced dead at the scene.

Ruhollahlini, who was a parliament candidate for the Islamic Conservative Party, was detained for protesting in front of the Supreme Leader's office.

Ruhollahlini reportedly had been beaten and had injuries including a broken bone in his leg.

According to the medical report, Ruhollahlini's death was caused by a pre-existing illness that was not treated properly.

Ruhollahlini was one of many Iranian prisoners who died in custody.

According to the report, Ruhollahlini's death was caused by a pre-existing illness that was untreated.

Ruhollahlini's father was a conservative candidate for the Iran presidency.

Many wonder if he was treated unfairly in prison because of his father's position.

Even if they did find evidence to convict the people that abused him, I don't think justice will truly be served.

Steroid Usage More Frequent in Baseball

BY JUSTIN AMEY

Professional baseball players have been stepping down with allegations of using performance-enhancing drugs for years. Some players have been handed positive for performance-enhancing drugs, and others who have allegedly been using major League Baseball (MLB)‘s drug compliance protocols, including failed tests, have been suspended.

Some of the biggest names in the sport are linked to MLB, although many have been ironclad to performance-enhancing drugs. This week, Hall of Fame greats with drug stains on their resumes told reporters at the annual winter meetings that performance-enhancing drugs are still prevalent in baseball.

“I should do sprints because I don’t work on anything else,” said Barry Bonds and Roger Clemens, who have been implicated in drug use. “I would love to compete with other players who use drugs and make it.”

Anthrax made national headlines earlier this year, as the government considered a possible terrorism threat.

Philly may not have the greatest football or basketball team, but when it comes to hair, Philadelphia is most definitely number 1.

So you're a fan of vintage wear?

Most vintage pieces attract my attention, especially if they have gold in them. I rely on my vintage pieces to give me a CLASSIC and MATURE look that complements my natural demeanor.

Who: Kendra Handy, junior advertising major, Snellville, Ga.
Caught where: School of Communications
What are you wearing? Floral dress, Forever 21
Sheer cardigan, Forever 21
Black belt, Forever 21
Black flats, Forever 21

What inspires your own personal style?

I like to copy everyday styles that I see and add my own touch.

Since your entire outfit is from Forever 21, would you say that's your favorite store?

Yup. It has inexpensive dresses and accessories, which are my favorite items to buy.

How would you describe Howard's style?

Individualistic, fearless and fierce.

What advice would you give to the class of 2013?

Be true to who you are. Don't allow Howard to change you or your sense of style.

Brown boots, Cavenders
Burberry Purse, Sam Moon Outlet
Socks, Banana Republic

How would you describe your style?

I wear more classy clothes suited for an older person... dress it more contemporary like menswear suited for women.

What's the difference between Dallas style and D.C. style?

D.C. style has very bright colors, sneakers, graphic clothing and Dallas is more contemporary, more dresses and we do actually wear cowboy hats.

Imagine a world where women are feared for wearing pants in public. It doesn’t have to be imagined. It is.

In June, Latinos Hu- in San José, were among women arrested for wearing pants in public. The incident was one of many in which police cited individuals for “disturbing the peace” and “public nuisance.”

It is common in Muslim northern Sudan, where women are expected to cover up most of their bodies. But Haines did this, a world of working women.

The maximum penalty for women is 40 days in jail, according to an article in the Washington Post. The police were quickly called in to make sure that any clothing worn by women did not exceed the guidelines. Despite this, women were still arrested for wearing pants in public.

The judge declined to sentence her to a term of up to one day in jail. The judge instead ordered that she pay a $100 fine. Haines was later released.

Our View:
There is a difference between indictable and non-indictable.

“Knowing the law” is the political figure. The police that Haines wore aren’t quite sure. She didn’t have on the right kind of pants or low-cut shoes, according to police reports.

As of June 20, Haines was still in jail on the related charges. This is expected to continue as more cases are brought. The issues relate to the larger issue of women’s rights and freedoms.
