Whos Who in Our Faculty
Herman E. Gaskins, B.S., D.D.S.

One who loves the simple, admires the great and aspires to the noble and good—such is this character. Born in Manassas, Va., he received his elementary and high school training in the schools of that town. After graduating from high school he matriculated at Howard University in the school of Liberal Arts from which he was graduated in 1930 with the degree of B.S. He then entered the College of Dentistry at Howard University where he pursued ardently and efficiently his search of knowledge in that field. In 1934 he was graduated with the degree of D.D.S. In recognition of his outstanding work as a student, Dr. Gaskins was appointed dental intern at Freedman's Hospital for the school year 1934-35. Yet another symbol of his worth was given him when in the spring of 1935 before completing his internship he was appointed to the faculty of the college of dentistry. As instructor in operative dentistry he has served faithfully and well and is continuing to do so. There is about Dr. Gaskins an obvious love for his work, a genuine interest in the students and a spirit of unselfishness that all who know him respect and admire.

It is said that work to be meaningful must be motivated by love. In the life of this man there is a deep and reverential love for his mother that is certainly the envy of many mothers. Because of his frequent trips to N.Y. alone, to see his mother, he has been termed the “Lone Wolf.”
The honors and achievements of this young man have not served to inflate his ego or cause him to forget the source from which he has sprung—Those associates of his youth are still friends to him. When he goes back to Manassas it is with a youthful anticipation of hunting and reviving old ties with those earlier associates. His philosophy seems to be, "I only ask a moderate fate,

And though not in obscurity
I would not yet be placed too high,
Between the two extremes I'd be,
Not meanly low, nor yet too great,
From both contempt and envy free.

Dr. Gaskins is not satisfied with his achievements. His desire and determination is to do further studying to better prepare himself for work in the profession of his choice.

Raymond L. Hayes, A.B., D.D.S., M.S.D.

The recently appointed instructor in Dentistry, Dr. Raymond L. Hayes, is a product of the middle-west. He is one of a pair of twins born to Mr. and Mrs. George L. Hayes of Indianapolis, Indiana, on December 27, 1910. His early education was received in Indianapolis where he finished grammar school and graduated from high school in 1927. Immediately thereafter, Dr. Hayes entered the University of Michigan, in the college of literature, science, and the arts, from which he received the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1931. Having been guided partly by the influence of friends and relatives engaged in the practice of dentistry and partly by a desire and determination to be a dentist which had existed since boyhood days, he pursued a pre-dental course at Michigan University. In the following school year, we find him in the University of Indiana College of Dentistry, the only colored student in a class of fifty. Ranking fourth in the senior class, Dr. Hayes was awarded the Doctor of Dental Surgery degree in June, 1935.

In the Harlem Hospital of New York City, Dr. Hayes began service as dental interne the following month. After receiving much valuable experience in oral surgery in this capacity, he later resigned this position to accept the instructorship in Dentistry at Howard University. During the past year, Dr. Hayes has been on a leave of absence pursuing graduate study in oral pathology at the University of Michigan under Dr. Russell W. Bunting, head of the department of oral pathology and one of the outstanding men in this field. On June 19, 1937, the Master of Science degree was bestowed upon Dr. Hayes by the Dental College of the University of Michigan.

During the past Christmas vacation, Dr. Hayes was married to Miss Angella Turpeau of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mrs. Hayes is a graduate of Howard University in the class of 1935, and for the past two years she has been girl reserve secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Dr. and Mrs. Hayes have participated in both the social and civic activities of Washington, D.C. Dr. Hayes is a member of the Omega Psi Phi fraternity and Mrs. Hayes is a member of the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

Dr. Madison, the newest member of the Howard Dental School Faculty, was born in Columbus, Ohio, December 11, 1899. He received his primary and secondary education in the Columbus public schools.

Dr. Madison enlisted in the army in 1917 immediately after finishing high school and served overseas with the 372nd regiment. He was discharged in 1919 and entered the Ohio State University that same year where he took two years of pre-dental work. He entered the Dental School of the same University and graduated in 1925.

From 1925 to 1927 he practised in Youngstown, Ohio. From there he moved to Xenia, Ohio where he entered into private practice and at the same time served as Professor of Physiology at Wilberforce University, Wilberforce, Ohio.

In 1930 he was married to Miss G. Marie Bolden, of Vernon, Indiana, a teacher of Latin in the Xenia Public Schools. The same year Dr. Madison entered the Graduate School of Ohio State University and received his M.Sc. degree in the summer of 1931. In 1933 he returned to Ohio State and completed his residence work for his Ph.D. degree. The summer of 1935 was spent in studying at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Madison was elected as Assistant Professor of Dentistry in the School of Dentistry, Howard University, in 1936, which position he holds at the present time.

Dr. Madison is a member of the following organizations: Ohio Academy of Science, Dayton Dental Society, Ohio State Dental Society, American Dental Association, Robert T. Freeman Dental Society, National Dental Association, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. He also holds the commission of Captain in the Dental Reserve Corps, U.S.A.

Dr. Madison's hobbies are photography, golf, and chess.
