The Dean's Honor Roll was started about seven years ago in the College of Liberal Arts by the late Dean Davis. Since that time both the School of Music and the School of Engineering and Architecture have instituted such a system to acknowledge the scholastic achievements of students in these schools. In the fall of each year there is an Honors Day Program in the university chapel.

The scholastic averages are computed by a grade basis and are cumulative. Because most of these students have been active participants not only in scholarship but also in all phases of college life, they should make outstanding contributions in the many fields of endeavor wherever they go.
